LIMITS THE FLOATING DEBT

CAPITAL LEVY IS REJECTED

On the Critical Vote to Increase the Circulation, the Chamber Divides 328 to 119.

PARIS, June 27 (AP).—The Chamber of Deputies adopted the financial proposals of Finance Minister Caillaux this morning. It passed Article II, increasing the paper circulation by 6,000,000,000 francs, by a vote of 328 to 119.

The vote on the bill as a whole was 330 to 34, showing that many of the Deputies, particularly the Socialists, abstained from voting.

Article III of the bill, authorizing a gold basis loan in exchange for national defense bonds, was passed by a vote of 378 to 36, and the remaining articles were adopted by a show of hands.

The vote on Article II was looked upon as the crucial one, and this was passed. It was certain that the deputies would take favorable action on the measure as a whole.

Provisions of Long-Awaited Bill.

PARIS, Saturday, June 27.—Finance Minister Caillaux introduced in the Chamber yesterday (Friday) afternoon the long-awaited bill for relief of the situation of the Treasury and for making a beginning of the consolidation of the floating debt.

In brief his proposals are as outlined yesterday: A limited increase in circulation by 6,000,000,000 francs wherewith to meet immediate calls on the Treasury due to maturity of defense and Treasury bonds during the next six months and for consolidation of the remaining bonds into a new issue to which bondholders only will be allowed to subscribe, the interest rate to be lower than the existing rates but with the inducement that the bonds will be paid at the gold rate.

During the discussion of the project in an all-night session of the Chamber it was evident the Opposition had no intention to launch a heavy attack against the measure. Such criticism as developed was purely perfunctory and not calculated to block adoption.

M. Caillaux himself, confident of victory, defended the project in a brief, decisive speech which won him an ovation from the Centre and Cartel groups.

"This is no time for sensational measures," said M. Caillaux. "We're resting within the limits of normal, natural procedure which, however, does not exclude audacity. But audacity requires confidence, and I am fully confident the country, eager to recuperate and extricate itself from the morass and reestablish itself, will respond to the appeal made to it by the Government."

Following M. Caillaux's defense of the project the Socialists forced upon the Chamber a discussion of its counter projects, particularly the capital levy.

At 4 o'clock this morning after a telling speech by Leon Blum, the Socialist leader, the counter project for a capital levy was voted on and defeated, 210 votes being cast in favor and 340 against.

Passage by Chamber Seems Assured.

With defeat of the capital levy, passage of the Caillaux bill seemed assured of adoption by a substantial majority.

The bill consists of only four articles. In the first the Finance Minister allocates to his office the power to control expenditure which formerly has been invested in two organizations appointed by Parliament. He will be enabled to make use of these organizations and proceed with their recommendations by decree if necessary over his own signature and that of the Premier instead of needing the sanction of the whole Cabinet.

Article II sanctions the Bank of France advances to the State authorized last April until July 14 and authorizes a further advance of 6,000,000,000. Article III empowers emission of the consolidation loan and Article IV fixes the floating debt of the Treasury at the sum reached on closing the subscription to this loan.

Immediately after M. Caillaux had presented the bill the Chamber adjourned to permit the Finance Commission to bring in a report. It was hoped this report would be ready by 6 o'clock and a special session of the Senate was called for 9:30 to receive the bill from the Chamber so as to enable it to be passed through both houses this evening. At 6 o'clock the Finance Commission, however, reported it needed more time and the Chamber again adjourned until 10:30.

Capital Levy Rejected.

Caillaux's first victory came almost immediately in the Finance Commission. The Socialists, anxious to obtain a record of their wishes, introduced a counter-project to that of the Government based on the idea of a capital levy. This proposal was rejected by the commission by 21 votes against 16, and consideration of Caillaux's project was voted, 20 to 10.

While the commission was sitting various Parliamentary parties held meetings to consider the attitude they would adopt. Among the Nationalists there was a threat at first of some opposition.

Orders Postmaster General To Court on Contempt Charge

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Postmaster General New was ordered today by Justice Smith in Equity Court to appear on July 1 to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for the alleged violation of an injunction issued against him on June 12 to prevent the enforcement of a fraud order against the Tribond Sales Corporation of New York.

Messrs. Colladay and Barger, counsel for the corporation, complained that Mr. New on June 15 caused to be published in the bi-monthly report of the Postoffice Department the name of their client, with a statement that the fraud order was to be enforced. The Postoffice Department's action was based on a silk stock sales proposition engineered by the corporation.

COOLIDGE OPPOSES CUTTING THE TARIFF

Denounces Briton's Proposal at Brussels as a Move to Have Us Pay the Reparations.

NO CURTAILING OF INDUSTRY

Vice President Dawes Calls on Him—Mrs. Coolidge Shops in Ten-Cent Store.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 26.—President Coolidge in his first press conference at the Summer White House today repulsed the suggestion of Sir Josiah Stamp before the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce in Brussels that the United States in common with other nations should curtail production and lower tariff walls to enable Germany to pay reparations.

In the most vigorous language he has used in discussing this international question Mr. Coolidge's position was set forth unmistakably. His attitude is that the people of the United States would not undertake a plan or be a party to one that would result in making this country pay the reparations or cancel the debts owing to it.

Standing on the lawn of White Court, in the sound of the breakers, the President frankly explained his position relative to reparations and the cancellation of the debt. He was brief, emphatic and almost blunt in what he said. At the same time he wished the world to know that the United States would bear its share in helping to restore the economic condition of European countries, but not to the extent of modifying the tariff laws or reducing production here so as to give Germany a larger share in our markets.

Sees Moves to Have Us Pay Reparations.

Mr. Coolidge had not read the speech delivered by the English member of the committee of experts that framed the Dawes plan. On the other hand, since coming here he has read editorial comment upon it and from what was said in them he learned the purport of the proposal. He thinks that it is another one of the persistent efforts among European financiers and statesmen to compel the United States to pay the reparation debt and to have it cancel the war debts. In his opinion, there have been all kinds of left-handed efforts to saddle such obligations on the United States and Sir Josiah's proposal is placed in that category by him.

The policy of the United States is to help Europe in its own way and not to be forced to engage in her restoration through a program that would injure the United States or include any further leniency toward countries owing war debts. The American tariff in the President's opinion is a domestic matter and is intended to protect American industry. It is a policy, he intimated, that will not be changed by the administration as part of any European conceived plan to make successful the Dawes plan or as an easement in a program of foreign countries to fund their debt to the United States.

The President finds that American trade has increased 50 per cent. over the years preceding the war. Importations are about equal to normal times. This he considers an answer to the proposal that the tariff wall should be lowered to permit Europe to sell here.

President Coolidge does not wish his position misunderstood. The United States intends to aid Europe in every possible way, just as is has been doing while the war was in progress and since. In this world condition, with

SHEPHERD ACQUITTED IN M'CLINTOCK CASE; JURY OUT 5 1-2 HOURS

ACCUSED MAN IS FREED

TRIAL LASTED SIX WEEKS

Judge Olsen, Chief Backer of Prosecution, Assails Crowe's Handling.

CHICAGO, June 26.—William D. Shepherd was acquitted of the charge of murdering his wife's ward, William Nelson McClintock, tonight amid extraordinary scenes of confusion and disregard of the usual courtroom conventions.

Flashlights boomed and flared almost in his face as he stood drooping on the arm of his attorney. The smoke was so dense that his figure could hardly be seen while the words of the clerk reading the verdict could hardly be heard.

Women cowered in terror as the heat of the flashes hit their cheeks and the backs of their necks, and cried out as photographers leaped over tables and chairs, holding their cameras and flashlight apparatus high in the air and shooting almost as they jumped.

The room was a turmoil of jumping, rushing figures, crying out directions and telling persons to get out of the way, while Judge Thomas J. Lynch, as two bailiffs rapped feebly for order, laughed merrily at the disorder beneath him.

The verdict was known many minutes before the jury came in, and one evening paper was on the street in front of the Criminal Court building with the news before the jury entered the room. The jurymen had been out since 4:37 o'clock in the afternoon, and their delay had strained the nerves of every one connected with the case, for it had been assumed that there would be a quick acquittal.

When the three heavy raps sounded on the door of the jury room at 10:15 P. M. the court was filled with people, standing or sprawling on tables and chairs, smoking and chatting. The floor was covered with newspapers and the remains of lunches.

Some semblance of order was obtained after ten minutes of pushing and herding by bailiffs and ineffectual rapping of gavels.

Judge Lynch came to the bench in his robe, and a bailiff went through what in a few moments turned out to be a farce, the usual warning against demonstrations. Even as he talked photographers were sitting high on the clerk's desk and standing on chairs, their apparatus in plain view and ready for instant action. The jury filed in, William Burnett, foreman, at the head. Shepherd came in and stood at the end of the jury box, near the witness chair, with William Scott Stewart and William W. O'Brien near him.

Verdict Lost in Uproar.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked Judge Lynch.

"We have," replied Mr. Burnett, who held in his hand the exhibits and the written verdict.

The verdict was handed to the clerk for reading, and even as the clerk opened his mouth to speak came the first three flashes—vivid bursts of white light—and smoke began to drift over the corner of the room where Shepherd stood.

"We, the ——," words were lost in the uproar, "find——not guilty."

Shepherd's big shapeless bulk slumped forward and young Stewart put his arm around him and held him. Smoke almost hit them, the drooping figure could be seen only now and then through the drifting clouds as one sees objects for a moment vividly by a lightning flash. In those moments his face could be seen, a shining gray, as his head drooped on his chest and Mr. Stewart cried encouragement which could not be heard a few feet away.

The room was now a spouting, swirling volcano of flame and smoke. There were at least fifteen photographers in

Friends Would Buy White Court for Coolidge; Congress May Be Asked to Act if He Refuses It

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 26.—White Court may become the permanent Summer White House during the Coolidge Administration and the Summer home at the end of Mr. Coolidge's term. A group of friends have pledged $125,000 to buy the place and present it to President Coolidge should he find the residence acceptable.

Mr. Coolidge has been informed of the desire of his admirers to present him with the seaside retreat, but he has given no intimation that he would accept it. He said to them, "I might not like it."

In case President Coolidge should feel that he could not personally accept a home, it is probable that he would not oppose Congress making an appropriation for a Summer White House, such as is provided for the heads of other countries. In that event a bill for an appropriation will be offered in Congress to buy either White Court or another place for the Summer White House.

From time to time for many years movements have been started to obtain the necessary appropriation with which to purchase a Summer home for the Presidents. This movement today is no further advanced than it was when it was first brought up. It is thought by some of those interested in seeing President Coolidge comfortable during the Summers that the Massachusetts delegation in Congress will propose legislation to this effect when Congress next assembles, unless President Coolidge becomes the owner of White Court in the meantime.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Reports that the Massachusetts delegation might ask Congress to buy White Court, the residence now occupied by President Coolidge at Swampscott, for a permanent Summer home for Presidents, if Mr. Coolidge rejects the offer of friends to buy it, met with little sympathy at the Capitol today.

While the North Shore is a delightful vacation spot and may appeal particularly to Mr. Coolidge, jealousies on the part of the other States and the additional fact that future Presidents might prefer to go to other places put a quietus on such a plan, members of the House and Senate stated.

FIRE WRECKS CHURCH IN UPPER BROADWAY

STAINED WINDOWS BROKEN

Flames Sweep Through the Pews and Destroy Altar—Heavy Traffic Held Up for an Hour.

Christ Episcopal Church, at Broadway and Seventy-first Street, the second oldest Episcopal congregation on Manhattan, was virtually wrecked by fire yesterday afternoon. Six firemen were injured and three alarms were sent in when the flames, mounting high above the roof, menaced some of the other buildings in the vicinity.

The first alarm was turned in at 5:20 o'clock, when the home-going rush was under way, and for about an hour vehicular traffic and surface car lines on Broadway were tied up. So great was the crowd that reserves from the West Forty-seventh Street, the West One-hundredth Street and the 100th Street Stations were called out under Deputy Chief Inspector William J. McGrath and Acting Captain John Hamill. Dense smoke filled the neighborhood and the fire fighting was hampered by piles of building material in front of the church.

The cause of the fire was not determined, but it was believed that it had probably been smoldering under the tile-covered gable roof since early yesterday morning. Six months ago Christ Church leased its Broadway frontage for the erection of an eight-story office and store building. This necessitated practically cutting the building in half and at the Broadway end the business building is being constructed. The steel framework is in place and workmen are engaged in altering the church structure to meet the changed conditions.

Underneath the roof at the east end was a space above the ceiling about eight feet in height, and it was the opinion of Chief Kenlon that the fire started somewhere in that space. Some of those in the neighborhood smelled smoke most of the day. John T. Duffy of 215 West Seventy-first Street said that his sister had told him at 1 o'clock in the morning that she was sure that something was burning. Deputy Chief McKenna found a witness who said he was sure the church had been on fire in the early afternoon.

Smoke Is Discovered.

Visible evidence of the fire came suddenly. A volume of black smoke began to cascade down the roof and seep through the lower edges at the east end of the building. Some one telephoned the Fire Department. When Deputy Chief McKenna arrived the smoke was shot through with flashes of flame. He sent in a second and then a third alarm.

Through a side door firemen of Engine 74 got into the building and were able to fight the fire from inside. From the vantage point of the new building the firemen of Eugine 54 were able to pour streams of water down upon the blazing roof. Other streams were played from the roof of the building at the west end of the church. Chief Kenlon ordered the firemen to use care and not to break any of the fifteen stained glass windows of the building unless it was necessary to do so. About half of these windows were damaged, several of the smaller ones being shattered by the flames and the heat. Of the several large windows only two were damaged and can be repaired.

Across the street from Christ Church is the Sherman Square Hotel, and the guests had to close their windows to keep out the smoke. Thousands from the windows of the Hotel Alamac and other structures in the vicinity watched the fire, but there was no excitement in any of the several hotels near the scene. Seventy-first Street is narrow, and Chief Kenlon ordered the block cleared.

The injured firemen were cut by glass or by pieces of tile dropping from the roof. They were attended by Dr. Harry Archer of the Fire Department and Dr. Hamilton of Knickerbocker Hospital. Those hurt were John Shields, Engine 74, hands cut; Charles Plunkett, Engine 54, cuts on the face; James Galigan, Engine 74, cuts on left hand; Jerry Meyer, Truck 32, cut hands; Frank T. Davis, Hook and Ladder 35, left hand cut, and another fireman, treated for slight cuts.

As soon as the fire was discovered Claude B. Fox, the sexton, telephoned to Dr. John R. Atkinson, the pastor of the church, who is spending his vacation at Sayville, L. I. He came at once to New York. A preliminary inspection of the interior of the building after the fire was under control showed, it was said, that the fire had spent its fury

U. S. INQUIRY BEGUN INTO TAX DODGING BY STOCK BROKERS

143 ON LIST OF SUSPECTS

STATE INQUIRY PENDING

President Maloney Denies That Conditions on Exchange Are as Alleged—Tax Paid by Individuals.

The Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department has launched a searching investigation, it was learned yesterday, to determine whether the Federal Government has lost hundreds of thousands of dollars in the last two years through the failure of some members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange to place tax stamps on stock transfers as required by law.

According to one report the alleged non-payment of tax by some Consolidated brokers was called directly to the attention of President Coolidge. Washington, however, doubted it. Agents of the bureau filed a preliminary report on Wednesday and returned to this city to continue their inquiry.

A second investigation, by the New York State Tax Commission, into reports that the New York tax has been disregarded in the same manner as the Federal revenue statutes, is being held back pending the completion of the Treasury investigation. A copy of the Federal agents' findings will be supplied to State Tax Commissioner John F. Gilchrist. If the findings warrant it, the State will look into the alleged failure to meet its tax requirements.

Thomas B. Maloney, President of the Consolidated Exchange, was informed last night at his home on Long Island that Washington had confirmed the fact of an investigation against individual members of the Exchange. He made it clear that the officials of the Exchange had no knowledge of the dealings of the members with the Government. Mr. Maloney said that any member found to have been remiss in tax payments would be regarded as having acted in a manner detrimental to the interests of the Exchange and he promised to take action if the facts warranted it.

Details of the Federal investigation were closely guarded. At the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington only the fact that an investigation was under way was admitted. Officials declined to discuss it further than that, owing to the absence of Commissioner David Blair on vacation. Officials at the Custom House here, also confirming the investigation, referred inquirers to Washington.

Under the Federal revenue law stamps to the amount of $2 must be affixed to every 100 shares of stock sold. The laws of New York State provided for tax in the same amount and manner. Some members of the Consolidated Exchange, according to the reports now being tracked down by the Federal agents, have been failing to affix the stamps for either Federal or State governments.

Alleged Offenders Listed.

A list of the alleged offenders, it is reported, has been placed in the hands of the agents for verification.

Just how far the agents have gone in proving or disproving the accusations will not be made known, said Washington officials, until the investigation is at an end and a final report made to the Treasury Department. The investigation, they disclosed, was being made here in New York under the direction of Chief Agent McQuillan, in charge of the Treasury special agents for this territory.

According to the reports which McQuillan and his agents are investigating, the number of members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange who have evaded the stamp tax will probably run as high as 143 out of a total of 335 active members of the Consolidated. Of the total number who have thus far been investigated by the Government, twenty have appeared at the New York Custom House seeking adjudication of the amounts claimed by the Government as owing.

These cases have been settled, it was learned, and the investigation of the firms discontinued. It became known yesterday that from the twenty members who have settled $10,000 has been received by the Internal Revenue Bureau officials here. These represented, however, only the "small fry" and the principal firms accused of tax-dodging

Liner Sinks Quebec Tug With Nine Aboard; Boilers Explode as Tiny Craft Is Cut in Two

QUEBEC, June 26.—One of the worst marine tragedies that have struck Quebec since the sinking of the liner Empress of Ireland happened this evening when the tug Ocean King, owned by the St. John Dry Dock Company, was rammed by the Canadian Pacific liner Marloch and sent to the bottom. The crew of nine was drowned.

As she neared the Marloch preparatory to taking aboard the huge hawser that is stretched from liner to tug she crossed the bow of the liner. Captain Stevens, skipper of the ill-fated craft, saw that he was too near the Marloch and spun the wheel around, causing the little vessel to list, with the result that she was rammed amidships by the Marloch, turned completely over, and sent to the bottom, her boilers exploding as soon as the water reached them.

The spot where the vessel went down records fifty feet of water at low tide, and seventy at high tide, and there is little hope of recovering any of the bodies tonight.

The mishap occurred in full view of many people who were in Dufferin Terrace, taking their nightly stroll. But except for a churning of the waters following the explosion of the tug's boilers and the settling of the ship into the water, nothing disturbed the placid surface of the majestic St. Lawrence.

VETO MESSAGE IS CAUSTIC

Governor Says Bill Was Passed to Suit Wealthy Long Islanders.

DECLARES DEAL WAS MADE

Says 3 Commissions Were Exempted From Land Board Authority to Get Votes.

SEES ULTIMATE VICTORY

He Insists Measure Puts Politics, Delay and Improper Influences Into Park Program.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 26.—Determination to stick to the principle of refusing to permit an "obsolete political agency" like the Land Board to be placed over the State park authorities in the acquisition of land for State parks and parkways was expressed tonight by Governor Smith in his veto of the Thayer bill.

The Governor declared that while one objectionable feature of the Thayer bill, which he vetoed at the regular session, had been removed in that the provision to permit the Attorney General to draw out park funds at will to build up title and legal bureaus without the consent of the park authorities had been eliminated, the major objection, the subjection of the park authorities to the Land Board in the purchase of land and in all condemnations and applications, still remained.

Text of the Veto Message.

MEMORANDUM FILED WITH SENATE BILL, INTRODUCTORY NUMBER 1, PRINTED NUMBER 4, ENTITLED:

"An act making appropriation for the extension and improvement of existing State parks and the establishment of new state parks and parkways in order to create a comprehensive and unified State park system for the promotion of the recreation, instruction and health of the people, to carry out the provisions of Chapter Six Hundred and Two of the Laws of 1924, and providing the methods for the acquisition of land for such purposes."

Not approved.

This is practically the same bill which was vetoed at the regular session of the Legislature. The same reasons which led me to veto the bill then lead me to do the same thing now. This bill does not carry out the provisions of the bond issue proposal creating the unified State park system voted by the people by a million majority last Fall. It introduces politics, delay and improper influences into the park program.

One of the objections to the bill as vetoed on April 1 has been removed; that is the provision that the Attorney General could draw out park funds at will to build up title and legal bureaus without the consent of the park authorities.

Says Major Objections Remain.

The major objection to the old Thayer bill still remains; that is the subjecting of the park authorities and their program to the supervision and control of the Land Board in the matter of making all purchases of lands and in condemnations and applications. The same jokers and exceptions also remain for reasons which cannot be explained on honest grounds.

The Palisades Interstate Park is entirely removed from supervision by the Land Board, so is the Westchester County Park Commission and, curiously enough, the Erie County Park Commission. An entirely new agency which is permitted to spend a part of the Niagara Frontier appropriation with the consent of the Niagara State Reservation is also exempted from supervision by the Land Board.

There is no possible way of explaining these exceptions otherwise than that they were originally made in the regular session as a deal or trade to get the support of certain sections and

Smith and Miller to Debate At Carnegie Hall July 9

Former Governor Nathan L. Miller accepted yesterday the suggestion of Governor Smith that their joint debate on the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue be held at Carnegie Hall on the evening of July 9.

Mr. Miller's letter reads:

His Excellency Alfred E. Smith,
Governor of New York,
Albany, N. Y.

My dear Governor Smith: I shall be very glad to debate the proposed constitutional amendment removing the restrictions on the borrowing power of the Legislature with you at Carnegie Hall on Thursday evening, July 9, as proposed by your letter of June 25. I shall be very glad to have Judge Hughes preside if it is convenient for him to do so.

It is obviously impractical for both Congressman Mills and me to debate with you on the same evening. I have conferred with Mr. Mills and he suggests that, since you have challenged us each individually, I debate with you on the evening of July 9 and that he will be very pleased to meet you in debate at your convenience at some later date. Accordingly, I have asked Mr. Mills to meet Mr. Agar, as my representative, to arrange the details for the debate on July 9, and he has kindly consented to do so.

Very sincerely yours,
NATHAN L. MILLER.

SMITH-MASTICK DEAL ON PARKS IS CHARGED

DEMAND MASTICK EXPLAIN

Westchester County residents who are opposed to the new charter for that county made the charge yesterday that there is evidence that State Senator Seabury C. Mastick and other proponents of the new charter made a deal with Goverdor Smith whereby they agreed to support the Governor in his State park program in return for the Governor's support for the new charter measure. They asserted that Senator Mastick refused to go through with his promise because of "too much pressure" from William L. Ward, and this was the reason for the Governor's criticism that he, Mastick, had gone back on his pledges.

The matter came up at a meeting at the Hotel Roosevelt yesterday of a number of prominent Westchester residents who are fighting the proposed charter. Those attending the meeting declared they are nonpartisan and have only the welfare of the county at heart. A temporary organization was formed and a committee was appointed to perfect a permanent organization. Richard H. Lee of Pelham Manor, with offices at 160 Broadway, was appointed Chairman. He was empowered to send a letter to Senator Mastick demanding to know if any trade with the Governor affecting the two bills took place.

The organization censured the Westchester County Senators and Assemblymen for their activity in promoting the proposed new charter, and the charge was openly made that the Governor signed the charter bill because of a deal made by Senator Mastick whereby he had promised to deliver to the Governor the support of Westchester members of the Legislature to the Governor's park plan, "only to back out at the last minute owing to pressure from William L. Ward, Republican leader of Westchester County."

Letter From Lee to Mastick.

This is the letter that was sent by Chairman Lee to Senator Mastick:

Honorable Seabury C. Mastick,
Senate Chamber,
Albany, New York.

Dear Sir:

This morning's New York papers quote Governor Smith as saying that before the extraordinary session convened you promised that the Governor would have your support and that of your county colleagues for the Park Council bill; that upon your failure to give your support to the measure you pleaded "too much pressure" as your reason for going back on your promises to the Governor.

In view of some things which have happened and are still happening in Westchester County this situation is of vital importance to the people of the county. And as a citizen of Westchester County, a voter and the representative of a group of people unalterably opposed to the endeavor of the politicians of Westchester County to destroy representative government within the county and turn its entire financial structure and political machinery over to a political czar to be created under the proposed Westchester County charter plan, I demand to know the truth of the charges made by Governor Smith.

Governor Smith says, "the whole citizenship of Westchester County have abundant reason to be thoroughly ashamed of the delegation that

RECORD SPEED ON MEASURE

MAJORITY ASSAILS SMITH

"We Want Parks, Not Pap or Pork," the Democrats Taunt in Replies.

3 REPUBLICANS HOLD OUT

Park Council, Consulted by Governor Before Acting, Approves Scrapping Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 26.—Within half an hour of the time that the Assembly this evening had concurred in the passage by the Senate of the Thayer bill, vesting in the State Land Board supervision over purchases of land for State park purposes, Governor Smith vetoed the measure and issued a veto message in which he declared that politics and "a desire to play the game as certain log rollers and wealthy residents on Long Island wanted it played" were responsible for the defeat of his park legislation and the favorable action of the Legislature on the bill of the Republican opposition.

Many measures have received immediate approval by Governors in the past, but it is doubtful if ever a bill has been relegated to the legislative scrap heap so soon after its passage by the lawmaking body.

Governor Smith was all set for pointing the lesson to the people of the State, and his veto message had been prepared and was waiting when the Thayer bill was sent to the Executive Chamber by the Senate, where it originated. The Governor read his message to a group of waiting newspaper correspondents and then wrote at the bottom of the bill "disapproved" and affixed his signature.

Passed and Killed in Two Hours.

Doomed from the moment of its introduction in the Senate and Assembly, it is likely to set a mark in legislative history for the record-breaking speed with which it went the route from legislative approval to Executive condemnation. It was passed by the Senate at 5 o'clock this evening. The roll-call in the Assembly when that body concurred in the Senate action was ended at 6:20. As the big clock in the Executive Chamber struck 7 the Governor signed its death warrant.

Governor Smith pointed out in his veto message that in all essential respects the Thayer bill of the extraordinary session was identical with the measure Senator Thayer sponsored at the regular session and which the Governor vetoed then because the Land Board had been injected as a supervisory and controlling agency in park land purchases.

In the original Thayer bill the Palisades Park and Westchester County Commissions had been exempted from Land Board control. The Governor emphasized this apparent inconsistency and showed that in the bill presented to the extraordinary session the Erie Park Commission had been added to the two others in the exempt class. The Governor had been led to believe that the Republican legislators from both Westchester and Erie would support his measure to a man.

Governor Smith stated that he vetoed the bill after consulting members of the State Park Council and upon their advice.

Final Gavel Falls.

The extraordinary session of the Legislature came to an end immediately after the Thayer bill had been disposed of in the Assembly, where the final gavel fell at 6:42 this evening. The Senate completed its labors at 5 o'clock, and nearly all the Senators were gone when final disposal of the bill by the Assembly made further waiting unnecessary.

In both houses motions made by Senator Walker and Assemblyman Block, the Democratic leaders, to replevin the Walker-Harder bill, sponsored by Governor Smith and the Park Council, were voted down before the vote was taken on the Thayer bill. In the Senate the motion was defeated and the bill passed by a strict party vote of 29 to 21. There was only one absentee Senator, Nathan Straus Jr., who is in Europe.

In the Assembly, too, the Republicans managed to hold their lines virtually intact. There the Democratic motion was voted down and the Thayer bill concurred in by a vote of 88 to 54. In each instance three Republicans joined hands with the Democrats. Those voting to take the Walker-Harder bill from the Ways and Means Committee for debate in the open were Assemblymen Harder of Columbia, Wallace of Nassau and Watson of Cattaraugus. The three Republicans voting against the Thayer bill were Harder, Watson and Assemblyman Wickham of Schuyler. The name of Speaker McGinnies was not called and he did not vote. There were five absentees and there are two vacancies in the Assembly.

Considerable bitterness at some stages marked the debate both in the Senate and Assembly. Governor Smith was made the target for more acrimonious attacks than have been launched against any Executive in the Legislature's halls since the days of Sulzer. Senator

Knight in a voice vibrant with passion accused Governor Smith of bad faith and misrepresentation with regard to park legislation, while in the Lower House Assemblyman Shonk of Westchester cried out that after the happenings at the Capitol during the present week, the people of the State had every reason to feel ashamed of Governor Smith.

Walker Taunts Republicans.

Senator Walker warned the Republicans that through their action today many Republican law makers would seal their own political death warrants to aid some Long Island millionaires and hinted that the same men had sought to influence Tammany Hall against the Governor's legislation.

"Every time you arise to malign Tammany," the Senator exclaimed, "remember that these multi-millionaires never got beyond the doorstep of Tammany Hall in their quest for assistance to beat the park program. Then these lonely, fox-hunting multi-millionaires, who asked the Governor where a poor millionaire could go came to you and did pretty well at the expense of the poor people of New York City, where they had made their millions out of the poor, despised Kikes and Wops of the tenements whom, through you, they are now seeking to shut out from good sunshine and a restful day in the country.

"A cat can look at a king, but these poor folks cannot be vouchsafed even a glimpse of the beautiful surroundings among which these divinely ordained fox hunting multi-millionaires have their being."

"We want parks not pork," said Assemblyman Hackenburg, New York City Democrat.

"If the State Land Board is injected into this park program a pork barrel will be created for the benefit of the Republicans. The Democratic Party stands for pep in the carrying out of the State's park policy, not for pap."

A dozen Senators took part in the debate in the upper house, which was of approximately three hours' duration. Senator Walker opened, speaking to his motion to bring out his park bill from the Senate Finance Committee. He said that when the extraordinary session was called by Governor Smith there was not the slightest doubt but that the Park Council bill would pass.

"But now," he said, "the corridors of this Capitol are full of political touts who tell you that the fate of my bill is sealed. It is not the first time good legislation was beaten by your party. Last year, when this Senate was Democratic, good legislation which was passed here for the benefit of the people was shunted over to the butcher shop run by you Republicans at the other end of the Capitol to be slaughtered.

Sore at Spanking, Says Walker.

"You have come here sore at the Governor because, upon many occasions, he has spanked you into passing decent legislation. You have come here with an imitation of courage to get even. But it is only a poor imitation. Let me tell you, if you had real courage you would let my bill come out for debate in the open. There are enough votes on your side of the House to pass it, if those who at heart favor it had the courage in this hour of fate to shake off the boss-forged shackles that bind them."

Senator Courtlandt Nicoll, Republican of New York City, said that while the minority leader was speaking he thought he was attending a meeting of a Russian Soviet. He added that the idea that the parks were for the poor was sheer hypocrisy. It would cost too much money to go either by rail or motor car to the Taylor estate at East Islip for that park to be of any use to the poor of New York City. Supervision of the Land Board was merely a mild check, which in the light of the Taylor estate incident was necessary.

"For some time people in Long Island have been afraid to go to bed for fear that when they woke up in the morning they would find their property seized by Robert Moses, without any funds to pay for what had been taken," added Mr. Nicoll.

"Is it not true that if they don't go to bed on Long Island it is because the bed sheets may be in use elsewhere?" asked Senator Higgins of Kings. The Senate laughed at this allusion to the frequently recurring night "Klon Klaves" on Long Island of the Ku Klux Klan.

"He ought to sign this bill instead of dancing up and down and showing temper like a spoiled child. The charges that the Governor has made against me and others in this body are slanders unworthy of a man holding his high office."

Senator Knight, who ended the debate, said that if the park program was hamstrung the responsibility would rest with the Governor, as the Chief Executive had grossly misrepresented the pending measures in his radio talk as well as the action of the Republicans whose record proved them to be the friends of the parks and sponsors for practically every past park legislation. The chief difference between the Thayer bill and the Walker bill was that in the Thayer bill the Land Board had power to say whether a certain property should be appropriated, while the Walker bill gave that authority to the Governor.

"The Governor rants about politics controlling the Land Board, which is composed of seven elective officials," the Senator continued. "Is there as much likelihood that political influences would sway seven men as one? The proposal to include the Land Board was considered for a long time. No bill in my time has had more careful and conscientious consideration than this. The sole purpose in including any body such as this was for supervision. At no time has there been any thought to prevent or delay the spending of this money.

"The Governor will soon have his chance to show where he stands. If like a petted child, his anger does not mislead him, and if he is sincere in his claim that he is for parks for the people, he will sign this bill which we will send to him. The test will come then.

"We have a right to expect good faith in the Executive Chamber. We have not had that. I feel that the Governor is not above censure in his advocacy of the Park Council program. He has even gone so far as to impugn the integrity of members of this body."

Senator Mastick of Westchester said that what Governor Smith had alluded to as a "joker," the provision exempting the Westchester Park Commission from Land Board control, had been in the bill drafted by the Park Council and approved by the Governor, as well as in the present Thayer bill. He denied that he had pledged support either on his own behalf or on behalf of other Westchester members for the Governor's park legislation.

"If the Governor was more interested in having parks than in having his own way, he would sign this bill," Senator Mastick said.

At the opening of the session the Senate passed the Wallace bill giving to Nassau County authorities power to appropriate lands for the widening of highways, which had come over from the Assembly as well as a measure appropriating some $15,000 for the expenses of the extra session.

Five-Hour Debate in Assembly.

In the Assembly the debate lasted five and one-half hours with charges of "pork, pap and invisible government" flying thick and fast across the chamber. First a Democratic member would charge that the Republicans were injecting politics into the park program, and then a Republican member would jump to his feet and reply that if any one was trying to make a political issue out of the parks it was Governor Smith and the Democratic Party.

Assemblyman Bloch, the Democratic leader, asserted that the people of the State would never have parks so long as "certain interests in this State continue to dictate to the Republican Party."

"It is a sad commentary on American public life when a few millionaires can give the Republican Party an opportunity to serve special interests and privilege-seeking classes," Mr. Bloch said. "Two men on Long Island, the business of one of which is merely to clip coupons and the other to keep the President from running up debts as under the Harding administration, want a toll road for the use of a few people, and in the second approval of millions of people in this State.

"It is a universal rule that private interests must give way to governmental; that the State, by proper procedure, may take private property away when the same is to be devoted to public interests, but the Republican Party today says that that is all right, provided, however, it does not affect or hurt any of its friends. By your action today you are telling the people of this State that the property of a millionaire is sacred and must not be entered upon by the State for any useful or proper purpose."

Westchester Group on Defensive.

The Westchester delegation, Assemblymen Shonk, Moore, Krug, Goodrich and Garnjost all denied the allegations made by Governor Smith that they had not kept promises they had made to support the Park Council bill. All insisted that no one had ever gone to them from Governor Smith asking them to vote for the Council bill and that their vote had never been pledged by any Republican leaders in their county.

"The people of the State have reason to be ashamed of Governor Smith because of the charges he has made against the Westchester delegation," said Mr. Shonk. "The Governor talks about invisible government and sealed orders and leaders who tell us what to do and yet he admits he was glad to have leaders tell him what the Westchester delegation was going to do. This invisible government which the Governor talks about is only invisible when it is against him."

After calling the park controversy a tempest in a teapot, Assemblyman Jenks, Republican, of Broome assailed Governor Smith.

"So many false issues have been injected into this thing by Governor Smith that it is time that some one tears from the face of official arrogance the veil of hypocrisy," he exclaimed. "The power of this body is attempted to be usurped by the Governor.

"For Alfred E. Smith as Dr. Jekyl, the self-made man, I have a high regard, but for Alfred E. Smith as Mr. Hyde, the Tammany politician, I have not such a high regard. Tammany Hall would like to gain control of the State's resources so it could squander them as it has the resources of New York City. When the Governor first wiggled his little pink toes in his crib he dreamed about political conquest and he has been dreaming those same dreams ever since.

"We have about reached that point in this State where we must decide whether we are to stand idly by and watch our present form of government be torn down and in its place have Alfred the Great, the first dictator of the Empire State."

Hutchinson Attacks Governor.

Assemblyman Hutchinson, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, maintained that Governor Smith had made unfair charges against the Republicans from the time the park controversy first started. The accusation which the Governor made recently that Senator Charles J. Hewitt was responsible for increasing an appropriation in the Thayer bill for a park in his district was called a "gross slander" by Mr. Hutchinson.

Majority Leader Adler declared that Governor Smith, in vetoing the original Thayer bill placed himself in the position where he might "legitimately be criticised for obstructing the park development."

"If Governor Smith again vetoes this bill, then he alone would be to blame for obstructing the park program," he added. "He alone must shoulder the responsibility of having delayed park development demanded by the people of this State."

EARLE RETORTS TO SMITH.

Says Governor Is Wrong on Scenic Charms of Proposed Parkway.

Henry W. Earle of Earle & Hoar, 62 Cedar Street, made public yesterday a reply to a letter from Governor Smith on the State parks controversy. Accusing the Governor of misrepresenting the scenic advantages of the proposed State parkway on Long Island, Mr. Earle wrote:

"I very much appreciate your taking the time to write me in relation to the parkway. I have always felt that one of the difficulties of the situation was that you, the executive head of the entire subject, did not have sufficient first-hand information.

"My letter to you was in relation to that part of the parkway which traverses the Wheatley Hills district, and concerning which in your address to the Assembly you stated that the route was a scenically beautiful one from which the ocean and the Sound could be seen. All of which I say is impossible.

"In reply to this you refer to one point on Long Island remotely distant from the Wheatley Hills Parkway, and which really has nothing to do with the situation of which I wrote to you.

"As the scenic beauty of the proposed Wheatley Hills Boulevard, you write me of the beauty of the hills, and say that I am mistaken about the alleged scenic beauty. I admit that a boulevard could be built in the Wheatley Hills section which would be scenically beautiful, but the one as planned is far removed from any such idea, and as I am familiar with every inch of the ground I repeat what I have stated before, that most of it runs through uninteresting farm lands, very little is on the high lands, and two miles of it passes eleven stables.

"When I wrote to you of the lack of any scenic beauty, I was referring to the exact location of the present route; you are referring to the general scenery of the place.

"In my letter to you I stated that the parkway would not disturb polo, golf and hunting, for the reason, first, that the parkway does not pass through any golf or polo fields, and in the second place, hunting has been abandoned for some years in this locality.

"You say that I am wrong about this, and as proof of it you ignore what I say about polo and golf and proceed to tell me what some one or two individuals had to say about the fox hunting. This is of no importance whatever, and I think it is very unnecessary in the consideration of as big a subject as the State parks, to inject into it those trivial details for the purpose of creating adverse criticism. These matters have no place in the consideration of this subject.

"Concerning the indiscreet threats which have been made and regarding which you ask my authority, I wish to say that I have already made the full facts and details of this known to one of the commission.

"You need not take the trouble to notify the commission of my position relative to this matter because I have already done so in the printed statement, a copy of which I am enclosing, and which contains some facts which I wish very much to reach your consideration."

SMITH WRITES MILLS, SCORING 'PRESSURE'

Governor Renews His Assertion That the Legislature Was 'Influenced' on Parks Decision.

CALLS MILLS PARTISAN

But Says His Letter Made Him Laugh—Insists Party Needs 'Rehabilitation.'

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26.—Governor Smith made public tonight a letter he had written to Representative Ogden L. Mills in which he renewed his assertion that the Legislature in its action on his park program had permitted itself to be swayed by outside influences.

The new letter was in reply to one from the Representative made public today. It dealt chiefly with the pending State park legislation, but it also contains a good deal about partisanship and a suggestion that Mr. Mills bestir himself "to bring the party leadership in harmony with the progressive thought of today, rehabilitate it and give it intelligent, upstanding, forward-looking leadership.

"Pedestrians traveling State Street in Albany early this morning," the Governor said, "could hear me laughing when I read from your letter the statement that the Legislature is carrying out their duties according to their own conscience and judgment, and I just wonder a little bit to myself if you did not smile while you were reading that."

Text of the Letter.

The Governor's letter to Congressman Mills follows:

Hon. Ogden L. Mills, 15 Broad Street, New York.

My Dear Congressman:

I am in receipt of your letter of June 25. Of course, you couldn't expect me to make any reply to your guess about the surplus in 1926 and 1927. Neither of us know what it will be, but if you had the understanding that I have all along claimed that you lack about the State's fiscal methods you would not be talking about anticipated surpluses a year away. You are absolutely wrong when you speak about any proposal to borrow money as being advanced to meet that situation.

Let me repeat again to you, as I have so often in the past, that the proposal to issue bonds for permanent improvements really originated as far back as 1923, when we started with the State's hospital and charitable program, and you yourself came to my rooms at the Biltmore and attended a meeting of prominent citizens who served as a committee to provide for the allotment of the first $12,500,000. The proposal to extend the system of building permanent improvements out of bond money was really a follow-up of the charitable and hospital proposal and originated in the Spring of 1924.

There was a State convention of your party following that session. You had a good deal to do with the drafting of the party platform. You were strangely silent on it, although you claimed to have opposed the principle in letters to the leaders of the party at Albany.

Had to Laugh.

I am sorry that I cannot agree with the statement that you make that you are lacking in influence with the leaders of your party in Albany. Really, Congressman, you gave me a few moments of genuine pleasure this morning.

Pedestrians traveling State Street in Albany early this morning could hear me laughing when I read from your letter the statement that the Legislature is carrying out their duties according to their own conscience and judgment, and I just wonder a little bit to myself if you did not smile while you were writing that.

Read, Congressman, what I said this morning about the Westchester delegation. Speak to some of the prominent members of your own party on the Park Council who interviewed the legislators during the last two weeks. They have surrendered every iota of judgment or conscience that they ever had to the powerful leaders of the party.

You say in your letter that the Park Commissions should be subject to the same kind of provision that the Conservation Commissioner is subjected to in his acquisition of land for public purposes. Who told you that there was any supervision over the Conservation Commissioner in his purchases of land outside of the Adirondack and Catskill preserves? The Conservation Commissioner purchased scandalously in the George tract, and he have to submit that to the Land Board? You admit that you do not know much about parks, so I suppose I had better answer that question for you. The answer to it is that he did not.

Let me further say to you, Congressman, that the Land Board has nothing whatever to say about the purchase of any land in the State of New York not included within the Adirondack and Catskill preserves.

Calls Land Board a Joke.

As Chairman of the State Arsenal Commission, I recently, in company with my brother Commissioners, purchased a square block of property in South Brooklyn for a new arsenal. That was not submitted to the Land Board. Every single park commission in this State for twenty-five years back has been passed upon from time to time without any reference whatever to the Land Board. The Palisades Interstate Park Commission, by gift and purchase, has acquired an immense tract of land at Bear Mountain without any reference whatever to the Land Board. The State Hospital Commission and the Commission on Mental Defectives have from time to time purchased enormous tracts of land, a thousand acres at a time, without submission to the Land Board, or, for that matter, without submission to any board. The Conservation Commissioner has bought considerable land in Saratoga Springs, adjoining the Saratoga reservation, without question by the Land Board, or, for that matter, any other board. The military authorities of the State have acquired large tracts of land, thousands of acres, for a State camp at Peekskill without reference to the Land Board, or to any other board.

The Legislature of 1923-24 in each of these two years appropriated a cold $1,000,000 and gave it to these same Park Commissions for the acquisition of land. Eighty per cent. of the $2,000,000 was spent for land without any reference to the Land Board or any other board. Valuable property in the City of New York was acquired by the Tunnel Commission without any reference to the Land Board or any other board.

You know just as well as I do that the Land Board is a joke. Its existence today constituted one of the powerful arguments for the proposal to amend the Constitution to reorganize the Government, and one of the salient features of that proposed Constitutional amendment is the elimination for all time of the Land Board. It is made up of the elective State officers. It is supposed to meet once a month. It has as an office staff the services of a clerk in the office of the Secretary of State, for which it pays $1,200 in addition to the salary that he receives in his position in the office of the Secretary of State. It has two appraisers, strictly political jobs exempt from the provisions of the Civil Service laws. One of them has been in the service of the State for a little while and the other was appointed some time in February or March of this year, and he is the owner of a paint shop in Buffalo.

As a matter of fact, Congressmen, the Land Board does not even today pass upon purchases in the Adirondacks preserve except in a strictly routine way. Not one of them know a thing about it. Nobody belonging to them knows anything about it. The Conservation Commissioner makes the purchase, submits a resolution to the Land Board defining the property, and a motion to adopt the report of the Conservation Commissioner is never questioned but automatically passes.

Added Board Men as Compromise.

You are wrong when you say that I am now for supervision, and I cannot help thinking that you must know that you are wrong, because, if, as you say, you listened in and were entertained by my speeches, you must have heard me repeatedly say that the Park Council, made up of the heads of the various regional Park Commissions, should pass upon all purchases of land made by these regional commissions. In order to satisfy the unreasonable demands of the leaders in your party in the Legislature, I was satisfied to add the active members of the Land Board (the men whose duties keep them in Albany all of the time) to the Park Council.

You know what the response to that was. The Lieutenant Governor said the Republican machine was well oiled and working smoothly, and the purpose of that machine was not a solution of the park question, but the destruction of any idea put forward by the Governor on the ground that he is becoming too serious a menace to the awkward aims and purposes of the Republican leaders at Albany.

You know the reason why the Land Board was dragged into this park question better than any other man in this State. Senator Knight stated it when he said, "The Land Board would act as a court of appeals for people that have a grievance against the plans of the Park Commissioners." You know the people that had a grievance. You know every one of them that have it today. Some of them live in your section of Long Island; some of them live on the South Shore of Long Island.

By the way, Congressman, where did you hear that before: "Act as a court of appeals for people that have grievances against the plans of the Park Commissioners"?

Of course, I pay no attention to your little side rally about democracy. I guess I can stand the test of that. I am pretty sure I can. What I have said is the truth. It may be bitter to some people, but it is nevertheless the truth.

Says Mills Confuses Argument.

Of course, it is a joke for you to compare the Park Commissioners with the Board of Managers of State Hospitals. You know the power given by law to the Board of Managers. It is purely advisory. Have you read the powers the Legislature conferred upon the Regional Park Commissioners? Don't you know that the first $2,000,000 was spent in accordance with the grant of powers just spoken of? Of course, you know that, and when you drag the Boards of Managers in, you only confuse the situation in an effort to bolster up your own very poor argument.

When you speak about charitable institutions being under the supervision and control of the fiscal supervisor you must know that that control is over the ordinary expenditures for food, fuel and clothing. There has never been any such supervision over the construction of permanent buildings or purchase of land.

The Park Commissioners make no claim to exemption from supervision. They themselves suggested that the Park Council supervise each regional commission. No other board or body is supervised in its purchase of land except the Conservation Commissioner, and he only with respect to the Adirondack and Catskill preserves. Of course, when you say that is all there is to the proposition as you see it, the only answer to that is that you do not see it.

Thinks Him a "Narrow Partisan."

This is the first time that I ever knew that you were such a narrow partisan. I know some Democrats who voted for you. They told me so. I never thought they were Republicans for that reason. You know that New York is a strong Republican State and you know that I could not have been elected last Fall without the votes of a great many Republicans, not only in New York City but throughout the State. Is it possible that you are narrow enough to believe that every Republican who voted for me last Fall became a Democrat? You don't believe that, because your party got the benefit of their vote for every other office except that of Governor and they all helped by their votes for Coolidge to increase your influence in Washington.

You certainly draw the line very close when you say that the men who voted for Alfred E. Smith have no claim whatever upon the Republican Party of this State. You do not mean that. You cannot be willing to have them divorce themselves for all time to come from your party.

Mr. Moses is a Republican. He usually votes the Republican ticket. But I have no doubt that he voted for me, and he tells me that he voted for you, but I have never held that against him. Does that shut him out of the Republican Party? I do not see that, Congressman.

Urges Party Rehabilitation.

What you want to do, instead of attempting to drive them out of your party, is to bring party leadership in harmony with the progressive thought of today, rehabilitate your party, give it intelligent, upstanding, forward-looking leadership. Nobody knows better than you that it has not got it in Albany today, and I am awaiting the receipt of a confidential word from you of your private opinion of that leadership.

There isn't any lack of frankness in anything I say. I am telling it to you squarely from the shoulder. I don't know who you voted for in 1924, but I presume that when you did vote you consulted your conscience and you cast that ballot with the thought in mind to help the country. When Moses voted for me he did the same thing for the State. Is he to be denied a right which is accorded to you and to every other citizen? I do not see that, Congressman, and you do not see it, either. I have no desire to wish Moses on the Republican Party. I am trying in every way to make him a Democrat. When it comes to that, Congressman, I would take everybody in your party out of it that I could, including yourself.

I am glad to hear from you always. I am going on a trip to the Governors' conference in Maine. I will be in Poland Springs Monday and Tuesday. After that I will be at the Biltmore Hotel.

Best wishes always.

Sincerely yours,
ALFRED E. SMITH.

SMITH-MILLS DEBATE WAITS

Representative, Yielding to Miller July 9, Asks for Later Date.

Representative Ogden L. Mills wrote to Governor Smith yesterday, asking that the proposed State bond issue debate between them at Carnegie Hall on July 9 be deferred to a later date, in view of the fact that former Governor Miller already had agreed to meet the Governor at Carnegie Hall on that evening. Mr. Mills said he agreed with Mr. Miller that a three-cornered discussion was impracticable and that he was stepping aside in favor of the former Governor. He added:

"I hope you will see your way clear to meet me in debate at some later date that you may find convenient. In view of the fact that your debate with Governor Miller will take place in New York City, why wouldn't it be a good idea for you and me to debate the question in one of the up-State cities, Syracuse, for instance?"

SEVERAL ARE INJURED AS BUS HITS PILLAR

Four Taken to Hospitals After Accident Near Jamaica—Others Cut by Glass.

Four persons were severely injured, and others received cuts from flying glass when a bus owned by the Jamaica Bus Company sidewiped an elevated pillar at Jamaica Avenue and Sutphin Boulevard near Jamaica, yesterday afternoon. The injured were Marie Storms, 10 years old, of 3 Pointer Avenue, Jamaica, removed to Mary Immaculate Hospital, suffering from fractures of both legs.

George Holland, 10, of 30 Ninety-seventh Avenue, Jamaica, removed to Jamaica Hospital suffering from severe cuts on both arms.

The bus, driven by Frank Ludwig, of 12,315 123rd Street, Richmond Hill, was bound from South Ozone Park to Jamaica. On the right side of Jamaica Avenue, just east of Sutphin Boulevard, there was a large deposit of mud. Ludwig attempted to swerve the bus out of the rut, and in doing so, it struck a pillar of the Jamaica Avenue elevated.

The accident was in front of the store of the J. and T. Adlke Flour and Feed Company. Employees aided in removing the injured. A temporary relief station was set up in the company's office, while ambulances were summoned. Reserves from the Jamaica Avenue Station, four blocks away, kept the large crowd, which gathered, in check.

Ludwig was taken to the Jamaica Avenue Station for questioning. He told the police that the accident was unavoidable, and was due to the bad condition of the street at that point.

GIVES DATA ON TYPHOID.

City Health Department Lays Recent Outbreak to Shellfish.

Pamphlets which contain an official report on the recent typhoid fever outbreak in New York City, submitted to Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan by Dr. Louis I. Harris, and which are being mailed to physicians throughout the city and to welfare and health societies in the five boroughs, contain data and detail on the findings of the department after careful study since the cessation of the epidemic last Winter.

A large part of the report is directed to showing that the outbreak, except for certain sporadic cases, was due to shellfish. Seventy-eight per cent. of the cases above normal are said to have been due to this cause.

Another point brought out in the report is that, contrary to general belief that persons more than 45 years old need have little fear of contracting the disease, persons beyond that age are decidedly liable to the contagion. Dr. Harris's report shows that 10 per cent. of the 914 cases found in the outbreak last Winter occurred among people more than 45 years old.

The milk supply in New York City, for a time thought to be partly involved as a source of infection, is completely absolved in the report.

MOTORMAN IN CRASH IS HELD FOR COURT

Knew Emergency Device Had Been Out of Order, Says Prosecutor.

DENIAL FROM COMPANY HEAD

Derail Could Not Have Prevented Accident, Says O'Toole—Blames Rain and Slide of Rocks.

John T. Grandy, operator of the one-man trolley car which ran into a derailed car at the foot of the incline near Ninth Street and Hoboken Avenue, Jersey City, Thursday night, when three persons were killed and forty-three others injured, was held yesterday in $20,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Judge Markley in the Second Criminal Court on the charge of manslaughter.

The Grand Jury will meet next Tuesday. Assistant Prosecutor Aloysius McMahon said he would present to it a statement in which the motorman is alleged to have declared that he knew a track device for derailing a car in an emergency had been out of order for two days.

Meanwhile four investigations of the accident were made during the day. Mr. McMahon made one, the Public Service Railway Corporation made a second and two others were made by Safety Commissioner William B. Quinn and the Public Utility Commission of Newark.

John L. O'Toole, Vice President of the Public Service Company, blamed the wreck on the loosening in the incline of rocks, which, he said, punctured the air tanks of the runaway car and made it impossible to stop it on slippery tracks before it struck the derailed car at the bottom.

"The handbrakes were in working order," he continued, "but the rain made the tracks so slippery the car slid down the entire incline."

He was asked if the derail was not out of order.

"The derail had nothing to do with it," he replied. "It is at the top of the hill, and Grandy did not know he could not control the car until he was some distance down the hill."

Grandy's alleged statement concerning the derail was mentioned to Mr. O'Toole.

"I don't know Grandy made such a statement," he answered. "In fact his statement to us in our own investigation refutes it."

Safety Commissioner Quinn blamed the wreck on the operation of the Pavonia Avenue trolleys by one man on each car.

"I was convinced," he said, "that had another man with the motorman composed the crew of the car, which we have fought for, they might have been able to check the rush of the car by applying the brakes in the rear. This matter is not closed by any means. This investigation will be continued. I have been informed that the railway mechanics paid little or no attention to keeping the handbrakes in perfect order."

Of the injured, ten still remain in St. Francis and City Hospitals, but only two are seriously hurt. They are Mecislaus Orlowski, 15, a high school pupil, of 180 Sixth Street, Jersey City, who suffered a fracture of the arm and internal injuries, who is at City Hospital, and William Burns, 68 years old, of 68 St. Paul's Avenue, Jersey City, who sustained a fracture of the skull and is at St. Francis Hospital. Henry Irvin, driver of the car which was struck, is still at St. Francis Hospital with what are believed to be internal injuries.

Fifty-Million-Dollar Merger Plan Is Being Worked Out in the West.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Announcement of a merger of interests of the General Motors Corporation and the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company is expected next week. In Chicago and Detroit today officials and bankers of both companies were working out details.

John Hertz, head of the Yellow Cab Company, and Henry D. Ancona, attorney, were in Detroit conducting negotiations with the General Motors officials. In Chicago representatives of the Goldman-Sachs and Lehman banking interests of New York, which a year ago bought a large stock interest in the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company, were reported in conference with other officials of the Yellow companies.

The basis for the deal, which will be one of the largest consolidations in the recent history of the automobile industry, is said to be the desire of the General Motors Corporation to enter the taxicab manufacturing field. The corporation has no bus and cab division, while its principal competitors are already in the field or about to enter it.

The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company has largely covered the experimental phases of bus and cab manufacture. It has also developed a steady outlet for its products through its community of interest with taxi and motor bus services in several cities in the United States.

While the terms of the merger have not been finally agreed on, it was reported in La Salle Street that it would be a $50,000,000 deal.

SMITH-MASTICK DEAL ON PARKS IS CHARGED

represents them in the Legislature." If the things which Governor Smith has charged against the delegation are true that statement is correct. And, if the rumors that are being passed from one to another throughout the county to the effect that your original support of the Governor's park plan was based upon a trade, through gratitude or otherwise, with the Governor, under which you obtained his signature and his commendation of the iniquitous, vicious, purely political charter plan which you have caused to be submitted to the voters of the county this Fall, in the belief that your political power, coupled with public apathy, would put it into effect, then the situation is worse than the Governor has said and worse than I can describe in this letter, which is going to you through the United States mails.

In view of the fact that immediately upon the signing of the bill, the political group supporting the charter began to capitalize on the Governor's "commendation"; that your consideration to the statement of one of your colleagues that the Governor had "so far" signed all of his bills, and he anticipated that he would sign the charter measure, and having in mind the Governor's presence at the Westchester Chamber of Commerce dinner, where the charter was discussed, it is perfectly apparent that there was some sort of understanding involving the charter.

There are many other indications of an understanding between you and your colleagues and the Governor that would, if true, give him ample room to say that he had a definite promise. If there was such a promise, and it involved the attempt of a political group to destroy representative government in Westchester County through the so-called charter plan, the people have a right to know the facts.

The Governor does not veil his statement when he says that your refusal to carry out your pledge, as made, is due to an "invisible government, to "influences controlling the action of the members of the Legislature." I demand to know if that reference is made to the same organization which is now, through the so-called charter, endeavoring to destroy representative government and perpetuate "invisible government" in Westchester County. Very truly yours,

RICHARD H. LEE.

The committee appointed to perfect a permanent organization to oppose the charter consists of Mrs. Lee, Winfield L. Ball, Mrs. Ralph Louis, Henry T. Price, Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, Mrs. Casper Whitney, Mrs. Benjamin A. Howes and Mrs. C. A. Blauvelt, all residents of Westchester County.

Sentiment Divides on Party Lines.

Prominent Republicans in Westchester County, which bore the brunt of Governor Smith's attacks on Republican legislators who opposed his State parks program, sided with their legislative representatives yesterday when a canvass of sentiment was sought. Unwilling to be quoted, they nevertheless insisted that the nonpartisan sentiment throughout the county was in favor of the Republican members of the Senate and Assembly in the controversy between them and the Governor. Democrats who live in the county were equally sure that the Governor was right in all his contentions. The fact that the county is exempted from the provisions of the Thayer bill may have had much to do with the viewpoint of the Republican residents.

"We are not much interested in the Governor's park program," said one Republican, expressing the attitude of several others who were asked to comment on the situation. "The way we view it up here is that the controversy is purely a political one. Each side is striving for political advantage, the Governor to maintain his leadership, and the Republican legislators to keep their party from going to pieces. The Governor has said that the Westchester inhabitants should feel ashamed at the conduct of their representatives at Albany. That is not the way we feel about it. They are just saving themselves from being wiped off the political map."

SMITH IS CAUSTIC IN PARK BILL VETO

that the Legislature at the extraordinary session either wanted to continue the deal or did not have nerve enough to admit that the exceptions were not justified originally.

Perhaps the Legislature can explain to the public why another exception was made of the Erie Commission. Perhaps they can also explain whether the two County Commissions were excepted after it was ascertained that the legislators from these sections would not vote as they had been expected to at that extraordinary session in favor of the Park Council's program. Perhaps the Legislature can also explain to all the other park regions of the State why they should be under the supervision of an obsolete, cumbersome, unequipped body like the Land Board while exceptions are made for three favored regions.

There is no use replying that the Palisades Park is an interstate agency. That has nothing to do with it. The land purchases in this case are in the State of New York, with the State of New York, with State money and under a New York State commission, and in this respect are just like any other park purchases; and surely if any supervision whatever is needed it must be over a county commission like Westchester or Erie, which, though it acts as a State agency, is under the direction of Commissioners not appointed by the Governor or approved by the Senate.

There is one feature of this Land Board approval which has been grossly misrepresented, and which I want to make absolutely clear. The Land Board approval does not involve simply large parcels of land in all the different regions of the State.

It must be kept in mind that one tract to be purchased is often made up of a number of small parcels in the hands of different owners. What is much more important is that the bond issue, as voted by the people, provides also for parkways, and parkways are made up of hundreds and even of thousands of parcels of rights-of-way. Just as an illustration, in the case of Bronx Parkway over 1,200 parcels were taken.

See Way Opened to Delays.

The acquisition of these parcels under the bill, with the exceptions above noted, all require the consent of the Land Board. Where there is opposition of any kind, the owners would refuse to negotiate and there would be a trial in the case of every parcel. In this way a few owners could hold up a whole project indefinitely and wear out the park authorities and other State officials. Even if the Land Board approved acquisition the authorities might not be able to agree on a price and they would then have to come back and argue with the Land Board to permit application or condemnation.

Not only would opponents of the program hold it up in this way but people who live within a mile would hold up the State for high prices by appearing before the Land Board against condemnation and more particularly application. Obviously, both the park authorities and the Land Board would be in continuous session. This result is so absurd that any one ought to be able to see that it is unworkable. I want the people of the State to understand this so that they will not assume that a perfunctory approval of just a few purchases is involved.

The questions at issue have been thoroughly discussed and must be fairly clear to the general public. The motives which have actuated the Legislature are partly pure politics and partly the effort to play the game as certain logrollers and wealthy residents of Long Island want it played. I have considered this subject most carefully with members of the State Council of Parks. I have sponsored their program after assuring myself that they were right and that they understood what they were doing and that they were the right people to be entrusted with this great undertaking.

Upon their advice, I now again refuse to accept the Thayer bill and stick to the principle advocated by the Park Council that no obsolete political agency should be placed over the park authorities. I have never been more convinced than I am now after the extraordinary session, that this is the right point of view and that by refusing to compromise the principle we shall win a victory in the end.

For these reasons the bill is disapproved.

WOMAN M. P. ACCUSES GOVERNMENT OF SPYING

Miss Wilkinson, Laborite, Offers a Question That Is Expected to Startle Commons.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The Government is "shadowing" the Opposition, thinks Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Labor's only woman M. P., and to verify her suspicions she has addressed to the Home Secretary a parliamentary question with a distinct flavor of Oppenheim about it.

"Will the Home Secretary state on whose authority and for what reason two police officers, disguised as waiters, attended a private dinner given by an ex-Cabinet Minister to several other honorable members of this house at the Boulogne Restaurant, Soho, on May 14?" the question reads.

The dinner, it appears, was to raise funds for the Left Wing organ, The Sunday Worker. Those present included John Wheatley, former Minister of Health; Miss Wilkinson, and several other members of the "Clyde," or Extremist group. During the dinner, in the course of which vigorous speeches advocating the Left Wing labor policy were made, they aroused two waiters, who remained attentive to the speakers and their speeches to the end.

The waiters were not what they seemed. It is admitted that it would take an expert to distinguish between a waiter's and a detective's feet, but well-known detectives always curl their mustaches upward, while those of waiters, as a part of the general depression of their calling, droop like weeping willows. At any rate the diners, suspecting espionage, made subsequent inquiries and Miss Wilkinson's question is one of the results. A certain liveliness is expected in the House when the question is put on Monday, since the Labor members say they will demand that the Government put an end to alleged systematic espionage against the radical section of the Labor movement.

LONDON IS AMUSED AT RIGA 'UP IN ARMS'

Officials Smile at News Report That Visit of Fleet Vessels Has Spurred Mobilization.

LONDON, June 26.—Officials could hardly keep from laughing out loud over a special dispatch from The Evening News correspondent at Riga saying the Bolshevist Government had ordered the immediate mobilization of the 1900 and 1906 class as a result of the visit to Riga of the British Second Light Cruiser Squadron and the Fifth Destroyer Division.

Despite the fact the officers and sailors are dancing and generally enjoying themselves at functions in their honor at Leningrad, the Pravda reports all Russia is "up in arms" over the visit of the warships, which is really being "only a rehearsal for the next European war, when England will visit the Baltic in an effort to capture Leningrad."

Three Soviet cavalry divisions under General Budenny and four divisions of the Red Army are maneuvering near Leningrad, according to the same dispatch, for the purpose of defending the city from the attack of an imaginary fleet while the Bolshevist Boy Scouts are distributing thousands of proclamations informing the Russians that England is threatening Russia with war.

BERLIN, June 26.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, who commanded the Los Angeles on its transatlantic flight last Autumn, and Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the famous Norwegian explorer, will cooperate in a Zeppelin Polar expedition, if plans are tured here today materialize.

After a conference late this afternoon between the German International Polar Exploration Society and the Zeppelin company it was decided that the latter would build a Zeppelin airship for Arctic exploration.

It will be commanded by Dr. Eckener, with Dr. Nansen in charge of the scientific department. The Polar Zeppelin will have a capacity of 100,000 cubic metres as against the 60,000 cubic metres capacity of the Los Angeles.

The Zeppelin company agrees to defray the construction cost of the airship, while the exploration society will take over that of the exploration, which it hopes to raise by an international subscription.

The Polar Zeppelin will cost between $3,500,000 and $3,000,000.

SAYS SYMINGTON TRIED TO TRAP WIFE

MORE DENIALS FROM WIFE

Testifies Husband Ejected Her From Home—Says Chambers Admitted He Faced Financial Ruin.

A new sensation was sprung by the defense yesterday in the divorce action of Thomas H. Symington, wealthy manufacturer and inventor, against Ida May Symington, Mrs. Margaret A. Pinkham, mother of the defendant, testified that Symington told her last year that her daughter had confessed she was the mother of an illegitimate son and tried to get her to corroborate her daughter's "confession."

Mrs. Pinkham said that Symington telephoned her at her home in Maplewood, Mass., in May, 1924, and asked her to meet him at the Touraine Hotel in Boston on "very important business." At that time, she said, she knew nothing of the divorce action, although it had actually been started. She said that Symington met her in the lobby, kissed her, told her he was very happy, and took her to his suite for luncheon.

"We had a heart-to-heart talk," Mrs. Pinkham went on. "He said: 'Ida has told me all about her past life, and I have told her all about my past. She told me that she had an illegitimate son when she was only sixteen years old.'

"He also told me," Mrs. Pinkham continued, "that he had just found his family out and that they just wanted his money, but that he would not let them have it. 'I am so glad my wife has this son,' he said, 'so I can make him my legal heir.'"

Dumfounded, Says Witness.

Mrs. Pinkham said that Symington told her that he could not adopt the child until he could prove it was his wife's, and that he asked her to sign a paper and to tell her all about its birth.

"How could she have said such a thing?' I asked," said Mrs. Pinkham. "I was dumfounded and amazed. The only thing I could think of was that his family had tortured her so that she had taken this means to get the best of them."

At this point Supreme Court Justice John Ford adjourned the trial until 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon. Max D. Steuer, counsel for the defense, said that the child in question was not the son of Mrs. Symington, but was her married sister's boy. He said that on the trip to Boston Symington persuaded Mrs. Pinkham to sign a paper bearing out the "confession," thinking it would help her daughter, and that Mrs. Pinkham was shocked to learn from her daughter a few days later that Symington had started suit for divorce.

Mrs. Symington spent about three hours on the witness stand yesterday. During the morning she completed her direct testimony, and then for an hour and one-half withstood cross-examination by John Wallace Young, her husband's attorney. On Thursday she denied all the charges involving her with Maurice Fatio, architect, and the first of two charges involving Talbot W. Chambers, young coal merchant, who testified against her last week. Yesterday she denied the second charge of misconduct with Chambers, dealing with the night of March 16, 1924.

Tells of Trip to Apartment.

On this occasion, Mrs. Symington said, Chambers drove her and another couple to New York from her husband's home at Morristown, N. J. After dropping the others, she said, Chambers took her to her apartment at 125 East Sixty-third Street. Denying Chambers's testimony that they arrived about 11 o'clock, that no one else was in the apartment, and that he remained for two hours, she said that it was after 12 o'clock when they arrived, that two maids were present and that Chambers left after half an hour. She testified that Chambers asked permission to remain and take a drink, which he did from his own flask. She said she did not drink.

Mrs. Symington testified that Chambers called on her later, appearing depressed, and told her that coal strikes had threatened his business with bankruptcy.

"If that happens," she quoted him, "I'll be ruined. I'll shoot myself."

Chambers asked her, she went on, if her husband and brother-in-law were not large buyers of coal and if she thought they could do something for him.

This testimony was in line with Steuer's cross-examination of Chambers, from whom he tried to force admissions that he had traded his testimony for financial assistance.

Persecuted, She Declares.

Mrs. Symington denied Dr. Charles Pope's testimony that she had told him her husband was the only one to whom she had confessed her misconduct. She quoted the surgeon as saying, "I feel like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde talking to both of you this way." She denied asking Dr. Pope to appeal to her husband's "Southern chivalry" on her behalf.

Charging Symington with "brutality, insult, torture and persecution" after he began his divorce action, Mrs. Symington said that a strange man broke into her apartment in Sixty-third Street one night and that she had to put new locks on the door. Later, she said, she went to Morristown, and on her return to her apartment found that her husband had broken in through the kitchen window and taken numerous letters and papers from her desk.

Mrs. Symington said that her husband told her once he would allow her to get a divorce, but that when she went to his lawyer's office at his request he had threatened to ruin me and send me out of the country if I dared to cross him in his divorce suit."

How her husband ejected her from his home in Morristown after an all-night scene, last September, was then described by Mrs. Symington. She said that she was about to drive her car out of the garage, when a car drove up with Symington, his lawyer, a chauffeur, and a mechanic.

Mrs. Symington testified her husband called her "a cheap, vile woman" and pushed her "all over the garage." She said she ran into the house and telephoned the Chief of Police, who came to the house, but appeared to be on her husband's side. Symington went through her desk searching for papers and called her "nasty names" when she protested, she said. When she ran down and asked the chauffeur to help her, she said, Symington called her a "crook" and ordered the man not to do so.

Ejected from Home, She Testifies.

Returning to New York, Mrs. Symington said she went back to Morristown later, finding the telephone and water cut off. Her husband, his lawyer, the sheriff and several others entered the house, she said, and her husband ordered "his hirelings" to remove all the food, clothing and furniture from the house, so that she could not stay there.

She said that the only illumination was a candle, and when she lit it her husband tried to take it away from her. On her appeal for a little light for herself and her child (a daughter by her first marriage), she said, he let her keep the candle. Symington let her daughter go to bed, she said, but refused to let her do so. She said he went to bed and that she remained downstairs, refusing to leave. The next morning, she went on, her husband's "army" pushed her out of the house and sent her daughter and baggage out after her.

Mrs. Symington said she returned to New York and moved from the East Sixty-third Street apartment to 1,150 Fifth Avenue. She said her husband and his lawyer called a policeman and tried to keep her from moving her furniture, but that she convinced the policeman the furniture was her own and was allowed to remove it.

Mrs. Symington was unshaken by cross-examination. After denying all the charges against her, she was asked:

"Have you admitted to anybody that you have been untrue to your husband?"

"No," she replied.

"Either in writing or orally?"

"Neither."

"You have been true to him all during your married life?"

"I certainly have."

"Have you ever done anything that would bring disgrace on him?"

"Never."

Describes Fatio's Visit.

Mrs. Symington admitted that she had attended cocktail parties, but said she never drank herself. She admitted that Fatio was attired in bathrobe, pajamas and slippers when he had breakfast in her bedroom on one occasion in Morristown, but insisted that others were in the room at the time.

Symington's attorney offered letters written by Mrs. Symington to her husband, but Justice Ford refused to admit them on the ground that they were confidential communications from wife to husband. Questioned about an affidavit she made a year ago in an application for alimony, in which she said she had no funds to defend the divorce action, Mrs. Symington said she had pawned part of her jewels to pay lawyers' fees, checks for $4,500 paid to Steuer and another lawyer being introduced in evidence by the plaintiff.

Friends of Mrs. Symington testified they had been present on the occasions when her named was linked with Chamber's and Fatio's, and that nothing had been wrong. They also said that pajamas, slippers and dressing gowns were a customary breakfast costume at week-end house parties in New Jersey, Long Island and Westchester.

These witnesses were Lillian W. Newlin, Frank D. Vellier, a real estate operator; Mrs. J. Ellis Hoffman and Mrs. Ellen M. Upmann. Mrs. Upmann testified that before hebegan his divorce action Symington called her aside, said he and his wife were getting on each other's nerves, and that he wanted his freedom.

MRS. BOBE GETS ORDERS.

American Agency Must Show Its Relations With Lloyds.

An order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Bondy requires Finn Christensen, Vice President of the American Agency Association, Inc., to submit to an examination concerning what authority his company has to act as an agent of Lloyds, London. The order was obtained by William Otis Badger Jr., counsel for Mrs. Edith Bobe, who was robbed of a $10,000 necklace last September. The necklace was insured for its full value with Lloyds through an agent of the American Agency. The binder had been issued about ten days before the robbery occurred but the policy had not been delivered. Payment was refused by Lloyds.

The order also requires the American Agency to submit for examination its books, accounts, letters and cables so that its business relations with Lloyds may be disclosed. Mr. Badger as Mrs. Bobe's counsel sued Lloyds' but Federal Judge Knox decided that the Court was without jurisdiction because the defendant was a foreign corporation without a license to do business here, and that the action could not stand without permission of the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Badger said that the present proceeding against the American Agency was to fix responsibility for the payment of the insurance, and to expose the precise relations between Lloyds and its numerous agents in this country.

Bars Estate From 6 Children Till They Are 50, In the Hope They Will Learn Respect for Him

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, June 26.—The six children of the late James M. Reid, who died at Granite Springs, Westchester County, on June 5, last, will receive no part of his estate, according to his will, until they are 50 years old, "in the hope and expectation that they will have developed a greater degree of respect and consideration for their father than they have shown during my lifetime."

Mr. Reid was a builder and contractor. He built three of Mount Vernon's schoolhouses and several apartment houses.

Mrs. Emily Reid, his widow, of 314 South Fifth Avenue, Mount Vernon, with whom several of the children live, is cut off with only her dower share in his real estate.

Although Reid is reported to have left a large estate, the petition accompanying the will, filed for probate today with Surrogate George A. Slater, places the value of the real estate at "over $10,000 and of the personal property at over $10,000."

The will, regarded as one of the most unusual ever filed in Westchester County, was dated April 24, 1923, and named the Mount Vernon Trust Company as the executor.

The company is authorized to collect all of the rents and interest and to reinvest the money. Reid directed in the will that all of the money be allowed to accumulate and equal shares paid to the children as they reached the stipulated age of 50 years.

Reid provided that in the event of the death of any of the children, their share was to be placedwith the general fund and divided among the survivors equally. The heirs of any of the children who might die before the provisions of the will could be carried out will receive nothing, according to the will.

The children affected by the will are: William Reid, Emily P. Reid and Douglass Reid of 314 South Fifth Avenue, Mount Vernon; Maxwell Reid of 19 Ashland Street, Newburyport, Mass.; Gates E. Ronley of Cos Cob, Conn., and Alice Reid of Greenwich, Conn. Their ages range from 17 to 34 years.

RAID PLANT, SEIZE BOOKS AS OBSCENE

Police Confiscate 298 Copies of "My Life," by Frank Harris, and Arrest 4 Men.

FOR PRIVATE DISTRIBUTION

Attorney for Printers Says Clients Are Not Sellers—Mystery About Complainant.

Police from the Special Service Division yesterday raided the Up-to-Date Printing Company at 195 Canal Street, arrested four men and confiscated 298 copies of the second volume of "My Life," by Frank Harris, author, critic and former editor of Pearson's Magazine.

Those arrested were Nathan Pomerants, President of the printing concern; Hman Meilstein, Secretary; Harry Mishkin, manager, and Esar Levine, who described himself as a student. It was said that Levine assumed responsibility for having the book published at the raided plant. All four were charged with violating Section 1,141 of the Penal law, which forbids the publication and circulation of obscene and immoral literature.

Sergeant Penella and two others of the Special Service Division made the raid and arrests. The books and prisoners were taken to Oak Street Station, where the books were held as evidence to be used this morning in Tombs Court, when the four men will be arraigned.

Louis Waldman of Waldman & Lieberman, attorneys, at 302 Broadway, arranged for bail of $500 each for the prisoners. According to Walman, Penella made the raid without a search warrant.

"When the raid was being pulled I was called over to the printing office and I asked for the warrant," Waldman said. "They didn't have any and I protested. They have no right to make a raid, conduct a search and confiscate property like that without a warrant."

The attorney said that the book was being privately printed for distribution among friends of Harris and that his clients were not concerned in any way with the selling or publication of the book except as printers. Asked who had made the complaint, Waldman said that, undoubtedly John S. Sumner, Secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, was responsible for it. The police, when asked who made the complaint, said that that information was "confidential."

At his home last night Mr. Sumner said that he did not make the complaint, but would certainly have acted had it known that such a book was being printed here. "After the arrest the police asked me if I would cooperate with them in the case," he said, "and I told them that I would. I do not know who made the complaint."

At the Elizabeth Street Station, the headquarters of the Special Service Division, no report of the raid and arrests had been received last night, according to the officer in charge. He said that ordinarily such a report would not come in until this morning. At Oak Street Station the lieutenant on duty said that he did not know who the complainant was. The records there show 280 books under seal, eighteen less than the number confiscated, according to Waldman. The printing order called for 1,000, and according to Waldman only 298, the number confiscated, had come from the presses.

The first volume of "My Life" was published privately in Paris by the author who, it was said yesterday, is now living there. In 1918, while Harris was connected with Pearson's magazine, the August issue was barred from the mails because of an article "Why I Wore Pink Clothes," supposed to have been written by a girl, but later credited to Guido Bruno. Harris's best known work was a biography of Oscar Wilde.

PUSHED UNDER TRAIN IN SUBWAY CRUSH

Surging Rush-Hour Jam at 34th Street B. M. T. Station Crowds Man Off Platform.

MANGLED BUT MAY RECOVER

Car Passes Over Body—Firemen Work 20 Minutes to Make Rescue as Police Try to Calm Hordes.

Walter Jench, 40 years old, of 410 First Street, College Point, L. I., was crowded off the northbound platform of the B. M. T. subway station at Thirty-fourth Street and Broadway in the rush hour yesterday afternoon and fell in front of an approaching local train. Although he was badly injured he is expected to recover.

For twenty minutes his body was wedged between the roadbed and the forward trucks of the second car. Trainmen and firemen made an extraordinary effort to release him, while the police reserves of the West Thirtieth Street Station tried to calm a huge crowd on the platforms thrown into panic by the accident.

Until the rescue was effected local northbound traffic was tied up, and the train under which Jench had fallen was not permitted to discharge its passengers because it was feared they would only accentuate the jam on the platforms, which the police had difficulty in controlling.

Jench was conscious when released. An ambulance from New York Hospital had been called and Dr. Blowen gave first aid treatment and hurried the injured man to Bellevue, where it was found he had sustained a compound fracture of the right leg. The hospital surgeons discovered that he also had received a fracture of the skull, fracture of the left leg and possible internal injuries.

Jench had been waiting for a northbound local train when he was pushed off the platform by the surging crowd.

Joseph Werns, 1,372 East Fifty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, motorman of the train, told the police that he had seen Jench topple from the platform, but that it had been impossible to stop the train in time to save the man.

A projection from the forward trucks caught a fold in Jench's clothing and carried him several feet beyond the spot where he fell. When his clothes were released he fell limp into the depression between the rails, where the forward car passed entirely over him.

The police found no eyewitness of the accident other than the motorman. In the excitment that followed some one turned in a fire alarm that brought firemen under Deputy Chief "Smoky Joe" Martin, Captain William Daniels and Fireman John Nelson of Hook and Ladder Company 14 responding from Thirty-third Street near Sixth Avenue. They crawled under the train, uncoupled the first and second cars and directed the motorman to run the first car forward. When he did so it gave them more room in which to undertake the rescue.

While the rescue work was in progress several women became hysterical and were treated by two physicians who were among the passengers waiting for trains.

North-bound local trains on leaving the Union Square station were shunted to the express tracks so they could make a detour of the block at Thirty-fourth Street.

New Citizens Inspect The Times.

Eighty newly made American citizens drawn from twenty-four nationalities last evening inspected the plant of THE NEW YORK TIMES under the direction of the League of American Citizenship. 25 TO 40 YEARS FOR KIDNAPPER OF BOY

Mrs. Jones Still Hides the Fate of 3-Year-Old Raimonde Von Maluski.

DENOUNCED BY JUDGE

With the trace of a cynical smile, Mrs. Harold Jones listened calmly yesterday as Judge Collins in General Sessions denounced her as "cold-blooded and heartless" and sentenced her to from twenty-five to forty years in Auburn Prison for kidnapping three-year-old Raimonde Von Maluski on March 29 last, from in front of his home at 600 West 178th Street.

Only a few minutes before, in the presence of the father of the missing boy, she repeated to Judge Collins in the latter's chambers that she knew nothing of the whereabouts of Raimonde. Answering the plea of the father that she furnish even the faintest lead that might establish whether the boy was dead or alive, she challenged Von Maluski with the demand: "You tell where he is."

She spoke only once later when she was arraigned for sentence and heard herself called by the Court "utterly bad" and the probable slayer of the boy. That was when her lawyer, Philip Russo, asked her if she desired to make a statement, and she answered: "The only thing I want to say is, why don't the Von Maluskis tell the truth."

"I believe you have killed that child," Judge Collins said to the woman, and then, referring to the fruitless attempts to learn something from her, added: "I told her in my chambers today that if she gave information she might get consideration."

"She paid no attention to the suggestion," the Judge continued, his eyes fixed steadily on the woman, whose unconcerned demeanor obviously was annoying him. "I got some information through the District Attorney that the child may be dead. The fact that she"—indicating Mrs. Jones with a wave of his hand—"took the child in a taxicab away from the life of the city suggests that, since the child cannot be located, there is only one thing to believe—that the boy, on being taken to a lonely place, was killed."

Spurned Woman's Advice.

Judge Collins then mentioned the first of several incidents in connection with the accusation against Mrs. Jones which had been kept secret heretofore by the authorities. This was in relation to a trip in an automobile prison van Mrs. Jones made with another woman prisoner.

The second woman was said to have urged Mrs. Jones to reveal the whereabouts of Raimonde and thus save herself a long prison term.

"When I asked her regarding the information obtained from her fellow-prisoner in the van to the effect that Mrs. Jones had said, 'I can't return it; the child is dead,' she told me that the woman who gave me the information was drunk," added Judge Collins.

The Court then recalled that the woman had figured in at least two bigamous marriages, but deserted her first two husbands after bringing children into the world. He remarked that she revealed herself to be "without heart" through her disregard for the future of her offspring.

Judge Collins commented on the fact that some officials believed the woman was insane, then revealed that she had been sent to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue in 1920 and was found sane.

Mother Remains Outside.

The father of the boy with other relatives heard Mrs. Jones sentenced but Mrs. Alice Von Maluski, the child's mother, remained in the corridor.

Mrs. Jones, who is 41 years old, and lived at 61 Third Avenue at the time of the kidnapping, took little interest in the proceedings. After her sentence she was taken downstairs to Special Sessions, where, after her conviction and sentence had been officially recorded, she was formally discharged on a charge that she stole a stickpin and $10 from the father of the missing boy a few weeks before the kidnapping.

This charge and the fact that Von Maluski had ejected her from his home in the basement of the apartment house of which he is the superintendent, were accepted by the police as sufficient motives for the kidnapping.

In a last effort to induce Mrs. Jones to talk Mrs. Grace Campbell, a court attendant, sat with her in the detention room of General Sessions yesterday before her arraignment. Mrs. Jones curtly announced that she had nothing to tell "and that is the end of it."

Von Maluski rode to court with his wife and his brother, Robert, 21 years old, in a motorcycle side car. When they were riding home, the motorcycle was struck by a truck at Park Avenue and Seventy-eighth Street. The Von Maluskis were thrown out and received slight bruises. After being attended by an ambulance surgeon at Lenox Hill Hospital they continued on home by subway, the motorcycle having been crushed.

It was understood that deputy sheriffs would take Mrs. Jones to Auburn this morning.

GETS 6-CENT VERDICT IN 'STOLEN KISS' CASE

Miss Bella Wiener, 18 years old, received a verdict for 6 cents for a "stolen kiss" in Justice Harry E. Lewis's part of the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday. She had sued for $10,000 damages against Jacob Lishinsky, 47 years old, of 13 East Seventeenth Street, Manhattan, her former employer.

The trial was concluded in less than an hour. Miss Wiener, who lives at 2,058 Eighty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, testified she had obtained a position with the defendant by answering an advertisement for a bookkeeper immediately after she had been graduated from a business school. At the end of her first week in Lishinsky's place, she testified, he called her into his office to discuss bookkeeping and accounts, and suddenly interrupted the discussion by kissing her.

Lishinsky denied the charge. He is short in stature and the young woman is nearly six feet tall. When he was again asked if he had kissed her he glanced at her and said "How could I?" His defense was that he had called the young woman into his office to tell her that her work wasn't satisfactory and that she would have to find another position.

TRADE CONVENTION ENDS.

Rear Admiral Palmer Addresses Delegates Gathered at Seattle.

SEATTLE, June 26.—Addresses delivered by Rear Admiral L. C. Palmer, President of the United States Fleet Corporation; Cary W. Cook, Chairman of the Board of the Hawaiian-American Steamship Company, and Edmund A. Walsh, Regent of the Georgetown University School for Foreign Service of Washington, D. C., closed today the convention of the National Foreign Trade Council. Tomorrow the delegates will be taken on an excursion to British Columbia.

The morning session was devoted to a series of group meetings which discussed various phases of foreign trade, and among the speakers was Frederick B. Shipley of New York. Enthusiastic tributes were paid to James A. Farrell, President, and O. K. Davis, Secretary of the council, at the final session this afternoon.

The spirit of friendly and neighborly understanding that has so long existed between Canada and the United States will continue to mark the future industrial relations of the two countries a group of Canadian leaders told the delegates.

Next year's convention will be held in Charleston, S. C.

KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 26.—Sergeant Douglas E. Logan, a chief rigger of the Sixty-first Service Squadron, United States Army Air Service, was instantly killed at Mitchel Field this morning when a Martin bomber crashed when twenty feet in the air and a fragment from the port propeller pierced his heart.

The bomber recently had been overhauled and was taken from the hangar for a test flight early today. Lieutenant J. A. Wilson was at the controls and three enlisted men rode in the observers' and gunners' pits. When the big machine rose from the ground a sudden crosswise gust of wind careeped it to one side and the left undercarriage struck the ground. This caused the whole ship to slew violently to one side and the port propeller struck the ground. The blade was splintered and pieces were driven through the fuselage. One struck Sergeant Logan in the chest. The other occupants of the airplane were uninjured.

DEPLORES TRANSIT POLITICS

Lucius S. Storrs Advises Street Railway Men to Work in Open.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., June 26 (AP).—"Get transportation out of politics," is the advice of Lucius S. Storrs, managing director of the American Electric Railway Association, as given in an address prepared for the convention of the New York State transit men today.

"There are some," he said, "who hold it is inevitable that our industry should remain in politics. I do not in the slightest respect agree with this assertion.

"There is a wide difference between the earnest officeholder who is anxious to do constructive work for his community and the type of professional politician I have in mind. I strongly advocate working with our public officials. But I insist that it should be work in the open. Only by such effort will much badly needed legislative assistance, both State and national, be obtained."

Mr. Storrs added that wise and progressive traction men were rapidly adding bus service.

Plaza Guest Fined as Annoyer.

Ziegfried Goosens, a marine engineer living at the Hotel Plaza, was found guilty in the West Side Court yesterday of disorderly conduct for annoying a woman and was fined $10. Claire Huntington of 46 West Forty-ninth Street had him arrested on Wednesday night. A few hours after Goosens, according to his testimony through an interpreter, landed here from South America.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, June 27—It is neither good style nor good sense to wear a heavy cravat during the torrid term. Lighten up the weight! Brighten up the pattern! You'll want these new scarfs made of imported French hand-printed crepe. They're magnifique! as the Parisian exclaims when he gets excited. Each one silk-lined for added luxury. Unusually colorful, yet unmistakably tasteful. The small, graceful knot is the only sort proper to wear in warm weather with the collar-attached shirt. Exclusive, but not expensive.

SHEPHERD FREED IN M'CLINTOCK CASE

the place and every one of them was in action. They abandoned even the least semblance of respect for the court and leaped madly to the best positions, climbing on the rail of the jury box, as jurymen ducked from their flashes. Wherever one turned to escape them came more spouts of white light, and as in their haste, the photographer used extra large charges of powder, the booms were deafening.

A man jumped up on a chair in front of the jury box, another behind him, another on the counsel tables, directly in front of the Judge. They yelled at Stewart and at each other.

"Get him in front," "Get out of the way, Jim," "For the love of Mike, give me a chance."

Crash, roar, more flames and smoke, till it was almost impossible to see across the room. Chairs were overturned and women who had rushed forward were pushed and shoved aside until in terror at the inferno they cried out in fright and strove desperately to get out of the jam.

Judge Laughs at the Uproar.

Judge Lynch, who only last week was elected Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, rapped once or twice for order, and laughed heartily at the excitement. He was standing in full view of the flashes.

Shepherd, who had recovered in a few moments and had shaken the hands of the jurymen, clambered up behind the bench and shook hands heartily with Judge Lynch, who said something to him, smilingly.

"That's it, just a minute, hold it," yelled the photographers, fighting to get this unusual picture, and the flashes reared again. For fully ten minutes, and it seemed an hour, this mad uproar lasted until everybody in the room was dusted with the fine ash of the flashlight powder and eyes were stinging from smoke. At last even Judge Lynch could stand no more, and when photographers started to climb into the jury box, pushing the jurymen aside in their eagerness to get a last snap at Shepherd, he appeared toward the jury room, he rapped loudly and ordered the photographers to keep quiet. They heeded him for a moment, and then banged again as Shepherd left.

In the jury room, where his fate had been decided a few moments before on the sixth ballot, Shepherd was congratulated by his attorneys, and he, in turn, shook them heartily by the hand. Miss Elsie Gunn, who has been in court most of the time with Mrs. Shepherd, and who had waited nervously with tears in her eyes as the moment approached for the jury to enter, threw herself into his arms and embraced him.

He kissed her and thanked her for her attention to his wife, who was not in court today, having been prevailed upon to await the verdict in a downtown hotel. Shepherd showed then as he had never before the strain he has been under since the trial began, and the anguish of the six hours of waiting for the verdict. His cheeks were ashen, big pouches were under his eyes, his whole figure sagged with weariness.

"I have nothing to say. What can I say, except that I am glad?" he said nervously.

The photographers followed him into the jury room, and while Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Stewart stood with their arms about Shepherd's necks the flashlights boomed again until the air in the room was unbreathable.

Shepherd Released, Under a Charge.

There is another charge against Shepherd, that of murdering Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, "Billy's" mother, but he was released on his own recognizance, as State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe said he thought there was no chance of convicting him on this charge if he could not be convicted on the first. Mr. Crowe had sat silent, surrounded by his staff, during the uproar in court and in the midst of it had stalked out with a sardonic smile.

After a few minutes' wait until Judge Lynch signed the order of release Shepherd went back to the county jail next door to get some of his things and then went out the main entrance, again a free man. Not even here, however, was he free from the flashlights, for the photographers had set up their cameras in the corridor of the jail and greeted him with a volley as he walked to the entrance. He rushed through with Mr. Stewart, climbed into an automobile and drove away to meet his wife, the first time in many months that he had been free.

Shepherd was acquitted on the sixth ballot, after long argument, to win over Mark R. Spikins, the only juror who held out for a sentence of fourteen years in prison, the lowest sentence which can be dealt out in Illinois on a murder charge. The other eleven jurors were for acquittal almost from the first, and finally won Spikins to their belief.

After the verdict and between flashes, Mr. Burnett, the foreman, read a resolution in which the jury thanked Judge Lynch for the orderly way in which the trial had been conducted and for the consideration which had been shown for the comfort of the jury, and in turn Judge Lynch thranged them for their unusual sacrifice of time.

Spectators Waited for End.

When Judge Lynch dismissed the jurymen to their deliberations after the final appeal by Prosecutor Robert E. Crowe for a verdict of guilty, Shepherd watched with a tense, strained look the back of each man as he stepped down and disappeared through the little door to the jury room.

Only a few of the hundreds of spectators left. They wandered out into the halls, went to near-by restaurants to eat while they had the opportunity and then hurried back to sit and smoke or gather in little groups in the courtroom and talk. Nearly everybody expected a quick verdict and as the time dragged one hour, then two and three—expressions of surprise were heard. Shepherd's attorneys, William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, while outwardly unconcerned, showed at times their anxiety. They have never lost a murder case in their three years of partnership, during which they have had twenty-eight, and this case means much to them.

There were dozens of women in the group who waited. They munched apples and chocolates and sometimes a sandwich, which an escort obtained for them, and swung their silk clad ankles in ungraceful contortions as they tried to find comfort on the hard benches. Bailiffs yawned in the jury box and the Judge ate sandwiches in ungowned comfort in his chamber.

Crowe Abandons Oratory.

There was no glittering peroration from State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe as he closed his argument this afternoon. He ended in an ordinary conversational tone as he asked the extreme penalty for Shepherd, and there was a general feeling of relief, it seemed, even in his own attitude, that the days of talk were over. But earlier in the day he dramatically defended himself against the charges of plot made by the attorneys for the defense.

"A frame-up!" he cried. "He says that the motive is to get the million dollars comprising the McClintock estate. The State accepts that challenge.

"Who is in this conspiracy? Harry Olson? The evidence shows he is Chief Justice of the Municipal Court and has been for years. If he is in this conspiracy he ought to be on trial for murder.

"If John J. Healy and Alexander Reichman (co-guardian of Billy) are in the conspiracy they ought to be tried for murder.

"And if I have been made a catspaw and if I am using my office and public funds to further the 'conspiracy' I ought to be on trial for murder.

"Am I to be condemned because I attempt to perform my duties? Are you as taxpayers and citizens angry at me and are you going to let your anger be thrown in the scale in this case because I am here? Wouldn't I be derelict in duty if I were not up here, the most important murder case that was ever tried in Cook County, because they introduce a new method of committing the murder?"

He charged that the defense had attempted to laugh the case out of court, to burlesque it in such a way that all respect for justice might be lost.

"It is not necessary to prove motive in a murder case," he said, "but if your do prove motive it strengthens the case. In other words a man worth $100,000,000 might poison a boy to get $1,000 life insurance, but that is extremely improbable. It is much more probable that a man who had been living for years in luxury and who found himself approaching old age and fearful that he was going to be thrown into the street would commit a murder in order to possess himself of a fortune."

Shepherd was charged with murdering "Billy" McClintock by means of typhoid germs. The boy died on Dec. 4, 1924, leaving Shepherd, the chief beneficiary under a will drawn by Shepherd and signed on the boy's twenty-first birthday, when he came into his $1,000,000 estate. There will be a fight before Shepherd gets this money, because heirs of the McClintocks have announced their intention of trying to break the will. Shepherd's lawyers, however, say they are confident that the will will be upheld, and that under the rules of the Probate Court Shepherd cannot be prevented from taking possession of the estate at least until the will case reaches the Court of Appeals.

The entire estate goes to him, except for a bequest of $8,000 a year to Miss Isabelle Pope, to whom Billy was engaged. She had made an arrangement with the heirs, it came out at the trial, to split the estate with them, in case the will is broken, except for $100,000 to Mrs. Shepherd, Billy's foster-mother and guardian, which she said she insisted upon.

Judge Olson Accuses Crowe.

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP).—Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal Court of Chicago, who sponsored the inquiry which led to the trial of William D. Shepherd, expressed disappointment over the verdict tonight, but declined to discuss future plans in connection with the McClintock will.

"This case is still pending, despite the verdict," he said, "and I do not want to indicate the next move until the details of the trial are all at hand.

"We have followed the trial closely and are certain that a great deal of admissible evidence was not offered by the State.

"Crowe did not cooperate with me and I was never welcome at the offices of the State's Attorney.

"Crowe called me to the witness stand without having discussed my testimony, or having asked me what I knew of the case. Several other witnesses who appeared before the Coroner's Jury never were offered by the State in the trial.

"It is not to be expected that a man will be convicted of murder unless evidence of murder is presented against him.

"I sent a full typewritten statement of my knowledge to Crowe before the trial and on the witness stand I was asked two or three questions by the Prosecutor and then turned over to the defense attorneys for cross-examination.

"I may have something to say about the case some time before a bar association convention, but I do not wish to comment further on the case tonight."

FRENCH PLAN DRIVE TO CLEAR MOROCCO

Trust to Strong Offensive to Stop Drain on Resources and Restore Prestige.

DEFENSIVE WAR IS COSTLY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TANGIER, June 26.—The French are preparing to launch an offensive in a fortnight, but are unlikely to extend operations into the Riff. The offensive will be confined to subduing and giving an object-lesson to the revolted tribes within their zone and driving out the Riffians.

Such is the opinion given to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent before leaving Fez—where the censorship is growing stricter—by French officers in a position to know.

The object to the offensive is primarily to restore the rapidly weakening French prestige among the tribes near the front before it is too late to prevent the revolt, continuing to spread more seriously than it is now. There is also reason to believe it is intended to put the French in possession again of their lost territory, so at worst they can then magnanimously offer to discuss peace or a modus vivendi with Abd-el-Krim if, as seems likely, the political situation in Paris and the international situation make continuance of hostilities inopportune.

The officers mentioned above do not like the prospect of leaving Adb-el-Krim safe and unpunished in the Riff, for they fear he will be a constant threat in their side until his power there has been completely broken, but they advance two reasons, each sufficient to explain the limited scope of the contemplated offensive. One is they have no agreement with Spain or England permitting them to enter the Riff. The other, as a high officer frankly admitted, is that even if they had permission they have not sufficient troops now at their disposal to carry on a campaign successfully in the Riff mountains and apparently do not expect to have enough to do it this year. And, as he added, "Once we got into the Riff we would not know what to do with it."

It would seem then, unless an accord is made for united action with Spain, the French, when the present objectives are reached, will be faced by the alternative of adopting a passive policy, both costly and bad for their prestige, maintaining heavy forces near the frontier, subject to harassing Riffian attacks, or arranging peace immediately.

Abd-el-Krim Willing to Talk Peace.

There is little doubt Abd-el-Krim would be glad to discuss peace with the French, especially as he now holds the best cards. Negotiations mean a measure of recognition of him by the French. As the only way they could treat with him without outraging the Spaniards would be on the theory he is on their soil, hence is as much their rebel as Spain's, he would be in a good position to hold some of the territory he has gained, even if he did not succeed in making the Ouergha his frontier, as he hopes.

The projected offensive is unlikely to be a movement all along the front, for it would demand too many men and the nature of the war doesn't require it. More probably it will be several deep thrusts at different parts of the line, accompanied by general heavy aviation bombing. The hardest blow may well be struck toward the west of the centre of the front against the important tribe of Djebalas in an effort to split them from Abd-el-Krim, thus greatly weakening him without needing to enter the Riff. The French point out that the Djebalas never in history have been under control of the Riff tribes until Abd-el-Krim imposed a federation on them this year, hence they think this, which is the biggest link in his chain of tribes, is also one of the weakest.

Meanwhile every day's delay is undermining French prestige and making the situation from every viewpoint more difficult to handle. When the war began more than two months ago they had about seventy-five outposts, most of them small, from 5 to 15 miles north of the Ouergha and about 20,000 mobile troops guarding the routes to Fez. Since then they have at least tripled the number of combatant troops along the front and they have either suppressed or lost to the enemy one-third of the outposts—including all those from Taounat twenty-five miles west to Tafrant, so the actual front in this particular district north of Fez is now the Ouergha itself.

Riffian forces in this region for the past two weeks have been filtering across the Ouergha, making the first ten miles of the road south of the base camp at Ain Aicha insecure for night travel, though it is the chief line of communication with Fez. There is desultory fighting here south of the Ouergha.

Bibane Held by the Riffians.

As Taounat commands the Ouergha bridgehead and one of the roads from the Riff toward Fez, so Bibane and Tafrant command the other. Though never officially given out, Bibane, which was one of the strongest French outposts captured by Riffians after a violent bombardemnt by cannon and grenades on June 6, has remained theirs ever since. They are now concentrating for an attack on the front and the forty-mile sector front extending from there northwest to Ouezzan. Just behind Tafrant a strong tribe of Beni Mesguilda have not only rebelled, but other tribes behind this whole line of outposts, if they have not partly gone over to the enemy, are liable to do so at any time. Lines of communication in this area frequently are harassed by the Riffians, who have filtered through and are said to have attacked convoys and trucks and to have done considerable damage. The district furnishes excellent cover for snipers. North of Ouezzan a French mobile column itself has been so violently attacked as to hamper greatly its movements.

In short, since the initial success of checking the spread of the revolt and saving Fez when the war began, the French have little—nothing in the way of an important victory—to show for all the heavy casualties suffered and all the millions of francs expended during two months of fighting. All their efforts have been and are being spent to relieve besieged outposts, which is war usury in the worst form for the French and very advantageous for Abd-el-Krim. Frequently they use a whole mobile column of 10,000 troops to shoot away, ineffectively as far as the Riffians are concerned, half a million francs' worth of shells in a day in order to relieve a garrison of perhaps thirty men. Casualties of the relieving forces are often far greater than the number of men saved and more material, such as machine guns, is lost in the process than the post contained.

The only military result is the post is regarrisoned and has to be relieved again in the same way a little later, for it is immediately re-encircled by the Riffians as soon as the mobile column retires. If the post, after the garrison is saved, is destroyed by the French it straightens out the line, but the rear posts closer to Fez then are attacked and have to be relieved.

Meanwhile the Riffians, who are past masters of organizing defensive works, are busily fortifying the new territory gained, making the French advance, whenever it begins, harder. At the same time they are filling their granaries by hastily harvesting crops in the region the French abandon.

More important still, these French defensive tactics are having a dangerous cumulative effect on undermining the prestige which Abd-el-Krim is cleverly exploiting among the tribes behind the French lines. As a result he has lost no followers and is gaining new ones all the time, for the spirit of revolt again is spreading slowly but with ominous steadiness.

It should not be concluded, however, that the French have not advanced because they could not. They have not tried, partly because they are awaiting results of negotiations with Spain and partly because they lacked effectives, though the Generals differ on the latter point. Marshal Lyautey throwing all his weight against attacking until the forces are stronger. There is much criticism in French circles in Morocco against General Daugan commanding the northern front for submitting to Lyautey on this important matter. There is a widespread feeling that Daugan may be soon replaced and other changes made in the French high command. The Brenet, however, are confident once they start advancing they can clean out the Riffians and subdue the tribes in their zone with much less trouble and loss than they suffer under the present tactics.

The morale of the French troops remains good and undoubtedly would be improved if they started an offensive, for conversations I had with the common soldiers show they are tiring of continually fighting without result, especially always going back after getting to relieve a post, then having to fall back, being shot to pieces by the Riffians while their backs are turned, only to have to do the same job over again later.

Aside from officers and gunners, very few Frenchmen are being used at the front, nearly all combatant troops being colonials, Senegalese, Foreign Legion, Algerian, Moroccan and native regiments, the last three especially the Legion, being nearly all the worst fighting. It is a tribute to French colonial policy that they are able to carry on most of the war against Moslems with Moslem soldiers.

It is impossible to say what the total French losses have been except that both in men and material they are far greater than officially acknowledged. Riffians have captured at least ten of their outposts, in some actions of relieving outposts large French units have suffered 40 per cent. of casualties, of which one-third are killed.

A Legionary told me his battalion, after six weeks of severe fighting, had 250 men left out of 850—but it must be remembered the Legion's losses are heaviest of all.

While the French have suffered no disastrous defeat, their prestige and strength have been sapped away steadily. It is believed the situation will continue to become increasingly worse until they carry out a successful offensive.

RIFFIAN DRIVE IS CHECKED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—By quick and adroit tactics the French command succeeded in checking what appeared the beginning of a new and decisive Riff offensive against Fez. The enemy's move against the Moroccan capital was discovered on Wednesday evening, when French outposts reported the appearance of Riff contingents in the vicinity of the route to Fez at Ain Aicha and Touanat. These contingents were moving south of the outpost of Ain Maatouf and pushing into the high valley of Loban.

After a number of several villages, the Riffians attacked some automobile camions, their intention evidently being to extend operations toward Soukel, which is about forty-five kilometers from Fez and the most important French fortress of that town, and thus cut the road between Fez and Taza.

It was also evident the Arabs hoped the garrison would not be sufficiently strong to meet the attack.

Yesterday morning the Riff advance guard boldly made its appearance at Ain Maatouf. The French command, grasping the significance of the Riff movement, at once dispatched a sufficient number of men with camions and artillery to the point of danger.

The French made such an effective demonstration that the enemy advance guard withdrew to cover and the Riff advance ceased.

MADRID, une 26 (AP).—The position of the French centre in the Taounat region of Morocco is described as critical in dispatches reaching here from the war zone. The rebellious tribesmen are said to be giving all sorts of trouble to convoys along advanced positions, and the columns are forced to overcome many obstacles placed in their way.

Djebala ritbesmen penetrated into the French zone in order to prevent the Mesguildas from submitting to the Sultan, and a sharp fight with the French forces ensued.

Commons Passes Bill to Prevent Use of Phonographs.

LONDON, June 26.—The bill to prevent the unauthorized making of phonograph records from wireless programs passed the Commons today and removes one of the hazards of broadcasting which is said to have kept many famous artists from contributing when they otherwise would have been willing to do so. Heretofore their performances could be recorded by a phonograph receiver and records made for sale.

Sir B. Chadwick, Parliamentary Secretary for the Board of Trade, said there has been such a remarkable development in wireless that the law had not kept pace with it and that there is reason to believe that the day is not far distant when an eager public might be listening to the proceedings of Parliament. One member said:

"God help us."

The Deputy Speaker replied:

GREEK REVOLT CHIEF HEADS NEW CABINET

Gen. Pangalos Issues a Proclamation Promising to Punish Profiteers and Aid Refugees.

TO REORGANIZE WAR FORCES

His Ministry Will Meet Parliament on Monday and Demand Its Unqualified Support.

ATHENS, June 25.—Greece is settling down again after its brief but effective revolution, and interest now centres in General Pangalos's new Cabinet. The General will be Premier and Minister of War, and M. Caphnas, who was active in the 1922 revolution, has been appointed Minister of Finance.

M. Papanastasiou, who first attempted to form a Government, had to give up because he could not agree with General Pangalos. Others on the list for Cabinet posts submitted to the head of the State are Admiral A. Hadjikyriakos, Minister of Marine and acting Minister of National Economy; M. K. Siamoulis, Minister of Agriculture and acting Minister of Public Assistance; Major A. Tavoularis, Communications; General Panagiotopoulos, Interior; Dr. Livathinopoulos, Education, and M. K. Rendis, Foreign Affairs and acting Minister of Justice. The latter was Minister of Justice in the revolutionary Cabinet of November, 1922.

The new Government will be sworn in this evening in the presence of Admiral Konduriotis, head of the State, and will appear in the National Assembly on Monday. Its attitude in the Assembly will depend on the Assembly's attitude toward the revolution. General Pangalos has expressed the hope that all parties will be represented and that full parliamentary support will be given to the new Cabinet.

Airplanes today scattered 100,000 copies of a proclamation issued by General Pangalos to the Greek people, wherein the General promises a good administration, punishment of speculators and relief for Greek refugees. The proclamation says:

"The erring Michalakopoulos Government has been overthrown. In the name of the Chief's authority, until the last moment, not a drop of fraternal blood has been shed, as the revolution has the approval of the great majority of the Greek people, army and fleet.

"In taking responsibility for the overthrow I am conscious of my obligations to the people, and will make every endeavor to see that the future Government gives a good administration, equality, security and justice. Speculators who steal the sweat of the people will be punished severely, and on them the axe of justice will fall without mercy.

"In addition to internal reorganization, I shall endeavor to organize rapidly the national forces, wherever those of the country's interest can be safeguarded. I shall recall before no sacrifice to relieve the misery of our unfortunate refugee brethren.

"With full consciousness of the internal and external difficulties facing the State, we set to work full of faith and hope for success, whereof the past is a guarantee."

Ministry Takes Office.

ATHENS, June 26 (AP).—General Pangalos, Greece's new Premier, and the members of a hastily formed Ministry took the oath of office today before Admiral Coumdouriotis, Provisional President of the Republic.

General Pangalos tonight told the newspapermen that he was astonished that the action of the army in overthrowing the Government was described as a revolution. It was merely a political crisis, he said. The Government was opposed to the feeling of the nation and the army, and the latter, acting along nationalist lines, forced the Government to resign.

"Neither I nor anybody else," continued General Pangalos, "intends to appear as a revolutionary leader or dictator. My program is to restore order within the bounds of law. For me are neither Venizelists nor anti-Venizelists, neither republicans nor royalists—only citizens."

The new Premier added that after he had achieved his aim of reconciling the different parties and forming an army capable of coping with any emergency, he would retire from politics.

King and Queen in Paris.

PARIS, June 26 (AP).—Former King George and Queen Elizabeth of Greece have arrived here for a two weeks' stay. They took a leisurely drive about Paris this morning, apparently undisturbed by the news of the revolution in Athens.

British Mission to Leave.

LONDON, June 26 (AP).—The Daily Express says it learns that the British Naval Mission to Greece is to be recalled in consequence of the revolution there.

The mission, consisting of Rear Admiral Townsend and seven other officers, recently went to Greece for the purpose of reorganizing the navy.

Royal Exiles in Italy Interested.

ROME, June 26 (AP).—The Greek revolution is being followed with keen interest, especially by numerous Greek refugees who hope the unrest will lead to a return to power of the Greek royal family.

Since the establishment of a Greek republic members of the former reigning house of that country have lived in Italy most of the time, in order to be near Athens and ready to return home if called upon to lead a monarchial movement.

American Envoys Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Details of the bloodless coup d'état in Greece were received by the State Department today in official dispatches from Herbert G. Gould, American Chargé d'Affaires at Athens, and from Robert P. Fernald, American Consul at Salonika.

It was pointed out here that although reports refer to a "revolution" in Greece, they show conclusively that there was no "revolution" in the usual meaning of the word. What has occurred, it was explained, is a coup d'état, ahead of the Cabinet and not endangering the form of government nor the prerogatives of either the President or Parliament.

Americans are asked to bear in mind the peculiar situation in Greece, which is emerging from a long period of warfare which it did not instigate, and burdened with the influx of a million and a half refugees.

YUGOSLAVS ARE AGITATED.

They Fear Difficulties With Greece Following Military Coup.

BELGRADE, June 26.—The Greek coup d'état, with the coming into power of General Pangalos, probably means a breakdown in all the negotiations between Yugoslavia and Greece over Saloniki, in the opinion of Belgrade newspapers. The situation is delicate, as the revolutionaries demand a complete change in foreign policy.

It is also recalled here with certain apprehension that Pangalos's recent electoral program advocated intensive Greek propaganda in Macedonia and intimate relations with the neighbors of Greece with a view to forming a Balkan federation.

The political situation in Yugoslavia is of considerable interest to the powers, as it remains to be seen whether it is possible to reconstruct the recent Cabinet in view of the seizure of power in Greece by General Pangalos. The Greek coup, it is thought, may induce the Serbs and Croats to unite in order to cope with possible difficulties with Greece. It is expected the negotiations with the Croat Peasant Party will be hastened, with a view to taking it into the Government if possible.

LONDON FEARS TROUBLE.

Believes Balkans Will Be Restive Over Greek Coup.

LONDON, June 26.—Well-informed British circles believe important developments are likely in the Balkan Peninsula following the Greek revolution, not the least interesting of which may be a strong effort toward a general Balkan alliance.

The coming into power of General Pangalos, an ambitious soldier and strong Nationalist, has aroused the deepest interest, not unmingled with anxiety, in Yugoslav official circles. The fear is expressed that hospitality by the General's followers to Yugoslav exiles on the Salonika-Gheveli Railway may lead the new Greek Government to break off negotiations for a renewal of the treaty between the two countries.

Reports reaching diplomatic quarters here indicate that efforts are being made in Belgrade to bring about a close understanding between the Serbian radical majority and the Croat Home Rule opposition, the object being to form a common front against any possible hostility from Greece.

On the other hand, Pangalos recently has been a strong advocate of a general Balkan alliance, a scheme which many Yugoslav statesmen regard favorably. The General's attitude is expected here to be largely determined by the attitude which the Greek Parliament takes on Monday. His party are extreme republicans and are in a minority. Should the parliamentary majority abstain from attending Monday's sitting or refuse confidence when Pangalos makes his official declaration, his career justifies the expectation that he will attempt to govern Greece by a dictatorship.

Portuguese Cabinet Resigns.

LISBON, Portugal, June 26 (AP).—The Cabinet headed by Victorino Guimaraes presented its resignation today. This action followed upon Parliament's refusal to approve the Government's policy.

The ministry of Senhor Guimaraes was formed early in February, to take the place of the Cabinet of Senhor Santos, which resigned a few days previously after the Chamber of Deputies had defeated it on a vote of confidence.

Resolutions Urge Calendar Reform and Fixed Easter Date—Cooperation With League Recommended.

BRUSSELS, June 26.—The third Congress of the International Chambers of Commerce closed today with the ratification of resolutions embodying virtually every principle for which the American delegations stood. Included in them is a reaffirmation of faith in the Dawes plan as necessary; immediate funding of the interallied debts, and a repudiation of the pessimistic sentiments expressed by Despret, Janssen and Sir Josiah Stamp.

In the matter of debts the congress reiterated the stand of the Rome convention of 1923 that prompt action alone could create a basis for world confidence which would permit the restoration of Europe, but accepted an amendment by M. Clementel, former French Minister of Finance, amounting to an indorsement of the idea of a moratorium to spread the burden over the war-torn generation. The Clementel statement is believed to have been inspired by the reaction of the American delegation to the Belgian utterances, indicating the wisdom of direct word from France.

He began with a pledge of faith in the resolutions of the Economic Restoration Committee, concerning which he said he was "convinced that the principles, especially regarding the consequences of the ways and means provided by the Dawes plan for making transfers, and suppression of the obstacles which hamper a return to normal conditions in business and labor, will insure an equitable settlement of all obligations."

M. Clementel asked consideration of an extension of the burden on the ground of the "crushing debt now carried by the present generation."

The chief resolution was that of the Economic Committee, under the chairmanship of Fred I. Kent of the Bankers Trust, New York, for more than a year Mr. Kent has been conferring with the banking and business heads of all countries and receiving reports of fiscal conditions among the European nations. He introduced a resolution in a long speech analyzing the post-war conditions of the debtors and creditors, and blaming chiefly the failure of Europe to return speedily to production instead of largely segregating the Government payrolls by employing useless officials who were not contributing to national prosperity.

"Had there been a general return to production in Europe following the war, and had there not been an overextension of government, we should have seen a growing betterment in the financial condition of all countries from the date of the armistice, or shortly afterward," he said.

"Instead, what developed was the building up of a so-called vicious circle.

"This, he said, resulted in an excess of expenditures, inability to balance budgets, borrowings from central banks, inflated currency, which raised prices, and automatic increase in Government expenses, borrowing further more inflating, &c.

"This resulted the vicious circle of unbalanced governmental budgets, false principles of taxation, currency inflation, unbalanced foreign trade and fluctuating foreign exchanges."

The key to the cure, he said, was elimination of the unbalanced budgets, which would be possible only when people understood and demanded sound government.

Faith in the Dawes Plan.

The resolution reaffirming faith in the Dawes plan, which was called the "most constructive development of the period under review," said that its unconditional acceptance by Germany "confirms the belief that it is possible for her to fulfill the obligations assumed, and experience gives assurance for the success of the plan with the cooperation of the German people."

The resolution included a lengthy report, whose adoption by the congress registered repudiation of the efforts of Despret and Janssen to subordinate the debts to reparations. The report affirms declaration that "while it is true the allied debts created by the World War are obligations undertaken in good faith and do not admit of repudiation, nevertheless as they were contracted in the common cause in a period of tremendous sacrifice of life and property, the proper factor for any adjustment should be the present and probable future ability of each debtor to pay."

As forecast in these dispatches, the congress adopted the four-way plan for making transfers of reparations from Germany to the Allies: first, by a considerable expansion of German exports in the ordinary course of trade; ordinary course and, under normal conditions in Germany, from a special organized organization, or "pool on the part of the creditors". The committee regards this as the most desirable, because it implies cash payments.

The second is "by arrangements between each of the allied creditors of Germany, with a view to developing in the most convenient and acceptable way, with national interests and obligations the transfer of deliveries in kind or services."

The third is "by the operation of a certain international coordination in the execution of public works, by research and study in practical action. This is the famous "assisted scheme" of the section, by which it is planned that Germany should provide 20 or 40 per cent. of the cost of a given project, the creditors taking the balance in coal or other debt settlement in non-German currency.

The fourth is "by the sale of railway, industrial and eventually other German bonds in the international markets, especially in the non-allied and neutral investments in Germany."

The committee approves this, believing that for political and other reasons a debt owed by the German Government to private creditors, or by Germans within the country, is more manageable and more desirable than the same debt owed to the Allied Governments.

Other Resolutions Adopted.

Concerning double taxation, the advice of the committee headed by Professor T. S. Adams of Yale was adopted by the chamber, to collaborate with the League of Nations in the formation of a committee to draw up a plan to apply the principles of normal taxation in the place of origin, and surplus taxation to the place of domicile, with the exception that revenues from immovable property or income other than dividends from agricultural and commercial undertakings, may also be taxed in the land of origin.

No mention of the American Merchant Marine or coastwise shipping appears in any of the several resolutions. This is in accord with the ultimatum of the American delegates, Campbell, Ferguson, and Commissioner Thompson, following Anderson's speech and the known desire of the Japanese to enter competition.

Other resolutions adopted included the creation of a commission to coordinate international air routes, telephones, motor truck transport, reform of the Hague rules governing ship owners' liabilities, international reciprocity, facilities accorded to executors and receivers in bankruptcy cases, fixation of the date of Easter, preliminary general calendar reform, and combined sea-rail transport in international journeys.

Dr. Walter Leaf, noted British economic director of several banks and Government financial adviser on taxation and fiscal problems, succeeds W. H. Booth as President of the Chamber for the next two years.

PASS CAILLAUX BILL TO INCREASE NOTES

but the great majority, declaring they had no other interest than the national interest, rallied to the motion of Deputy François de Wendel, member of the great Lorraine iron firm, that the bill be adopted.

Among the Left groups discussion was very animated. Leon Blum announced that, conformably with the Socialist will expressed in the recent referendum, his party would in future maintain objective reserve on all questions, but while maintaining liberty toward the present Government, would seek to remain faithful to the union. This statement must be interpreted as an open manoeuvre by the Socialists to keep control of the Cartel and in the name Left unity induce the radicals also to maintain a reserved attitude toward the Government. It had its effect in persuading other members of the Cartel to take part in the request that a delay of at least a few hours be granted before the project was submitted to a vote.

A Cartel meeting decided to ask the Government to insert in the bill a promise to present within the shortest possible time a complementary bill for improvement of the financial position by amortization of the public debt through allocation of certain resources, which would be some sort of a counterpart to the 6,000,000,000 francs increase in circulation. This motion was backed by Loucheur, Dumesnil and several other influential members of the Left and Centre. The Finance Commission accepted the suggestion and added to the project an article providing for presentation of a complementary bill, such as suggested by the Cartel, before the end of the present session. It was with this amendment that the Caillaux bill was finally submitted to the Chamber for adoption late last night.

Text of Preamble and Bill.

The following is the complete text of the preamble and clauses of Caillaux's bill "for relief of the difficulties of the treasury and lightening the floating debt":

You are aware how delicate is the financial situation of France and how grave it might become if decisive remedies were not applied. During these last months difficulties of the Treasury have increased through the retirement of national defense bonds. On the eve of our taking direction of the Ministry of Finance a new advance of 4,000,000,000 francs had been made by the Bank of France to the Treasury. Of that amount 2,300,000,000 was needed to liquidate the existing situation. Only 1,700,000,000 remained at the disposal of the Treasury, but in spite of notable surpluses from taxation, [due to?] the needs of the budget and those of the Treasury which accrued through the deficit and the national defense bonds, this amount now has been almost totally absorbed.

You know, moreover, that during coming weeks heavy maturities must be met: 1,800,000,000 francs during July and 3,800,000,000 during September—must be repaid to bearers of national credit and Treasury bonds. The situation in which we find ourselves is, therefore, that we must assure payment of these sums and avoid that the nonrenewal of national defense bonds increases the weight on the Treasury.

In order to meet the situation and at the same time relieve the State of the floating debt of which the mass might at any moment become perilous, we have wished to employ only normal means. We are convinced this country which has accomplished so much in the past is unwilling to give up the struggle and having moreover many evidences of the admirable vitality of France, are desire to avoid every system of constraint, we make an urgent last appeal to the nation's wish to live and demand that it help us by voluntary efforts to free the Treasury from pressing difficulties and dissipate disquiet for the future.

The loan to which with this aim we invite our fellow citizens to subscribe should give them confidence at the same time in the efficacy of the aid which they are bringing to us and in the security of the use they are making of their money.

By placing them out of danger of the variations of exchange and by assuring them the advantage which the full success of this loan will bring in renewing confidence and improving general market values, we are giving subscribers the double assurance they are aiding their country and acting in their own best interest.

We cannot believe this pressing appeal in the name of the Republic and in the name of France by the Government and Parliament to the whole nation will not be heard.

The loan which we propose is destined only for consolidation of the floating debt; moreover, subscription will be open only to bearers of defense bonds.

But with whatever haste this measure might be realized it cannot be prompt enough to avoid our asking you for other measures destined to assure the life of the State in days to come. During the month of July budgetary charges will be particularly heavy. The amount of Treasury bonds deposed for reimbursement constitutes a second burden on the Treasury. If a new advance of 6,000,000,000 francs is not obtained from the Bank of France the Treasury will not be able to assure meeting obligations during the coming months.

We firmly hope that with the aid of the Bank of France, once the larger portion of national defense bonds is consolidated in the new loan this advance will suffice to meet all expenditure of the 1925 budget which is uncovered by income and for all needs of the Treasury until the end of the year. We shall then have succeeded in surmounting present difficulties. The complete balancing of the 1926 budget which we will ask you to assure by voting the necessary taxes will definitely guarantee us against return of such a situation. The era of loans will be thus closed. Article IV of the bill we are submitting marks the Government's formal decision in this matter. Its adoption by Parliament will impose that decision by law on all succeeding Governments.

This is only the first step on the road to the consolidation of our finances. The second and perhaps more essential step will be obtained the day when all public expenditure, which Article I of this bill will provide means of reducing, will be covered by taxation alone.

Further steps certainly will have to be taken and we will shortly invite you to consider them. Thus all ideas and suggestions which will be presented to you can be fully discussed at the same time as the proposals formulated by the Government. For the present it is, however, essential to restrict our efforts. We are asking you today to provide us with the means of solving the first and most urgent problems with which we are faced.

We have the firm hope that if the representatives of the country follow us in a wise and energetic policy which appears to us indispensable, if the country itself helps us by confident collaboration, we will soon be able to get rid of the burden of the past and be able to look into the future.

Article I. The Minister of Finance is authorized to make use of the powers invested by decrees of March 14, 1920, in the Higher Committee of Inquiry, and by decree of Aug. 1, 1922, in the Extra Parliamentary Commission on Economies. For this purpose the different control organizations will be put at his disposal.

Decrees of presentation of parliamentary bills and of administrative regulation which may result from the conclusion of this inquiry will bear only the double signature of the President of the Council of Ministers and the Minister of Finance.

Article II. The convention of April 7, 1925, between the Minister of Finance and the Governor of the Bank of France, is definitely approved.

The Minister of Finance is authorized to make with the Governor of the Bank of France a convention by which that establishment will consent to the further advance of 6,000,000,000 francs to the State. This convention will be free of stamp registration duties.

The maximum total issue of bank notes by the Bank of France and branches, which is fixed by the law of April 15, 1923, at 45,000,000,000 francs, is thus increased to 51,000,000,000.

Article III. The Minister of Finance is authorized to issue a loan strictly reserved to bearers of National Defense bonds.

The interest and conditions of this loan, to which will be accorded a guarantee of exchange and to which may be given privileges conceded to National Defense bonds by the law of March 13, 1924, will be fixed by decree.

Article IV. The maximum amount of floating Treasury debt, not including advances of the Bank of France determined by Article II, will be fixed at the sum which is reached on the date of closure of subscription to the loan described in Article III.

This total cannot be later increased except by sums necessary for reimbursement of the short-term debt falling due.

BILL CAUSES BREAK IN FRANC.

Italian Exchange Also Falls Under Heavy Selling From Abroad.

Under pressure caused chiefly by announcement of a proposed increase of 6,000,000,000 francs in French note circulation, francs broke 9½ points in the New York foreign exchange market yesterday and closed at 4.46¾, the lowest point reached since early in March, 1924, when the franc sold at the lowest point in history. The break in francs carried Italian lire down 11 points, to a new low record at 3.59¾. Scandinavian exchanges continued their advances, new high records at several points being established in both Danish and Norwegian krone.

There was heavy selling of francs all day, most of it apparently coming from French sources and reflecting a lack of confidence at home in the French Government's financial policies. The flight of capital from France, which has been intermittent for some time, was renewed in heavy volume as a result of the announcement of Finance Minister Caillaux's plan, which calls for the creation of 6,000,000,000 francs in new bank notes, and an offer of a loan with an exchange guarantee to holders of defense bonds.

It is expected in Wall Street that later in the year a large loan to France will be arranged in New York and that exchange then will be stabilized on a gold basis, but the French exchange market at present is almost entirely without support.

The visit to France of Dwight W. Morrow and Russell C. Leffingwell, partners in J. P. Morgan & Co., who are sailing today, is causing comment in Wall Street on the possibility of new French financing, although Mr. Morrow and Mr. Leffingwell both emphasized that they were going abroad only for a vacation. France now has a $100,000,000 credit with J. P. Morgan & Co. for the support of exchange, but there have been no recent indications of its having been used, and Finance Minister Caillaux has announced that the credit would be held in reserve to combat speculative attacks on the franc.

Italian exchange moved down in sympathy with the franc and also on heavy Italian selling, part of which was described as commercial and part of which represented transfers of Italian funds, apparently due to uneasiness over the financial situation.

In the case of Danish exchange there was a renewal of the heavy buying that has prevailed for more than a week. The demand was declared to be due to strikingly favorable Danish trade figures and also to intimations that the Danish Government intends to place its finances on a much stronger position. The plans are understood to include refunding the internal debt and reducing the interest rate from 6 to 4 per cent. It is also heard that a large internal loan will be floated shortly. Danish exchange reached a new high record at 19.47 and Norwegian krone also established a new high, at 17.43.

REFUSES MACRI GIRL FREEDOM FROM CELL

Judge at New Haven Rejects Plea for Bail of Mother Held on Murder Charge.

RETRIAL IN LITCHFIELD

Request for Visitors Referred to the Jailer—Lawyers Argue on Letter From Jury Foreman.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, June 26.—Details of the retrial of Miss Olympia Macri for shooting down her betrayer, John Bagnano, were decided today by Judge John L. Booth in the Superior Court. He ruled that the trial must take place in Litchfield County and that Miss Macri could not be admitted on bail until then. He would not issue an order which would allow friends to visit her at the New Haven County Jail, where she will remain until she is ordered to Litchfield County for trial. This is the first murder case in Connecticut history ever shifted to another county for retrial.

Every step of today's hearing was stubbornly contested. State Attorney Arnon Alling injected an innovation by asserting that he would continue his investigation of a note which was sent by Foreman Platt of the first trial jury to Joseph Koletsky, Miss Macri's lawyer, before the jury had made its report. This note is alleged to have read, "Dear Mr. Koletsky: Some of our number would like to meet you and if possible Olympia this afternoon on a matter of business. Please advise time and place. I will be in the jury room for some little time."

State Attorney Alling said in presenting this letter: "There are many strange things in connection with the deliberations of the jury in this case. Here in my hand is a letter written on the stationery of the Hotel Taft on Monday morning, the day the jury was discharged in disagreement. This letter, which I submit, in itself raises many ideas that I think ought to be looked into. It is upon these ideas that I propose to present Mr. Koletsky to the Court."

This immediately precipitated a battle, in which Mr. Koletsky offered to have the guard of the jury room sworn, to prove that the note was delivered to him by Foreman Platt, to be in turn delivered to Mr. Koletsky after the jury had been discharged by the Court.

Judge Booth ruled that the letter was entirely proper. Referring to the presence of many women in the court room during the first trial of Miss Macri, Mr. Alling referred to the jury as "hand picked and hen picked."

Judge Booth denied the motion to permit bail in Miss Macri's case. In arguing the question of allowing visitors to see Miss Macri, Lawyer Koletsky told the Court that prominent New Haven society women, headed by Mrs. Josepha Whitney, had pledged Miss Macri a home and all the aid she needed while awaiting trial and after her release, and that they wished to call on her in her cell. Judge Booth stated that the matter would be left to the jailer.

Lawyer Koletsky asked the Court for an appropriation for the printing of the evidence in the first trial and for witnesses during the retrial. Judge Booth granted the request.

Tonight Mr. Koletsky, withdrew any objection to the change of venue. He said: "We welcome Litchfield County as the place of trial and will be glad to try the case before the stern jurors of that section. The sterner they are the better we will like them, as they will fix this Bagnano bunch and show that stern, honest Connecticut jurors will have none of their sort ravishing young and innocent girls."

RAILWAY COMPANY INDICTED

Kansas City Southern Failed to File Loan Notice, It Is Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Kansas City Southern Railway Company was indicted today by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of violating Section 20A of the Interstate Commerce Commission act, which requires common carriers to file with the commission notification certificates within ten days after such carrier executes promissory notes.

In this case the railway company is alleged to have executed a note for $1,000,000 to the Bankers Trust Company of New York on Nov. 26, 1924, and received for it that amount in cash, with which it purchased 40,000 shares of the common capital stock of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Company.

A notification certificate was not filed with the commission until March 17, 1925, the indictment charges. The penalty is a fine of not more than $5,000.

The record in this case says that G. C. Hand, a Vice President of the defendant railway company, explained to C. D. Mahaffie, Director of the Finance Bureau of the commission, that his company bought the stock bought with the $1,000,000 would have cost more had a notification certificate been filed within ten days, as required by law, as a certain amount of publicity would have followed the receipt of the certificate by the commission.

RACED FALLING MOUNTAIN.

Wyoming Rancher Tells of Saving Family by a Few Minutes.

JACKSON, Wyo., June 26 (AP).—Racing ahead of an avalanche with his life and the safety of his family and home at stake, and winning by a matter of minutes, was the experience of Gil Huff, rancher, whose story of seeing the north side of Sheep Mountain crumble and fall across the Gros Ventre River valley near here Tuesday became known today.

Huff said he was riding on horseback at the foot of the mountain when it began to move, carrying on its back a section of the dense Teton National Forest. He began a desperate ride for safety. The avalanche, with a roar, bore down toward him in the form of a moving wall of boulders, trees and earth a hundred feet high. His frenzied horse reached higher ground at one side, and the big landslide missed him by only a few feet.

Huff then raced to his home near by, rushed his wife and daughter to a point of safety and returned to save as many of his belongings as possible.

Huff said many of his cattle were killed. Two ranches above him were wiped out. Huff's home is under many feet of water.

RUNS AMUCK IN TRAIN.

Army Deserter Kills a Passenger, Wounds Another in South Carolina.

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 28 (AP).—O. R. Magansen, who described himself as a deserter from the army, for no apparent reason today shot up a Southern Railway passenger train as it was entering the city, killing a man and wounding another. Passengers said that Magansen, roused from an apparent slumber in the smoking compartment, drew a long-barrelled revolver and began shooting. Ray F. Peek of Atlanta, who was stretched out on a seat, was shot in the head, dying almost instantly. W. F. Flint, also of Atlanta, was wounded, but his recovery is expected.

Magansen fired his last cartridge out of the window before being overpowered by passengers. Upon arrival here, placed in jail and questioned as to the incident, he said he remembered shooting up the train but did not know why he was shot. He is a native of Spain.

Fire Destroys D. P. Ritchie Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, June 26.—The unoccupied home of Daniel P. Ritchie at old Mamaroneck and Hartsdale Roads was destroyed this morning by fire of unknown origin. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The owner is believed to have had some valuable furniture in the house. Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie, who are in New York, closed up the house yesterday afternoon and left for the city.

RICH MAN'S FOSTER SON DISGUISED AS A NEGRO

Jack Durand, Wanted in Lake Forest, Ill., for Burglary, Is Arrested at Califonia Resort.

VENICE, Cal., June 26 (AP).—For a piece of silver one can buy in the amusement concession district here three throws with a baseball at a bulls-eye which when squarely hit causes a negro to drop from his high perch into a pool of water.

Some one hit the bulls-eye last night and the "negro" fell into the arms of three detectives, who peeled off his black face make-up and revealed him as Jack Durand, adopted son of a Chicago millionaire and wanted by police of that city in connection with a series of burglaries.

Durand admitted his identity, but denied complicity in the burglaries.

"I didn't do anything in Chicago," he said. "Somebody just squawked."

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP).—Lake Forest police said today they intended to take steps for the removal to Lake Forest of Jack Durand, adopted son of Scott S. Durand, wealthy sugar broker, when they received official notification of his detention in California. He is wanted in connection with the investigation of a confession by three youths involving him in several burglaries.

Durand's foster parents, who adopted him twenty-five years ago, insist he is innocent. He was married in 1921 to a Detroit girl. Durand is not accused of any crime within Chicago, the local police said. They added, however, that their records show he was accused of burglary in 1924, but the case was dismissed for want of prosecution.

Mrs. Durand, who is prominent in society, declared that "Jack is working hard and faithfully; I never heard of the three young men who accuse him."

PROTESTS SCOPES PUBLICITY

Resolution Before Tennessee Bar Hits "Advertising" Through Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 26.—A resolution protesting against "the making and using of a criminal or other trial before any court of our State as an advertising medium, as is now being done in regard to the Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn.," was introduced at the Tennessee Bar Association's annual meeting here today.

At the request of its sponsor, Gills Evans of Fayettsville, the resolution was laid on the table after it was read to the convention. Mr. Evans served notice that he would call it up tomorrow for adoption.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 26 (AP).—The many hundreds of visitors expected at Dayton for the Scopes evolution trial will find the city ideal from a public health standpoint, if recommendations made today by State engineers on sanitation are followed by the State Department of Public Health.

The recommendations include special attention to location and management of tourist camps and protection of food and water supply.

JAPAN PUZZLES BOMBAY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, June 26.—Mystery surrounds the very heavy buying of cotton in the Bombay market by the Japanese far beyond that what their requirements are known to be. The interest is increased by the fact that an inquiry shows extensive buying in the American markets as well.

The market is puzzled because everybody is agreed there is no chance of an improvement in the world situation as to the cotton trade.

A clue may be found in the fact that Japan is also a heavy buyer of a certain type of manganese required in the manufacture of munitions, and it is thought that her activities are not unconnected with the Chinese crisis.

U. S. INQUIRY BEGUN INTO TAX DODGING

have not only not come forward to settle but have taken a defiant attitude, it was said.

Investigators working on books of members of the Exchange are basing their estimates of amounts owing to the Federal authorities and the State tax officials on figures compiled in 1914, which was prior to the time when the Federal tax was imposed on sales. A State tax was then operative.

The records of the State agent for the sale of transfer tax stamps, scanned by the agents in the present inquiry, disclosed that for the first four months of 1914 showed that stamps aggregating $11,420 were sold to firms and members of the Consolidated.

The volume of business disclosed by the ticker for the exchange, during the four-month period, was 4,650,338 shares, not including 581,740 shares of mining stock. It was calculated by the investigators that the full taxes on this business would total $93,186. Figuring on the same basis of total turnover of stocks on the Consolidated, the investigators assert that the membership of the exchange would owe the State approximately $326,000 a year, and the same amount to the Federal collectors.

The totals of taxes which have been paid to the State and to the Government since 1914, according to the investigators, have not been as high as this amount. One investigator reported that the amount paid was less than 10 per cent. of the amounts which the records seemed to indicate as due in taxes.

Investigators said they had encountered a great deal of difficulty in checking back over sales, asserting that records of the Clearing House of the Consolidated Stock Exchange had not been found and also that records of individual members were missing.

The investigators, however, have overcome this difficulty by assembling the members under investigation at the Custom House and requiring them to tell under oath the volume of their business and the amount of stamp tax paid.

Inquirers for details of the investigation at the Custom House were referred to Harry Kessler, in charge of the stamp office. Captain A. Day, assistant to Collector Frank Bowers, said that Kessler had the matter in charge. Captain Day said his only knowledge of the matter was that there "had been an exchange of correspondence between this office and Commissioner Blair on the matter." Mr. Kessler declined to discuss the investigation.

State Officials Waiting.

A report that the State had already began to examine into the reports was denied at the State tax offices, 220 West Fortieth Street. Deputy Commissioner M. F. Loughman, in the absence of Commissioner Gilchrist, made this statement:

"This department did not make an independent investigation, because we were informed that the Federal Government was doing so and we did not wish to interfere with them or to duplicate their work. We expect to receive a copy of the Federal report, and will then supplement their investigation with one of our own to see if the State of New York is involved."

Commissioner Loughman said that the statement constituted his sole knowledge of the matter. Efforts to reach Commissioner Gilchrist at his Albany office and his home here were fruitless. At Albany, Tax Commissioner Graves said that he had heard nothing of any contemplated investigation. He said that ten or twelve agents of the Commissioner were constantly on duty in New York City, and he expressed the opinion that the system of inspection was such that lapses in stamp tax payments were unlikely.

Denial of the reports came from four firms. Representatives of each of these firms characterized the reports as "absurd." They produced receipts for stamps, both Federal and State, and pointed to their books where entries of amounts collected for stamp tax were posted after the individual transactions.

Shows Receipts For Stamp Tax.

"It is utterly absurd," said a partner in one firm. He produced a stack of stamp tax receipts going back over nearly two years. He also opened his ledgers to show the correctness of the record. He explained that among commission houses the stamp tax is paid by the customer and charged against his account. He pointed out that failure on the part of a broker to turn over such taxes to the Government or State would constitute larceny.

As further evidence, this broker produced a purchasers' memorandum for $600 worth of stamps, evenly divided between Federal and State stamps. These had been purchased a few days ago from a trust company. He explained that this amount of stamps was sufficient for several days and that his firm always made its purchases in large amounts.

Another broker characterized the reports as "all news" to him. He also said that the report was ridiculous and insisted that his firm had always been particularly careful in seeing that the necessary stamps were provided in all stock transactions. He said that a Federal inspector had complimented him on the systematic way in which his stamp records were kept and had frequently brought new inspectors into the office to show them the books as models.

Another broker also expressed surprise and denied that his firm had ever been lax in its stamp tax payments. He, too, said that he had been complimented by a Federal inspector on the efficiency of his records.

"Only on one occasion," an employe of the broker said, "have we ever been even questioned by the Federal department. That was this year. After our firm dissolved partnership, our stamp tax returns were filed in the name of an individual. This meant a new file at the Custom House. Early this year the Internal Revenue people called up to know why there had been no tax returns for the partnership since August. When we explained about the dissolution of partnership, everything was satisfactory and we have never had any further trouble.

The Customers Pay Tax.

This broker said that he had always made it a point to pay his stamp tax. He said that he had often heard rumors of firms evading the tax, but did not believe there was anything to them.

"The fact that the customer pays for the stamps ought to be sufficient," he said. "Why should we attempt to evade the tax, or why object to it as exorbitant? It doesn't come out of our pockets but out of the pockets of our customers."

Another broker said that any one who had intimated that his firm had neglected to pay its stamp tax, either State or Federal, was guilty of slander. "We have been examined regularly every year by the Federal inspectors," he said, "and twice a year by State inspectors. Everything in my business is strictly on the up and up. No one can say I ever neglected to pay either the Federal or State Government the stamp taxes due them during the eight years I have been in business."

Some of the brokers said that such charges are frequently heard in Wall Street.

"Occasionally," they said, "an investor loses heavily, or a disgruntled employe is discharged that he did not believe any such condition existed in the Exchange.

"I don't think your information is correct," he said. "As far as the Exchange is concerned, this is a matter between the individual and the Government. We opened our books and clearing house sheets to the Government inspectors willingly, something that I don't believe any other Exchange in the city would do. I believe that the inspectors, not being familiar with the brokerage business, have not made a correct transcript.

"This is what they have done: They have made an offhand ruling on certain transactions that appear on our sale sheets to mean that three taxes should have been paid where only one was due. Many items on those sheets are not subject to tax because they are not sales."

Asked to further define such items, Mr. Maloney said: "Return loans, balance items, stock for cash and others. To a man not familiar with finance these all look like sales. The inspectors have made an offhand ruling on certain transactions which call for one payment. They have construed it as three payments because they are not familiar with the brokerage business."

Concerning the statement that records of transactions had been destroyed he said: "That is absolutely false. Ten years ago we decided we would keep certain records no longer. We had been keeping them for years back. We decided then to keep them for three months only. This was because our storehouse on the roof of the Exchange had become so congested.

"Our constitution provides," Mr. Maloney added, "that any evasion of taxes is an act detrimental to the best interests of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. If any members have been remiss, which I do not for a moment believe, I can promise that immediate action will be taken by the Board of Directors. I would add that these Government inspectors are not infallible.

"I will give you an instance. One of our members was called to the Custom House yesterday and a charge was made that the member owed a total of $200 to the Government for stamps which it was alleged had not been paid. Fortunately, this member of the Exchange had retained his books, and he was able to prove by these books that not only did he not owe any money to the Government but that there was less than $1 difference between the sums the Government claimed was due for tax stamps and the amount which had been paid.

"Another angle to the situation to which I would call your attention is the fact that our members in applying for stamps frequently do not apply in their own names but merely send their messenger boys to the Custom House for stamps. In such cases these stamps are paid for in cash and naturally the Government has no record outside of the name of the messenger boy to whom they have been sold."

Mr. Maloney has been President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange since the resignation of William S. Silkworth.

INQUIRY REPORT CONFIRMED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The fact that an investigation of reports that certain members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange have failed to use tax stamps in stock transfers was confirmed here tonight by Charles R. Nash, Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Mr. Nash, however, said that he was not in a position to discuss the matter in detail at this time.

It is understood here that agents of the Bureau's Intelligence Department have been at work on the case for several weeks and that the task had required the running down of many leads. Only preliminary reports have been made to the Washington headquarters as yet. The work of the agents is being supervised by the New York bureau of the special agents.

As far as could be learned, no agents of members who, according to the reports, are accused of evading the tax stamp law, have been in Washington in an effort to bring political pressure to bear. It is said that action will be taken against any offenders, if warranted by the facts developed.

Election for La Follette Seat Waits Till Fall; Leaders Weigh Chances of Widow and Son

MADISON, Wis., June 26.—An election to choose a successor to the late Senator Robert M. La Follette will not be called before Autumn. This is a decision reached by Governor Blaine, according to men close to the Governor.

The consideration the Governor has given the situation is said to have led him to the conclusion that nothing is to be gained from a hastily called election. If the campaign is deferred until Fall, sufficient time will be afforded the rank and file of voters who have been followers of Mr. La Follette to determine their choice of a successor. If differences develop, there will be time to iron them out.

The voters will have opportunity to decide whether they desire to choose either Mrs. Robert M. La Follette or Robert M. La Follette Jr. to fill the vacancy. If it appears that a union could be effected upon the candidacy of either, that fact is expected to be evident within the next two months.

So far as Mrs. La Follette is concerned, no one now believes that she desires the Senatorship. With Robert M. La Follette Jr. the case may be different. Some who were insisting a few days ago that Mrs. La Follette fill the vacancy are now weighing the chances of her son. In the background looms the Blaine candidacy, which will be brought forward by the Governor's friends in the event no member of the La Follette family desires to run.

No harm will be done to his own candidacy by Governor Blaine's decision to defer the election. In fact, it is believed that he will be stronger in September than he is now, while both Mrs. La Follette and Robert M. La Follette Jr. will be correspondingly weaker.

Two months hence the voters will be influenced by emotionalism far less than if the election were called forthwith.

NECKLACE MISSING A YEAR RETURNED

Paris Girl Who Found American Woman's $30,000 String Had Been Afraid to Act.

PARIS, June 26.—A necklace of 302 pearls, declared to be worth $30,000, which was lost more than a year ago in Paris by an American woman whose name is being kept secret, is now in the hands of the police as a result of the twinge of conscience experienced by the person who found the necklace the night it was lost and kept it ever since.

The loss occurred in March, 1924. The owner at that time was stopping in one of the big Paris hotels. Returning from a walk one evening she discovered that her necklace was missing. She reported the loss to the hotel proprietor and left him to report the matter to the police, as she found a very urgent message for her return at once to America.

The police made an investigation without satisfactory results and much doubt had been developed in their quarter as to the truth of the American woman's story. Yesterday, however, the whole mystery was cleared up by the appearance of a young man before the police with the missing necklace. He explained that the necklace had been in the possession of a young woman friend since last March. She had found it on the street near the hotel, where the American woman was stopping and without much reflection pushed it into her handbag. She let days pass without making up her mind whether to return the jewelry or not and finally allowed so long a time to slip by that she became reluctant to bring the precious article to the police for fear of questions. On the other hand, she dared not attempt to dispose of it.

Several days ago she made a clean breast of the whole matter to her friend and he advised her to return the necklace to the police immediately. She was afraid to do so and he accepted the mission on her behalf.

KAISER'S LETTER STIRS THE ANTI-MONARCHISTS

Message Is Made Public in Which He Appeals for a Return to the 'Prussian Virtues.'

BERLIN, June 26.—On the occasion of the 250th celebration this month of the anniversary of the Battle of Fehrbellin when Germany in the Brandenburg district defeated the Swedes, Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm sent from his Dutch place of exile a letter to the celebrators which is arousing great anger in anti-monarchist circles here. Wilhelm wrote:

"Unshakable cooperation between monarch and people together with self-sacrificing patriotism laid the foundation for Brandenburg and Prussian greatness. Only a return to Prussian virtues can liberate us from the madness of slavery. Fifty years ago at the 200th anniversary celebration of the Battle of Fehrbellin my late father was present. Today, his grandson, my son Prince Oscar, brings you the greetings of the Prussian royal house. Into the dust with all the enemies of Brandenburg."

This letter was kept dark by the managers of the anniversary celebration, its effect on anti-Wilhelmians being feared. But today the full text of Wilhelm's letter was published by the Volkszeitung, the Berlin newspaper being anything but friendly to him and his. The Volkszeitung remarks: "Prince and people no longer must stand together today. It is enough now if the people stand together. Now we manage our own affairs. Has not Wilhelm grasped that yet?"

BUFFALO, June 26 (AP).—Establishment of a college course in men's clothing designing, because "creation of clothes styles is an 'art,'" was recommended by N. P. "There is a special college course for architects," said Mr. Himmel, "so why shouldn't there be for clothes designing, which is fully as much of an art and a profession?"

COURT UPHOLDS RYE AMUSEMENT PARKS

Issues Injunction Prohibiting Police From Preventing Parking Near Resorts.

OPPRESSION IS CHARGED

Counsel Says Village Seeks to Destroy Business—Stay Granted on Sunday Closure.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 26.—A permanent injunction, restraining the trustees and police of Rye from enforcing the village ordinance which prohibits parking on Rye Beach Avenue, was handed down late this afternoon by Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor Jr. This injunction had been sought by a number of the concessionares at Rye Beach parks through Moses M. Miller, attorney, of Port Chester.

Mr. Miller charged that the village of Rye was "using every means to destroy business at Paradise Park and Rye Beach amusement parks," and that the police were being directed by the trustees of the village to hamper the activities of the parks.

He alleged that a method of oppression adopted by the village this year was to increase taxes on the park property, so that a parcel assessed at $125,000 last year was valued at $300,000 this year.

In accusing the police and trustees, Mr. Miller said that six officers were at the park to drive customers away. One day last week a father and mother with two small children stopped on Rye Beach Avenue in front of one of the parks, he said. While the two children went into a popcorn stand to make a purchase one of the six police officers directed the father and mother to drive on or else be taken to Police Headquarters and be locked up. The hysterical children were lost from their parents for three hours, he said. Mr. Miller also charged many similar incidents and filed affidavits to support the allegations.

Daniel Kelly, Corporation Counsel of Rye, was asked by Justice Taylor if it were not true that the trustees were attempting to close the parks permanently by such methods as Mr. Miller described, but Mr. Kelly replied that he was not in a position to make any such admission.

Another blow at the trustees was delivered when Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger ruled that the Rye village authorities must not close the two amusement parks by application of the Sabbath law until the question of legality for parks operation on Sunday had been fully decided by the Supreme Court.

This ruling was made in granting a stay to the attorneys for the two parks, which will prevent the police from interfering with their operation. Justice Seeger said that no court in the State would permit a municipality peremptorily to close parks from which they had accepted license fees.

BANDITS STEAL TRUCK AND $30,000 IN SILK

3 Force Driver and Helper Into Car and Drop Them Far From Scene—2 Escape With Loot.

Five men held up a truck loaded with silk early yesterday at 31 East Thirty-first Street, drove the driver and his helper into a large sedan at pistols' points and got away with the truck. Three of the bandits took the driver, Edward L. Brown of Garfield, N. J., and his helper, to 105th Street and Park Avenue, where they dropped them. The other two stayed on the truck.

Brown told the police of the 104th Street Station that the truck and silk had come from the Lodi (N. J.) plant of the United Piece Dye Works. The silk, in seven trunks and a case, valued at about $30,000, according to the police, was consigned to H. R. Mallinson & Co., 299 Fifth Avenue, and other firms.

Brown had stopped at a restaurant at 31 East Thirty-first Street, as was his custom on these early morning trips, left his helper, Marko Palladino of Lodi, to guard the truck while he went into the restaurant. He was held up when he came out bringing food to his helper.

The holdup, according to the police, is the first successful silk robbery in six weeks. It has been the policy of the police to cover silk and fur trucks as soon as they arrive within city limits with an escort of detectives in a fast car. This one, however, was not protected.

Bernard Friedlander of 1,789 Seventh Street, Brooklyn, was held in $20,000 bail in Yorkville Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of having attempted, Thursday, to rob the Radiant Silk Mills, 411 Fourth Avenue, of $3,000 worth of silk. Friedlander was captured by Patrolman O'Brien of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station after a chase through Fourth Avenue and Thirty-first Street.

The new 8,000-ton 17-knot liner Cherokee, for the Clyde Line passenger and freight service between New York and Jacksonville, arrived yesterday from the builders at Newport News and was saluted by passing craft from Sandy Hook to her pier at the foot of Charlton Street, North River.

The vessel, which cost $2,000,000, is 402 feet long and 54 feet beam, and is equipped with all the modern appliances for the comfort and safety of passengers. It has a glass-enclosed promenade deck, sun parlors, verandas, cafés, smoking and music and writing rooms on the top deck, where there are suites de luxe and several single and double cabins with private baths.

Captain A. D. Ingram, the senior of the Clyde Line fleet, is the master of the new liner, which will be followed shortly by the Seminole and the Mohawk, built along similar lines.

TELLS PROGRESS OF PLANS

Several Promise Aid at Waldorf Dinner—Philadelphia's Regime Praised.

Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia made an earnest plea for the support of New York in the Sesquicentennial International Exposition to be held in Philadelphia for six months beginning June 1, 1926, at a dinner given at the Waldorf-Astoria last night by General Coleman du Pont.

The occasion served to acquaint New York with what has so far been accomplished toward making the exposition, celebrating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, an assured success. The dinner was also in the nature of a farewell to Captain Asher Carter Baker, U. S. N., retired, director of exhibits and foreign participation, who is sailing today on the steamer Paris to enlist the participancy of the various European Governments in the exposition.

General du Pont, as host, made a few introductory remarks, and General W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, acted as toastmaster. In introducing Mayor Kendrick, General Atterbury praised the present administration in Philadelphia and said the City Government worked like a perfect piece of machinery.

Wants More Publicity.

Mayor Kendrick, in his address, said Philadelphia had been making a noble, unselfish and commendable effort to celebrate the 150 years of American independence and was willing to spend millions on the exposition, "but we must have the cooperation of our sister cities and States."

He voiced his regret that the exposition had not received the support of publicity in other cities that it deserved, and especially, he said, he desired the support of the citizens of New York.

Mayor Kendrick told of the erection of a permanent stadium at the exposition seating 100,000 people, in which pageants depicting various stages of American history would be shown, a feature which he considered most important to the youth of the country, whom he described as the biggest asset this nation had.

Through the participation of the nations of the world, he said, a better understanding between nations would come as a result of the exposition, and possibly a dedication of peace and good-will to men.

Announcement was made by General du Pont that Barron G. Collier had offered the committee $50,000 worth of advertisement free, which meant that the exposition would be heralded on billboards and cards from Maine to California. It also was announced that the Pennsylvania Railroad, which in 1923 gave $10,000 to the committee, had given $100,000 for its use.

Colonel D. C. Collier, Director General, said the Philadelphia World's Fair should have 74,000,000 paid admissions, although the committee modestly estimated an attendance of 50,000,000.

Tells of Exhibits.

Ernest T. Trigg, a prime mover in the campaign for the exposition, asserted that it was the intention of the committee in charge to develop an exposition of industry that would be highly educational.

Captain Baker told of the overtures he plans to make to the various European Governments, and of the valuable historical documents he hoped to obtain for exhibition from England and France dealing with American independence.

Among those who attended the dinner were Otto H. Kahn, Everett Johnson, former Secretary of State of Delaware; W. S. Abrahams, A. M. Greenfield, E. J. Lafferty, Charles H. Crakelow, Edward Loeb, the Mayor's Secretary; Charles H. Kendrick, Colonel G. W. B. Hicks, Major E. J. Hicks, U. S. A.; Captain D. E. Campbell, U. S. M. C.; T. J. Lannon, Major M. F. McAleer, all of Philadelphia; Captain D. E. Dismukes, U. S. N., representing the United States Navy; Representative D. O. Hastings of Delaware, and Senators J. G. Highfield and W. Hardesty of Delaware.

Also E. J. Luce, L. M. Boomer, David Cromback, Special Deputy Police Commissioner Dr. J. A. Harriss, Henry Allen Johnson, Maurice Fox, Saul E. Rogers, William Fried, V. E. Scott, J. Lantry, E. Leffingwell, Clarence J. Loewe and Gerald K. Rudolph, all of New York, and John T. Dickinson, who was Secretary of the World's Fair in Chicago.

6 FREED IN BEACH MURDER.

One Man Held to Protect Him From the Killers, It Is Said.

Magistrate Conway in Far Rockaway Court dismissed yesterday six of seven men arrested last Sunday in connection with the shooting to death of James Splaine in a bungalow near Rockaway Beach. According to the police, Splaine, who was an escaped Sing Sing convict, was shot by two men who had vowed to "get" him.

The man who was held was Arthur Eagan, against whom no charges will be pressed, according to Assistant District Attorney Dowling. Those who were released were: James Breen of 147 East Forty-ninth Street, Daniel Maher of 163 East Forty-sixth Street, William Connor of 216 East Forty-fifth Street, John Olivieri of 805 Second Avenue, Louis Elsner of 825 Second Avenue, and Joseph Bailey of 210 East Fifty-eighth Street, all of Manhattan.

Eagan, whose home is at 203 East Forty-third Street, Manhattan, was forced by one of the murderers at the point of a gun to help drag Splaine's body to the seashore, while the other six men were forced to clean up the bungalow by the other, according to the police. It was made clear in court yesterday that Eagan was held principally to protect him from the men who attacked Splaine.

LEGION TAKES UP DRY LAW.

Resolution Demanding Repeal Finally Tabled at Convention.

Thirty minutes of heated discussion regarding a resolution condemning the Volstead act and demanding its repeal was the feature last night of the closing of the seventh annual convention of the Kings County American Legion, in the 106th Regiment Armory, Bedford and Atlantic Avenues, Brooklyn. The resolution was offered by Old Glory Naval Post of Bay Ridge. It was finally tabled by a vote of 136 to 81.

The resolution, if adopted, was to have been sent to the State and national organizations and was to have been acted on at the national convention.

The various posts in the county last night turned over to Peter Seery, head of the Brooklyn campaign to raise the borough quota toward the $500,000 American Legion endowment fund for wounded veterans and their dependents the sum of $7,000.

Extortion Case Dropped.

Thomas Fray, 23 years old, a presser, of 309 West Eleventh Street, was arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday charged with disorderly conduct and attempted extortion. He was arrested a week ago on the complaint of A. Charles, who said Fray had offered to settle labor troubles at his cloak manufactory. Charles said he thought he was being victimized and notified the police. The extortion charge against Fray was dismissed by Magistrate Goodman, but he was fined $25 for disorderly conduct.

Parachute Jumper Clings to Fire Escape; Ball Ground Backstop Stops Another

A fire-escape served an unusual purpose and rescued one parachute jumper from the air, while a rabbit-wire baseball backstop stopped another yesterday at Bayonne, where the Veterans of Foreign Wars held their sixth annual encampment.

The fire-escape which entered a new field of service was on a four-story brick building at Hudson Boulevard and Twentieth Street. The refugee from an unexpected element was Chief Petty Officer Alva Starr, who had been dropped at a height of 2,000 feet by a bomber from Miller Field, S. I. Starr intended to land in City Park where the veteran encampment was being held, but the wind blew him away and over streets.

As he descended, he was in peril of a collision with the side of a building, which might have rendered the parachute useless and caused him to fall with all his weight. By careful manoeuvring Starr came alongside the fire-escape, seized it and made it prove itself an all-around life-saver.

Chief Petty Officer L. H. Ford of the Shenandoah dropped from the dirigible as it was cruising at a height of 1,400 feet over Bayonne earlier in the day and descended in City Park.

As he neared the ground, Ford drifted against the wire netting of a tall baseball backstop, but he shoved away with his foot and a second later landed lightly on the baseball diamond. He delivered a message of congratulation from Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne to F. J. Benson, head of the veterans in New Jersey.

Leaving Bayonne the Shenandoah flew over to Asbury Park, where the Elks were holding a convention, and then back to Lakehurst, where it cruised about for two hours before finally returning to the hangar. It was in the air nine hours altogether and had a successful flight in all respects.

DENIES DIMINISHED TAX ON 'DEPRECIATED' PLAYS

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).— The right to claim depreciation in the value of producing rights to plays in computing income tax returns was denied to theatrical producers today by the Board of Tax Appeals.

In an appeal by William Harris Jr. of New York the board held that deductions for obsolescence of the right to produce two plays were contrary to the provisions of law, saying Congress had not placed these rights in the category with mines and oil and gas wells, for which specific provision is made.

Mr. Harris, the board said, had deducted the actual cost of the right to produce the plays in question on the basis of contracts entered into in 1918 and 1919 and this deduction was allowed by the Internal Revenue Bureau. The bureau also allowed deductions from the gross income of the expense of preparation for the first performance.

"But he contends now," the opinion added, "that he is entitled to set up a basis, uncertain in amount, for obsolescense of the right to produce the plays. He frankly concedes that his theory is similar to the deduction for depletion allowed by the Revenue act in the case of mines and oil and gas wells enforced by the taxpayers. He contends that because of the disproportion between the original cost and the value which emerges from a successful play shortly after its first performance, it is unfair to tax all of the proceeds of the production as income without allowance for the recovery of the value for which his own effort is primarily responsible."

The opinion declared that the board frequently had held that the deduction for depreciation and obsolescence was for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to recover his capital outlay before taxing his income. In this case, it said, there was no reason to make an exception to that general rule.

DESERTS WIFE IN LONDON.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The story of an unnamed, beautiful, red-haired American woman, deserted by her husband in London, is told in The Daily Express.

She went to a police station here Thursday in a hysterical condition and related that her husband, from whom she had been estranged, persuaded her when she came from Paris to renew their married life at a country mansion he had bought for her. They spent a week-end there but there was a quarrel and she alleges that on the return journey her husband stopped the hired car in which they were traveling, jumped out and disappeared.

The woman had only four shillings six pence and on the advice of the driver went to the police station. An Earl's daughter, who heard of the woman's plight offered to shelter her if her husband did not return. He is described as a Major whose name was mentioned in a recent trial.

MRS. BAUER ACQUITTED.

Jury That Tried Wife of Ex-Policeman for Murder Out 45 Minutes.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 26.—After deliberating forty-five minutes, a jury in the Nassau County Court this afternoon acquitted Mrs. Lottie F. Bauer of the charge of killing her husband, Fred Bauer, a former policeman, at their home in Hempstead on April 26 last.

Mrs. Bauer was charged with murder in the second degree. Bauer was shot by his wife in a struggle for possession of a pistol with which, she said, he had threatened to kill her. The woman took the stand in her own defense and said that the weapon was discharged accidentally. She said that several years Bauer had been a heavy drinker and that he frequently had beat her and mistreated her. The trial lasted two days.

DETROIT, June 26 (AP).—The Ford Motor Company's airplane freight line will be extended to Cleveland on July 1, it was announced today. Coincidentally announcement was made that the third Ford freight plane, to be christened Maiden Dearborn III.., has been completed, and will go on the Detroit-Cleveland route.

Fire Halts Bronx Phone Service.

A fire of undetermined origin was discovered in the Sedgwick telephone central office at 184th Street and Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, early yesterday morning. The New York Telephone Company reported that while the fire was promptly extinguished, it affected the outgoing service of about 2,000 lines. Repairs were undertaken at once. The service is expected to be restored on all lines by today.

An audience filling every seat and overflowing the vacant spaces attended the Goldman Band concert at New York University campus last evening. The Tchaikovsky program proved a great attraction. Mr. Goldman's expectations of increasing crowds are being fulfilled.

The program tonight will be largely drawn from Victor Herbert. Lotta Madden will be the singer.

2 DEAD, 2 MISSING IN THEATRE BLAST

CAUSE IS STILL UNKNOWN

But It Is Believed That the Tragedy May Have Been Due to Escaping Gas in Restaurant.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26 (AP).—Firemen and laborers searched the charred and twisted wreckage of the Gillis Theatre Building today and uncovered the body of one victim of the the explosion and fire that demolished the building late last night. The body was that of Harry Linsky, a cook, and it was buried under tons of debris.

Finding of the body brought to two the total number of the victims. John Hogan, fireman, died in a hospital from injuries sustained when a fire truck overturned while en route to the scene.

With the finding of the body today Fire Chief Alex Henderson expressed the belief that not more than one or two additional victims would be found in the debris. Only two men have been unaccounted for.

Numerous investigations failed to reveal the exact cause of the explosion. It was generally believed the tragedy resulted from escaping gas in the basement of the restaurant located in the theatre building.

Of the many victims taken to a hospital suffering from burns and lacerations, only four remained under physicians' care tonight. Thomas Audley, fireman, who was hurt in the same fire truck accident with Hogan, was suffering probable internal injuries. The condition of the other three was not serious.

Those who still remain to be accounted for are Fred Warner, a waiter, and an unknown negro porter, all of whom worked in the restaurant operated by Bert Sanders.

ARMLESS BOY BEST WRITER.

Wins Penmanship Trophy and Gets Highest Marks in His Class.

Harold Wurtzhorn, 15 years old, both of whose arms were amputated several years ago, was the honor student at the graduation exercises of Public School 1, in West New York, N. J., yesterday.

Wurtzhorn, who lives at 721 Bergenline Avenue, West New York, lost his arms in a trolley car accident several years ago. His right arm was severed below the elbow and the left arm at the shoulder. Despite this handicap he not only attained the highest marks of all the pupils in his class, but also was the winner of the Palmer Trophy for penmanship. In writing he uses a pen or pencil fastened in the crook of his right arm by means of a rubber band. He will enter high school this Fall and will later study law.

The boy got $20,000 damages following the accident which resulted in the loss of his arms.

Woman Annoyed Dr. McGrath.

On the complaint of Dr. John McGrath, President of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, that she had created a disturbance in his offices, Dorothy Ferber, 32 years old, of 916 East Fifteenth Street, was committed to Bellevue for observation by Magistrate McAndrews in Yorkville Court yesterday. James H. Fay, the physician's secretary, who appeared for him, said that Dr. McGrath had operated on the woman some time ago and that she had annoyed him on a previous occasion. He said that yesterday she brushed in and demanded news of her brother and sister, who died several years ago, and spoke of wireless messages from Heaven.

A verdict for the defendant was returned by a jury before Judge Cutler in the Hudson County Supreme Court in Jersey City yesterday in the $25,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Laura A. Gardner against Charles M. Gardner, her stepson, for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, his father, Ebeneser D. Gardner, 77 years old. Mrs. Gardner lives at 121 Thirty-fifth Street, Woodcliff, N. J.

SEES SINISTER MOTIVE IN COMMUNIST TRIAL

Secretary of Local 2 Says Real Issue Involves Administration of the Union.

The trial of the suspended officials of Local 2 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who were charged with participating with Local 9 in a Communist demonstration in the Metropolitan Opera House on May 1, brought a statement yesterday from C. S. Zimmerman, Secretary of Local 2, representing the defendants, that the union did not dare bring forward the real issue back of the charges. He said that the real question involved the administration of the affairs of the organization. The union, he said, was threatened with a split into separate factions over questions of administration.

"The charges of communism are a thin pretense to mask the real issue of the trial," he said. "The Joint Board of the union is animated by personal motives in its attempt to oust the suspended officials from office. A split will inevitably result if the defendants are not discharged."

The Joint Board is made up of five representatives from each local. The union, Mr. Zimmerman charged, had gone to the length of forming fictitious locals to keep a balance of power. As an example he instanced the Buttonhole Makers' local. Locals 2 and 9, he said, represented 60 per cent. of membership, and although they had small representation on the Joint Board, he said, they must pay their assessments as individuals.

"The belief that the trial is a formality to insure discharge was substantiated by the fact that the tribunal had refused to consider a statement prepared by the defendants of Local 2, in which they denied the charges against them, and requested that the trial be held before a disinterested jury," said Mr. Zimmerman.

The trial was continued yesterday behind closed doors at the Yates Hotel in West Forty-third Street. All but nine of the officials of Local 9, who appeared individually, were tried yesterday. The tribunal refused to heed a request for the removal from the tribunal of Israel Feinberg, General Manager of the Joint Board and Vice President of the master union, who made the charges against the officials on trial. The suspended officials of Local 9 will probably be placed on trial today.

on the east end of the building, containing the pews. The roof had been burned off the entire building. The altar with its elaborate carvings had been severely damaged, but the pastor's study, it was said, had not suffered much. The side walls were said to be unimpaired.

The original Christ Church stood for many years in Ann Street. It was next removed to Beekman Street and previous to the building of the present church thirty-five years ago, it stood at Thirty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, the site now occupied by the store of B. Altman & Co.

The present church was built by the then rector, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Shipman, father of the Right Rev. Herbert Shipman, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of New York.

No estimate of the damage was given out.

The business structure on the Broadway frontage was not damaged. The plot was rented to Michael H. Lazarus, a real estate operator, for sixty-five years at an annual rental of $24,000, to be increased in twenty-five years to $35,000. At the end of that time the ground and the building revert to the church.

MME. KELTIE WINS PARIS OPERA TRIUMPH

PARIS, June 26.—Mme. Madeleine Keltie, American soprano who, last Winter had great success at Monte Carlo and Rome, made her Paris début tonight at the Opera Comique in "Butterfly." The selection of a new singer for her début during Grande Prix week is an honor rarely conferred, and the occasion was eagerly anticipated not only by the American colony but by the French, whom recent experiences led to become skeptical of the ability of a purely American singer to maintain traditions in so great a rôle.

Mme. Keltie's success, however, was unquestioned. The purity of her voice and the dramatic power of her performance roused the greatest enthusiasm and the aria in the second act had to be repeated before the audience was satisfied. No American soprano has had such success in any French national opera house in a considerable number of years.

economic systems broken down and disorganized, the President feels that the people of the United States will bear their share of the burden and inconvenience resulting from the war. The American people, he believes, will be obliged to meet these conditions, whether they want to or not, but sentiment in this country, in his opinion, will not agree to any plan or scheme which would make us pay the reparations or cancel the war debts.

Vice President Dawes, en route to Boston to confer with Owen D. Young, his associate on the committee of experts which drafted the Dawes plan, halted long enough to pay his respects to the President and display his pipe and snapping eyes to the photographers. He remained with the President about half an hour, inspected the Summer White House and walked around the grounds.

General Dawes declined to discuss international problems and especially would not give his opinion as to the operation of the Dawes plan. He thinks, however, that it is working well and appeared to be especially pleased with the position of President Coolidge toward Sir Joshua Stamp's proposal.

President Coolidge learned one thing from Mr. Dawes today and that was how to cure a collie dog of chasing automobiles.

"The one end of a rope about thirty feet in length to the dog's collar and fasten the other end to a stake in the ground," Mr. Dawes said. "When an automobile comes along the road the dog will have forgotten that he is tied and will go leaping after the car. It is no use telling you what happens when the end of the rope is suddenly reached, for the dog comes to a very sudden stop. He only tries this twice and after that he pays no more attention to automobiles."

The President appeared greatly interested and amused at the advice but did not say whether Rob Roy has such common traits as chasing automobiles.

President Takes a Motor Ride.

The President's day was featured with a motor ride to Marblehead Neck, a distance of about two miles, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and Captain Andrews, commander of the yacht Mayflower. They stopped at the slip in front of the Corinthian Yacht Club and from there saw the Mayflower anchored out in the little cove. The President has intimated that he intends to go aboard for a cruise on Sunday, but it is not thought that he will desire to go any distance out to sea. He may have his religious services on the yacht as there is a chaplain aboard.

President Coolidge returned to White Court at 9:45 o'clock and with Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Stearns, walked about the grounds and among the flowers. Then the President went to his study and applied himself for an hour to a stack of papers, eight inches high, on his desk. He was thus engaged until 11 o'clock, when he received Edward P. Quinn, Mayor of Cambridge, his first official caller since his arrival at White Court. Mayor Quinn told the President of the final arrangements which had been made for the President when he speaks at the 150th anniversary of Washington's taking command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, on July 3.

Following the conference, the President and Mrs. Coolidge drove to Nahant, which was the home of Senator Lodge. Upon their return Mrs. Coolidge drove to Salem accompanied by Mrs. Stearns. There she did her first shopping since coming here. She had to buy some small household utilities such as dish rags, which had not been sent from Washington. She bought these at a 5 and 10 cent store, where she was beset by many persons who spoke to her in a neighborly way. Some of the shoppers knew her well and called her "Grace."

Takes a Morning Walk.

The President was up before 7 o'clock this morning and just as soon as he could hustle into some clothing was out in the open for a walk about the rocks along the shore in front of White Court, and then later he strolled along Puritan Road for about a mile and a half.

The wind had shifted during the night and while brisk and chilly was not so cold as it was yesterday. The skies had cleared, giving every promise of an ideal day—the kind the North Shore people brag about. The thermometer registered 58. Breakfast was ready when the President returned. He appeared greatly invigorated. There was a good color in his face and his gait was livelier than ordinary.

There is no doubting the fact that Mr. Coolidge has already been benefited by his coming here. Some of the residents in Swampscott who had seen him during his previous visits say that while he had taken on little weight he looked pale and worn. They thought at first that he was not a well man. Major James F. Coupal, the President's physician, who is staying near White Court for the Summer, soon dispelled this idea. He said this morning after seeing the President that he is in the best of condition.

An airplane flew over White Court today and dropped a message from Governor Fuller that Massachusetts had raised its $325,000 quota for the American Legion endowment. Mr. Coolidge is Honorary Chairman of the fund and a modest contributor.

If the President goes to the conference of Governors at Poland Springs, Me., he will be asked to ride in one of the dirigibles, the Los Angeles or Shenandoah, which will be sent there by Secretary Wilbur, but it is not probable that he will venture to ride in the airship.

President Coolidge confirmed the reports today that he would leave perhaps on his birthday, July 4, by motor for a brief visit to his father at Plymouth. It is understood that he will leave the seaside early on that morning so that he can make the run into the Vermont hills in six hours, which would be required going at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

Tomorrow he is going for a ride to Cambridge and the surrounding territory. He invited the newspaper men to accompany him on his trip, which may take him to the navy yard.

DAWES CONFERS WITH YOUNG

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 26.—Owen D. Young conferred here tonight with Vice President Dawes, his associate on the committee of experts which evolved the Dawes plan, now being attacked by Sir Joshua Stamp. Mr. Young accepted the attitude of General Dawes that comment would not be helpful at this juncture with the chief European nations disturbed over the Administration's demands for a refunding of the war debt.

Both believe that the plan is practical, and that recent criticism does not reflect the sentiment of the statesmen of Europe, who, they believe, accepted the Dawes plan as feasible and the best experimental program brought forth to meet the economic situation and aid Germany in meeting her reparation obligations.

LONDON, June 26.—Jim Barnes of the United States won the British Open Golf Championship today. His victory was leavened for British golfers by the fact that he was born in Cornwall. Barnes had declared his determination to cross the Atlantic every year until he won, but his victory today was a close one. At the end of the third round Macdonald Smith, local favorite, led him by five strokes. Victory for Smith seemed assured, but he cracked under the strain and his breakdown was easily explainable. He had to fight rather than play through the crowd of 15,000 persons who followed his fortunes over the Prestwick course. The stewards and police were quite unable to prevent interference with the players, who at times were forced to wait ten minutes before they could take a shot.

Barnes's victory was a popular one, but Smith being born Scottish, it was natural that a mainly Scottish crowd should desire his success. Their enthusiasm was largely responsible for his failure. He needed a last round of 78 to win, but couldn't plough his way through the scrambling crowds in less than 82.

The experience at Prestwick this year convinced many golfers that Americans can be too popular in this district. It was even suggested that unless conditions under which the championship is played can be improved upon, Prestwick should be wiped off the list of championship courses.

Smith wasn't the only player to suffer from the attentions of the crowd. So many persons gathered around the greens during the day that only comparatively few were able to see what was happening. Thousands rushed from green to green with harassed perspiring stewards, and police intermingled with them, striving desperately to evolve order out of chaos and mostly without success.

In the melées the ball would be tramped on and kicked sometimes a distance of fifty yards. Stray dogs again manifested keen interest in affairs. Charles Whitcomb, one of the British hopes, was taking a stance for a shot when a dog flew at him and bit him in the hand, causing his retirement from the championship.

Smith, in relating his Prestwick experiences in the Daily Graphic, declares that he could not have lost the championship if the crowd had let him play. "They would not let me swing a club," he says. "They would not let me take the line even for a six-foot putt. I shall never do it again. I should have picked up my ball this afternoon and walked in. They were racing behind me and speaking, and when I missed a putt some of them cheered.

"I have played in many places in the world, but never experienced such a rabble as beat me this afternoon. It was a disgrace that they allowed it to happen. I don't mind failing. I would have kept coming over until I'd have won the championship, but did not think the crowd at a golf meeting in Scotland would have behaved as they did. After what happened I could not wait to take my prize."

Immediately he finished this afternoon Smith collected his clubs and left for Ayr. It is reported that he was in a state of complete collapse.

Ray and Compston Second.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, June 26 (AP).—Two Britons who tried most valiantly to keep their cup from resting longer in an alien land failed only by one stroke each to equal Barnes's accomplishment. One of them is the veteran Edward Ray, champion of years ago. The other is a rising star of North English golf, Archie Compston of North Manchester. Each scored a 301. Each could have tied Barnes by getting down his final putts on the last green this afternoon, but both failed. Compston ran his ball past the cup and Ray was short of it.

Fourth place in the tournament was taken by another American, Macdonald Smith, with a score of 303. Almost every one of the 30,000 or more spectators who watched the championship play thought Smith would win it when he began his last round this afternoon, almost an hour after Barnes had ended his labors with the wood and iron. Smith's failure to do so supplied the most complete and distressing collapse that the championship has brought forth in recent years.

Two strokes back of Smith came Abe Mitchell, whose total was 305. This noted player had played consistent golf throughout the two days, but it was not good enough to win. The remainder of the field trailed behind the leaders, most of them with amazingly poor scores. Joe Kirkwood, the third American challenger, finished with a 314, having recuperated a great deal today with two rounds of 76, after starting yesterday so badly that he was not at all in the running for the title after the first thirty-six holes had been played.

Compston Is Consistent.

To Compston fell the honor of playing the most consistent golf of the lot. His rounds were a 76 followed by three 75s, but the scores were not good enough to beat the former Pelham professional.

The victory of Barnes will bring about a searching of souls whenever golfers gather in this country to discuss the game and their national standing in it. Barnes is the fourth American to win the championship in five years, and in another year Hagen came within a stroke of tieing for the title. Also once before Macdonald Smith attained a place high up among the leaders.

Now that Barnes has scored the victory, his conquest will be a popular one, for he earned the laurels well from the start. He was second favorite in the betting, Smith being first. Although his game was developed and his reputation achieved on the other side of the Atlantic, it was on this side that Barnes was born and learned to swing golf clubs. He is a native of Cornwall, and that is where he is hurrying off tonight, now that he has won the title, in order to visit his mother.

In winning, Barnes has been rewarded for trying again after failing not only in his first attempt, but five times. When the British open golf championships were resumed in 1920 after a five years' lapse due to the World War, Barnes came over to compete, and he has been coming over annually ever since, always saying that he intended to keep on coming each Summer until he should win.

Such pluck and persistency, in face of all the odds and expenses that golf 3,000 miles away from home entails, the British admire. The closest Barnes ever came to winning before was with his score of 301 in the championship at Sandwich in 1922. Hagen beat him by one stroke and Duncan tied with him for second place. Two years ago at Troon Barnes failed to qualify.

Captures the Next Two.

Going to the sixteenth this morning, Barnes's ball was ensnared by the thick grass and soft sand in the fiercest of the bunkers—the celebrated Cardinal—that stretches across the centre of two fairways for a hundred yards or so. From an awkward stance, one foot almost a yard below the other, Barnes hoisted the ball high in the air with a mighty effort, and it plopped squarely on the green sixty yards away, and he got a birdie 3. Then at the home hole the ball was half buried in the sand at the bottom of the bunker's face.

A furious effort failed to get the ball out, but the next succeeded in moving it. Taking his time, Barnes got it out on the next shot. He took his two putts to finish with a 5 and then rested on his oars waiting to see what the other players would do.

For Macdonald Smith this was the saddest of afternoons. All along it had been predicted that he would win this championship, and when he broke loose yesterday afternoon with a 69 on top of a steady score in the morning it seemed that finally the time had come to conquer. It seemed more so today when he was five strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, when there were only eighteen holes more to play and he had been playing well.

Then came the crash. It was one that the Scots who saw it in their scurrying, swelling thousands never will forget. The trouble began at the third, after a start with two holes in par. There Smith was in the rough and took a 6. This was not so bad, however, for the third is a hard par 5. At the fourth and fifth Smith drove into bunkers and was two more over par. At the sixth he made a par 4, but on the seventh and eighth he was bunkered. He did not dare to get far out on the green for the pin, but, knowing a 78 would do, was content to be cautious and merely get out.

This cost him 6 on the seventh hole and another 6 followed at the eighth, where he took three putts. He drove into the rough at the ninth and missed an iron shot in trying to get out; but after getting the third shot on the green he was down in one putt for a 4, to turn in 42. Smith then had wasted the six shots over an average of fours that Barnes's score allowed him, and he was faced with the necessity of coming in in 36 to win.

At the tenth a mashie to the short eleventh lodged on the face of the bunker. It took Smith two shots to extricate it, and another hole had cost him five.

He was bunkered again at the twelfth with his approach and took another 5. The fourteenth it seemed too late, but Smith made a fighting shot, reminiscent of Walter Hagen. He had driven into a deep bunker, but he whaled into the ball and it dropped dead, sixty yards away and less than a yard from the pin. Then he went up only to miss the little putt. A 6 followed on the par 4 fifteenth and Smith was eliminated as a factor in this championship.

BARNES HAS CAPTURED ALL THE MAJOR TITLES

Won P. G. A. Crown Twice, Western Open Three Years and the National Open Once.

In winning the British open championship at Prestwick yesterday "Long Jim" Barnes stepped up on equal terms with Walter Hagen and Jock Hutchison, the only other American representatives to capture the British title. It also rounded out Barnes's record, for the British title was the only one of the major championships that he has not held at one time or another.

Until this year it was a "will-'o-the-wisp," so far as he was concerned, for he made many sorties in quest of it and several times was within a few shots of it only to miss. His worst showing in the British event was two years ago when he and Gene Sarazen failed to qualify. On every other occasion, except last year when he finished ninth, he was either sixth or better.

Yesterday's triumph was the first that has fallen Barnes's way since the 1921 national open championship at Washington, where he spread-eagled the entire field and finished nine shots ahead of Hagen and Freddie McLeod, who finished in a tie for second place. He had an excellent chance to gain a title at French Lick Springs, where the P. G. A. championship was played last year. After traveling along in ravishing style Barnes ran afoul of Hagen in the final round and lost by two holes, his putter failing him several times during the round.

Had Barnes won that final he would have been the only man to hold the P. G. A. championship three times, for he defeated Jock Hutchison in the first championship, which was played at Siwanoy in 1916, and then repeated in 1919 against Freddie McLeod. He also was runner-up to Hagen at Inwood in 1921.

"Long Jim" has held the Western open three times, his first victory being gained at Interlachen in 1914, at Westmoreland in 1917, and at Mayfield in 1919. He has figured in two ties for the metropolitan open championship, losing to Walter Hagen at Greenwich in 1920 and again to Bob Macdonald at Canoe Brook in 1923. He was the North and South open champion in 1916 and 1919 and also has won numerous sectional championships.

WESTLAND REACHES COLLEGE GOLF FINAL

Washington Ace Beats Held, 3 and 2, and Conquers Wattles of Yale by 1 Up.

LAMPRECHT ALSO ADVANCES

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.
Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 26.—The intercollegiate golf trophy which, up to this year, has taken short trolley-ride jumps between New Haven, Boston, Princeton, Hanover and the Columbia campus, is at last assured of a long journey. Depending on the outcome of tomorrow's final round between A. J. (Jack) Westland and G. Fred Lamprecht, it will either wander out into the wide open spaces of Washington where men are oarsmen or else it will go to New Orleans to languish in the trophy-room of Tulane University. Wherever it goes it is certain to be in worthy hands, for the two finalists are golfers of extraordinary skill.

They had to be in order to wend their way through the present field, which was by long odds the greatest that ever made a bid for the title. In gaining the final Westland, the University of Washington ace, bowled over two such giants as Eddie Held of St. Louis, a young golfer with a long string of successes, and Frank E. Wattles Jr. of Yale, one of the stars of Western New York. He beat Held by 3 and 2 in the third round today and then went on to blast the hopes of the Eli stalwart by 1 up in a match that was not only a test of golf, but of nerves. Lamprecht went into the semi-final at the expense of Burton Mudge Jr., the Princeton captain, whom he defeated by 4 and 3, and then in the afternoon he smothered the Wesleyan star, Stephen Berrien, by 9 and 7.

Wattles and Berrien were elevated into the semi-finals through their victories over Williams College men, the former beating E. P. Stratton, 3 and 2, and the latter winning from W. O. Blaney by 5 and 4.

Lamprecht Races to Victory.

When the semi-final round started two hard-fought matches were expected to be in prospect, but only one-half the expectation was realized, for the Lamprecht-Berrien match was a rout. The Wesleyan graduate managed to halve the first two holes, but nary a one did he win from there on, and the Tulane man, who bears a close resemblance to the former metropolitan champion, Frank Dyer, coasted to victory. After the second hole Berrien and his clubs became as friendly as two uninvoiced bulldogs. Nothing went right for him. Driver, mashie, niblick and putter threw him down at every turn and at most of the holes that Lamprecht won he wasn't required to get even par figures.

The other match between Westland and Wattles was a real match—a great one to win and a hard one to lose. The Yale man put himself in the hole by his unsteadiness on the first five holes, where he stood 4 down. But from that point on, right through to the eighteenth green, he fought a fight such as is not often seen, on his part a brilliant shot-making on his part, coupled with a slight wavering on the part of the Far Westerner, he got back three of the four holes, but he couldn't quite get back the necessary fourth.

There were several critical holes, but the most critical of all was the twelfth, which probably turned the match in Westland's favor. Here Wattles, his confidence back through taking both the eighth and the ninth from his rival, stood on the green practically assured of another victory. He had driven to the green and his ball rested above the hole on the right, not twenty-five feet away. Westland's tee shot was poorly directed, landing in the rough to the left of the green and leaving the Washingtonian a difficult pitch that was fraught with uncertainty. It was a critical point for the man from the Coast, for the loss of that hole would leave him only 1 up, with six holes left to play.

Wattles Falls Short of Hole.

He gave the shot careful attention, took a niblick and pitched beautifully on to the green, about four yards past the hole. Wattles then putted short by eighteen inches or so and his ball was almost dead in the lips of Westland's putt. Taking a leaf from Jim borrow in the green, the Coast star just managed to get his ball past Wattles's and into the hole for a wonderful 3 and a half.

That putt had not a little to do with what transpired afterward. It certainly affected Wattles's drive to the next hole, for he pushed his ball off into the long grass and succeeded in getting his half only by dint of spectacular recovery, sliding his ball through and around some trees and reaching the green to get a great half in 4. He played another heroic shot for his half at the fourteenth. Going to the hole he drove a trifle too far and had to play his second from a hanging lie after Westland had played an iron on the green, seven yards from the hole. He then hooked the ball to the left, but clipped up so close that he was able to hole out for a par 4.

They halved the long fifteenth in par 5s, Westland having to play an approach off soggy ground and Wattles making a poor chip. Then came a break in the Yale youngster's favor, for Westland's high chip shot to the short sixteenth half buried itself on the green and cost him the hole. Both made gorgeous recoveries playing the seventeenth, Westland's boldness almost causing him to lose the hole. He had played the corner too close off the tee and had to dig his ball out of long grass and likewise reach the green, for Wattles was already on with a putt for a 3.

Westland went after the shot, and his ball stopped on the fringe of short rough on the back of the green. Two feet more and it would have been trapped. He had to lay a chip dead from half way across the green, but succeeded, and so got his half when Wattles missed. Again at the last hole Westland had to chip dead to prevent the match from going extra holes, but once more he was equal to the emergency.

The two finalists, while unknown hereabouts, have compiled wonderful records during the past year. Westland, who has played all his golf in Seattle and Everest, last year defeated Bon Stein for the Wasnington State amateur title and also won the medal in the same tournament, and he finished second in the State open championship. He has been the University of Washington champion three years and the Pacific-Northwest champion two years and he also holds the Seattle City championship and was runner-up in the Seattle decennial championship.

Lamprecht, who holds the title in his home city, Cleveland, is the Gulf States champion, having beaten Bert Jones, former runner-up in the Western and Louisiana State, to win the title for the third time this Spring. He defeated Bob Baugh of Alabama for the Southern intercollegiate title, was runner-up to Reuben Bush for the Louisiana State amateur crown and defeated Nelson Whitney in the final for the New Orleans district title. He lost out in the semi-final round of the Southern amateur championship, falling before Glenn Crissman, the winner. He played in the intercollegiates two years ago, but was eliminated by Chet Bowles of Yale in the opening round. He is a senior at Tulane, while Westland is a second-year law man at the University of Washington.

In defeating Held in the third round this morning, Westland outsteadied the Missourian, who has held the public links and the Trans-Mississippi titles. Held was especially weak on the greens, missing three short putts for halves during the round.

FINLAY, MEDALIST, MET. GOLF LOSER

SCARBOROUGH-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., June 26.—The defeat of the medalist, Phillips Finlay, and a startling nine holes by Jack Mackie Jr. were the outstanding features of the play here today in the metropolitan district junior golf championship in progress at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club. Finlay fell before George Ashforth of Blind Brook 3 up and 2 to play. Mackie defeated Jarvis Hicks of Hempstead 3 and 1, and in so doing played the last nine holes in 32, three strokes under the Sleepy Hollow par.

Two other players besides Ashforth and Mackie reached the semi-final. They were E. A. Brennan of Upper Montclair, who defeated the Apawamis player, Leonard Martin, 3 and 2, and Eugene Homans of Englewood, who advanced at the expense of E. G. Arnott, Upper Montclair, 3 and 2.

COAST STARS MAKE COLLEGE NET FINAL

Holman of Stanford Puts Out Fischer, and Chandler of California Beats Thalheimer.

YALE IS A DOUBLES VICTOR

Jones and Watson Advance at the Expense of Lang and Marshall of Columbia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Cranston Holman of Stanford University today defeated Carl Fischer, Philadelphia College of Osteopathy star and former champion, in the semi-final round of the intercollegiate tennis tourney at the Merion C. C. The score was 6—3, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2.

Fischer proved unsteady, while his rival depended on a strong forehand to come through. Holman took the first two games. The osteopathy star came back to even the count, passing his rival at the net. Holman took the fifth and sixth, the latter going to deuce five times. Fischer won the next game, but Holman ran out, breaking through Fischer's service and winning on his own.

Holman took a love game to open the second set. Each scored on his own service, to make the score 3—all. Then Holman broke through and won at 6—3.

Fischer Regains His Form.

In the third set Fischer regained his form, winning the first four games. He opened by taking a love game and then broke through Holman's service to win again. From this point he did not make a fault. His backhand was working to perfection. The fifth game was won by Holman, 11—9, but Fischer won the next. Then he faltered and lost a 10-all game through weakness at the net. However, he came through to win the set, 6—3. In the last set Holman finished off Fischer easily, 6—2.

E. G. Chandler of California surprised with the easy manner in which he defeated Louis Thalheimer of Texas in the other semi-final round. Chandler won in straight sets 6—1, 6—1, 6—1.

Accordingly this will be the second successive year that a Westerner will win the tourney, for last year Wallace Scott of the University of Washington advanced to the final and defeated Arnold Jones of Yale.

Chandler, like Scott, has a severe service and plays well at the net. He took advantage of every opportunity to come to the barrier and scored repeatedly in this manner. His overhead also was strong, for whenever Thalheimer was obliged to lob the ball a point resulted in favor of Chandler.

Thalheimer Is Erratic.

Thalheimer was erratic, falling continually on his backhand, usually his main asset. Several times with chances of scoring a point he netted the ball. Chandler did not miss an opportunity, passing his man several times with drives down the base lines.

The point score:

FIRST SET.

									Pts.	G.

THIRD SET.

Chandler	4	5	1	4	4	4	4—26	6

Somewhat of an upset occurred in the second round doubles match when Thalheimer, joint holder for two years of the doubles title, was defeated with E. Mather by Holman and Lionel Ogden of Stanford, 8—6, 9—7.

Columbia Loses in Doubles.

G. Hillis and Gerald Stratford of California defeated the Southern champions, L. C. Chamberlain and Dan Murray of Tulane, 6—3, 6—3. Arnold Jones and John Watson of Yale, one of the favorites for the doubles title, won from Jerry Lang and R. Marshall of Columbia, 6—2, 6—3.

The Texas-Stanford match was a close affair, being featured by several long-drawn-out games and brilliant rallies. The outcome of virtually all the games was constantly in doubt.

							Pts.	G.

W. W. Ingraham and J. F. W. Whitbeck, Harvard, advanced to the semi-final round by defeating Frank Broadhurst and A. E. Brussell of M. I. T., 6—4, 6—4.

Th summaries:

Doubles—Second round: Ingram and Whitbeck, Harvard, won from R. Hynson and J. Lambert, Princeton, by default; Holman and Ogden, Stanford, defeated Thalheimer and Mather, Texas, 8—6, 9—7.

HENNESSEY VICTOR BUT CASEY LOSES

Former Conquers F. G. Lowe of England, 9-7, 8-6, 6-4, in Title Tennis at Wimbledon.

LATTER BOWS TO LACOSTE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—John Hennessey is the only American left in the Men's Lawn Tennis championship at Wimbledon. He entered the last eight today when he defeated F. G. Lowe, Englishman, in three long sets, 9—7, 8—6, 6—4. Roy Casey, the other American who survived yesterday, was put out by Rene Lacoste, the young Frenchman whom many fancy for the championship, after a hard fight 8—6, 6—4, 6—1.

Hennessey's victory was a prolonged seesaw and the tennis while perfectly correct was rather dull. Both he and Lowe played a baseline game and the result depended more on accuracy than anything else. The chief difference between the contestants was that Hennasey would generally after the second or third exchange of long range shots advance to the net and try volleying with varying success. He worked hard for the victory.

His next fight will be against either H. Cochet, a Frenchman, or Jagat Mohan Lal, both of whom have done well so far this year.

Casey Puts Up Brave Fight.

Casey has no reason to be downhearted over his defeat at the hands of Lacoste. His fast service puzzled the Frenchman for a time; his volleying at the net when he went right up was brilliant and his forehand driving took a good deal of retrieving. But he was up against a player quite as good at serving and volleying as himself and one who had much better control over the ball. Casey took the offensive soon after the match began and won the first two games and kept the score even until Lacoste had been nailed. His service enabled him to get up quickly and he would have done better if he had gone right to the net instead of staying a few yards from it. Lacoste was almost overwhelmed at first, but gradually found his rival's weak points, and replied to his terrific slams with drives almost equally fast, but better placed. So the first set went to the Frenchman on the fourteenth game.

By this time he discovered Casey's weak baseline driving. He was hitting hard, but lacked control, sending the ball out. Lacoste found it impossible to return the American's service with any sting, but once a rally was under way he concentrated on keeping him from the net. Casey won one particularly fine volleying rally to make the score 4-all, but it was his last effort in the set. Lacoste took it 6—4. Casey broke through Lacoste's service to take the first game in the next set by a love score, but that time Lacoste's all-round brilliancy had done its work and he went on to win the set 6—1.

Borotra Advances Also.

Jean Borotra, the champion, did J. B. Gilbert of England the compliment of playing the hardest against him. In the second set Borotra slowed up and Gilbert had a chance to win but the Frenchman steadied himself and began to play much more accurately triumphing in straight sets, 6—1, 7—5, 6—3.

Mlle. Lenglen resumed her triumphal course, beating Miss E. A. Goldsack and with Miss Ryan putting Mrs. Colgate and Miss Tyrrell out of the ladies' doubles. A good deal of surprise was occasioned by the defeat of Miss Kitty McKane, present champion, and Miss Peggy Saunders by Mrs. A. V. Bridge and Mrs. C. G. McIlquham, 6—3, 7—5.

The two Americans, L. B. Rice and C. S. Garland, reached the second round of the men's doubles, beating A. D. Prebble and Sir C. E. Lyle, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

DOUBLES PLAY ADVANCES.

Von Braun, 6—1, 6—4, 6—3, and René la Coste and Jean Borotra defeated Ferrier and George, 2—6, 6—2, 6—2, 6—3.

GIANTS WIN IN 12TH ON KELLY'S HOMER

BLOW ENDS SEE-SAW BATTLE

By HARRY CROSS.

The score was tied at 6 to 6 in the last of the twilight twelfth inning at the Polo Grounds yesterday and the Giants and the Robins couldn't make up their minds about which club was to win the ball game. More than 10,000 fans were close to exhaustion waiting for the teams to come out of the jury room.

Then a thought struck George Kelly. He happened to remember he had a dinner engagement. He hates cold soup. George does, and if he monkey-doodled around with these Brooklyns much longer he could see himself silently absorbing cold soup.

There were two on when Long George went up to bat in the twelfth. Tiny Osborne was pitching. Kel got under the ball as if making a mashie niblick shot and up went the ball into the humid sky over left field. It hung among a few low-hanging clouds for a few minutes and then started to descend. Limp and speechless it splashed into the upper stand.

That's how the Giants won the ball game, 9 to 6, and remained out of second place in the scamper for the streamer.

Both sides used up all the players they had in uniform and three dozen baseballs and five or six gallons of spring water. The fans ran out of patience long before the players ran out of drinking water. All the Brooklyn fans walked out with bowed heads and the trotting were in no condition to eat any dinner when they got home.

The Giants, with Jack Scott pitching, had the game in hand at 2 to 0 up to the eighth inning. Homers by Kelly and Young furnished the two runs. In the eighth the Robins got spunky, knocked Scott out of the box and went to the front, 4 to 2.

Greene Driven to Cover.

In the last of the eighth New York knocked Greene out of the box, scored three runs and took the lead at 5 to 4. In that eighth Snyder was safe on Johnston's fumble and Gowdy, hitting for Huntzinger, sent Snyder to second with a single.

As Snyder and Gowdy are two of the most conservative base runners known, Lindstrom went in to do the trotting for Snyder and Farrell for Gowdy. Young forced Farrell. Walker ripped off an infield hit and Lindstrom scored. Frisch singled to right, scoring Young with the tying run.

Out went Greene and in came Ehrhardt. After Terry filed to Stock, Kelly, right on the job at all times, singled to left and Walker romped home.

The Robins tied it in the ninth. High, batting for Ford, coined a single and DeBerry lifted to centre. Tierney, batting for Ehrhardt, forced High and the game might have ended there if Terry hadn't made a great stop of Kelly's wide toss in his keen desire to make a double play. Stock singled to right and Tierney was over with the tying run.

Brooklyn stepped out ahead of the tie in the first of the twelfth. With one gone, Wheat got a hit to short and went to third on Fournier's single to centre. As Brown forced Captain Jean at first Wheat scored. Loftus singled and so did Hofman. Southworth made a beautiful return of the ball after Ford singled and nipped Brown at the plate by a whisper.

After Young was folded up at first in the last of the twelfth Southworth walked and Frisch scored him with a double against the right-field wall. Terry was walked intentionally and then Kelly threw a match in the gas tank with his home run.

Petty's pitching in the first inning was almost too good to be true. He fanned Young, and Walker and Frisch rolled to Fournier. The Robins were up to their pernicious habit of wasting hits in the second. They tapped Scott for three singles in this session, but the three of them weren't worth a nickel.

Petty Remains Unruffled.

In the Giants' portion of the second Kelly rocked a homer into the upper tier of the left-field observatory. Petty didn't mind it a bit. He kept right on pitching as if nothing had happened. Petty has been treated plenty worse than that. In fact, he was treated that way in the third inning, a few moments later, when Ross Young jarred another circuit tap into the right-field pavilion.

The Robins' eighth was sizeable and prosperous. Taylor began it with a single to right and Cox, batting for Petty, got a walk. Mitchell was sent in to run for Taylor. After Johnston was thrown out by Kelly on a nice stop back of second, Stock got an infield hit, scoring Mitchell. Wheat's smash to left scored Cox and the score was tied. Scott was submerging fast. Fournier's single to right scored Stock. Wheat raced to third, and when Young made a bad throw to Frisch the ball hopped past Frank. No one was backing up third and Wheat scored.

HOMER WINS FOR CARDS, 3-2

Blades's Drive Beats Cubs and Helps Rhem Vanquish Alexander.

ST. LOUIS, June 26 (AP).—Charles Flint Rhem scored over Grover Alexander in a pitching duel and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs today, 3 to 2, in the opening contest of a four-game series. The Cardinals thus took a lone hold on fifth place. Before today's game the teams were tied for fifth. Blades's circuit clout in the sixth inning proved to be the winning run.

SENATORS CONQUER ATHLETICS, 5 TO 3

JOHNSON ON FIRING LINE

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Bucky Harris's Senators conquered Connie Mack's White Elephants this afternoon, 5 to 3, and narrowed the gap between the first-place Athletics and their Washington pursuers. Walter Johnson's hurling was mainly responsible for the local sluggers' off day. Goose Goslin, batting hero of the worlds series, closed the deal in favor of his team with a home run clout with two on in the seventh.

The Athletics started off by earning a run in the first inning off Johnson's delivery, singles by Lamar, Simmons and Welch being the medium.

Then came an incident which caused the 30,000 Athletic fans to sit up, howl and lament. A double steal was attempted by Simmons and Welch, Muddy Ruel, the Senators' catcher, threw to third to trap Simmons.

Ball Hits Simmons.

The ball struck the Milwaukee mauler on the shoulder and rolled twenty feet away from the base. Al crossed the plate easily, but Umpire Nallin astonished and enraged the multitude when he called Simmons out for interference. Nallin claimed Al had purposely thrown up his shoulder to keep the ball away from Blueege, the opposing third sacker.

Simmons in the third overcame the loss of the run by knocking out a long homer with Dykes on the path. But the "Wild Gander of Salem," Goose Goslin, did better than that. Goslin with Bucky Harris on second and Rice on first slammed the sphere over the right field wall in the seventh inning. Those three runs spelled victory for the champs.

Lefty Groves hurled a better game than usual. He allowed ten hits, but kept them well scattered.

Goslin's well placed homer and another four bagger by Earl McNeely in the third with none on, accounted for four of the Washington tallies. The other run was produced by three singles and a wild toss to first by Hale in the fifth, Bucky Harris scoring.

Thrill in the Ninth.

The multitude had the daily thrill in the ninth. Mickey Cochrane swung a bat for Galloway, and singled. Bill Bagwell came from the dugout to bat for Groves, but his long fly was caught by McNeely in deep centre. Dykes hit safely behind second and put two on, with one out. Hale and Lamar were the next swingers. They tried hard enough, but failed. The game was chock full of fielding plays, which delighted the crowd.

Pickups and Putouts

Zeke Barnes got back into the game for a few innings and Dean pitched the last two. McGraw shows no partiality among his pitchers. He uses them all.

As the Pirates beat the Reds, a Giant defeat would have put Pittsburgh slightly in front. Close shave.

New York took three out of five from Brooklyn but the Robins made them suffer.

Jess Petty was pitching one of the prettiest games he has shown this season up to the time he was extracted for a pinch hitter.

The home runs which Kelly exploded were his tenth and eleventh of the season. The most useful of players, Kelly.

Horace Ford did some shortstopping for Brooklyn yesterday which sent the Robin fans into spasms of delight.

The Boston Braves come to Harlem today. What they did to the Giants the last time they were in Boston was plenty.

Court Orders Baker to Return 632 Shares of Phillies' Stock

PHILADELPHIA, June 26 (AP).—An order for the return of 632 shares of the capital stock of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club was issued in Common Pleas Court today in favor of Colonel Thomas E. Murphy of this city. For several years the stock had been held in a voting trust by President William F. Baker of the club. Mr. Baker contended Colonel Murphy had given the stock to him, rather than merely depositing it in his custody, as was argued by the complainant. Judge Bartlett found the assignment of the stock had been without consideration and only for the purpose of making sale, but that ample time had since elapsed without such transaction having been completed.

SKEETERS WIN, 11-4, THEN LOSE, 7 TO 4

Hard Hitting Gives Them Opener With Reading, but Keys Rally to Win Second.

READING, Pa., June 26 (AP).—Reading and Jersey City divided a double-header today, the Skeeters taking the first game, 11 to 4, and the Keys the second, 7 to 4. Hard hitting by the Skeeters gave them the decision in the opener, Schroeder being driven from the mound by six straight hits in the fourth inning. Reading's four-run rally in the fifth inning of the second game, which was climaxed by Scheer's triple, decided the nightcap.

Wormwold Leads Two-Year-Olds in the Canarsie

WORMWOLD WINNER OF THE CANARSIE

FORM MUCH IN EVIDENCE

By HENRY B. ILSLEY.

The pink silks with blue sash of Walter J. Salmon were carried to victory at the Aqueduct race course yesterday afternoon when the chestnut colt Wormwold led a field of ten smart two-year-olds past the winning post in the race for the Canarsie Claiming Stakes over the five-furlong route. Under 107 pounds and with Johnny Malben in the saddle the chestnut son of Wormleighton ran the distance in 1:00 3-5 over a good track. The winner, coupled with A. T. Wilson Jr.'s Cannae, was the 3-5 favorite. The victory was worth $4,600 to Mr. Salmon.

Aqueduct is one of the quickest courses in the country to dry out after a downpour, and it was not surprising that the morning sun had dissipated almost every trace of mud. It was in good condition by the time of the first race and grew faster during the afternoon. Five favorites rewarded their followers by finishing first.

The Canarsie Stakes, which have been run since 1896, this being the twenty-fourth running, drew ten of the original 117 nominations. Cannae, winner of his two starts at Jamaica, in both of which he had beaten Wormwold, was responsible for the short price against the entry, and was beaten only a length for the short end of the money.

The youngsters were only a minute at the post, and Mars Cassidy got them away well. Wormwold was fortunate in having drawn the best position on the inner rail, and as Malben was able to get the colt away well from the barrier this proved a big factor in his victory. He was able to save ground until they were straightened out for home.

Wormwold opened a commanding lead in the early part of the stretch drive, and it looked like the easiest kind of a victory, but he was in trouble and Malben was forced to go to the whip and ride him out to win by a length and a half from the Pastime Stable's Sea Rocket, which was under a hard ride all the way by Coltiletti. L. S. Thompson's Aucilla, away none too well from the outside position, closed a big run and was only half a length back to take third money. Sea Rocket was the 7-to-2 second choice, while Aucilla was an 8-to-1 shot.

The Lady Violet Handicap, a six-furlong dash for mares of three years and upward, proved merely an outing for the Rancocas Stable's Superietta. Nedana having been scratched out by the stable. The bay daughter of Superman was much the class of the five that paraded with 120 pounds up and got out in front all the way to win easily by three lengths from the Audley Farm's filly Glister.

The Rancocas filly, with Mack Fator in the saddle, drew the best position on the rail and broke in motion when the barrier lifted. She made all the pace and had a lot in reserve at the winning post. Glister ran a good race and was nearest the leader throughout, finishing two lengths in front of Polly McWiggles.

The players guessed right in the second division when they made an even-money favorite of Bull Run, which Jack Goldsborough saddled to win for George H. Bull. As in the other juvenile events post position and the break counted, Bull Run had No. 2 position and was out of the first to get going. The brown son of Jim Gaffney was full of running, for he made two false breaks before the barrier was finally sprung. He ran into a big lead in the last quarter and had three lengths advantage of D. W. Brown's Timmary at the winning post. J. E. Madden's Rocksalide, the second choice, took third money.

Carpentier One of the Very Best Boxers, Jack Dempsey Tells French Ministers

PARIS, June 26 (AP).—Jack Dempsey was the guest of honor at a luncheon today given by the Association of Sporting Writers. The heavyweight champion was welcomed by Under Secretary of State for Aviation Laurent Eynac and M. Benazet, Under Secretary of State for Physical Culture and Hygiene.

The two Ministers chatted for a long time with Dempsey. They were keenly interested in the American fighter's narration of some of his most prominent battles, especially that in Jersey City where he knocked out Georges Carpentier, France's pugilistic idol.

"Is Georges really a great fighter?" asked M. Eynac.

Dempsey and his wife will leave on Monday for London after having attended the running of the Grand Prix de Paris on Sunday. The Dempseys will return from London to Paris on July 6 and sail for New York on July 8.

SLATTERY INDUCED TO BOX DAVE SHADE

Muldoon Overcomes Objections to Appear on Fund Card—Boxers Are Suspended.

Commissioner William Muldoon, disposing of routine business yesterday morning at the regular week-end meeting of the State Athletic Commission, gave to the Italian Hospital Fund boxing card, to be held Thursday night at the Polo Grounds, one of the most attractive matches available when he induced Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo's promising young middleweight, to engage Dave Shade, California welterweight, in a special six-round battle. Efforts for arranging this match appeared on the verge of failure until Promoter Humbert Fugazy, unsuccessful threat in gaining Slattery's acceptance, took Red Carr, manager of Slattery, to the Commission offices. There, after a thorough discussion, Commissioner Muldoon succeeded in overcoming all the objections raised by Carr against the match.

Leo P. Flynn, who previously had accepted a bout against Slattery on the Fund card, appeared and notified Commissioner Muldoon that he intended to ignore the articles signed by Mickey Walker for a match in which Walker proposed to defend his title against Shade, under the edict of the Commission, in California. The agreement entered into by Walker and Shade, Flynn pointed out, provides that the match be awarded to the promoter making the highest bid. Flynn said he did not regard a lone bid from California as constituting the best bid.

Tom Laird, representing Promoter Jack Doyle of Vernon, Calif., who proposes to hold the bout, appeared with Flynn to notify the Commission that Doyle was forwarding transportation for Shade. Flynn and a trainer, but this information failed to make any impression on Flynn. Secretary Dan Skilling announced that the Commission's attitude was that the present controversy is one which the principals will have to settle among themselves.

Post and Paddock

The haltet men bussed around the claiming box after the second race at Aqueduct yesterday afternoon like flies about a syrup pot. No less than ten claims had been dropped in, five of them for the winner, W. J. Both's Alex Woodliffe. There was a big crowd of spectators as the numbers were drawn, the Torchbearer colt going to T. Kitley for $2,500.

Three sought C. Garrigan's three-year-old Rowland's Request and Howard S. Bowne was lucky in the draw and took him for $3,000. T. W. O'Brien's five-year-old horse Shamrock was claimed by William E. Dunkingon for $2,000.

It was a pleasing afternoon of sport for the players, but the losers wore long faces on the homeward journey.

Most of Walter Salmon's two-year-olds are beginning to look like a good bet any day.

Wormwold gained his second consecutive victory in the stake. He ran twice at Miami, winning once. He didn't show in front again until he was first home in a claiming race at Aqueduct last week.

Olympic, which ran second in the first division of the maiden two-year-old race, carried the colors of the Newtondale Stable of Charles W. Leonard, the veteran Boston trotting horse enthusiast, who was in his box to watch his colt make his first start.

Olympic is a French-bred colt by Sea Sick-Miss Clatinge. His dam was one of the mares consigned by A. K. Macomber to the Durland sale a few years ago.

Today's card should produce some of the best sport of the meeting, with the $10,000 Great American Stakes for two-year-olds dividing interest with the $5,000 Brooklyn Handicap, in which Mad Play will shoulder 134 pounds and make great weights concessions to Whetstone, Ars Khan and Catalan.

4 BLUES IN A DAY WON BY JUST YOU

BALLYMACSHANE A WINNER

R. A. Pinkerton's Harvard Polo Pony, Bandero Conquers Winston Guest's Yale Entry Snip.

Special to The New York Times.

BABYLON, L. I., June 26.—Charles F. Hubbs's chestnut mare Just You carried off a major portion of the honors today as the annual Babylon horse show opened its two-day session on the estate of the late August Belmont. Just You had a busy day, showing in four classes, but she was well rewarded for her good behavior, for when the last class was judged she had brought four blue ribbons to the Hubbs stable.

A gay throng of spectators completely surrounded the ring, which was set down in the middle of the countryside, while motor cars also were parked completely around the enclosure. A bright, sunny day made the conditions perfect, and the spectators came early in the morning and remained until the last class was judged as twilight was falling over the scene.

Many of the best-known show horses in this section of the country were exhibited and the old favorites, as a general rule, came through with high awards, but there were many comparatively new competitors also, and Just You headed both lists in the matter of victories. Mr. Hubbs's four-year-old first carried off the blue ribbon in the class for model saddle horses, winning over such mounts as her stablemate, Seal King, which took second; Miss Marjorie Heather's Rajah, which was third, and George Crouch's Bronze King, which was judged fourth best.

Just You Scores Again.

A little more than an hour later Just You was brought back into the ring to compete in the class for saddle horses over fifteen hands but not exceeding 15.2, and again the Hubbs stable added a blue ribbon to its collection. The other two victories were scored in the afternoon, when Just You triumphed in the class for colts and fillies suitable for riding and also in the class for saddle mares over 14.2.

The Hubbs stable also carried off several other ribbons, Guiding Star winning the blue in the class for colts and fillies foaled in 1922 and Guardian Angel taking first honors in the class for colts and fillies foaled in 1923.

The classes for polo ponies brought about a renewal of the rivalry that sprang up between Harvard and Yale on the polo field at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club short time ago. On that occasion Harvard won, and today R. A. Pinkerton, who captained the Harvard team, rode his ponies to victory over Winston Guest's mounts that carried the Yale star into the championship tournament in the class for model polo ponies. That's That, owned by Guest, beat young Pinkerton's Some Kid, but both were beaten by H. T. Peters Jr.'s Red Pearl. In the class for lightweight polo mounts Pinkerton's Bandero was the choice of the ring, with Guest's Snip second and Pinkerton's Desert Flower third. H. T. Peters Jr.'s Red Pearl repeated with another victory in the class for heavyweight polo mounts, while Pinkerton's Some Kid was second and his Gipsy Red was third, Guest's entry being unplaced.

Ballymacshane Triumphs.

One of the old favorites to score a victory was the Lawridge Stable's Ballymacshane, which won the first class for jumpers, but the big gray gelding could do no better than fourth in the touch-and-go sweepstakes, one of the most interesting events of the day, which was won by Harvey S. Ladew's Cheerio.

The summaries:

AN AMERICAN EXAMPLE.

A part of CAILLAUX's financial plans contemplates the issue of new bonds to refund or pay off the large amount of Government obligations soon falling due. His intention is to make the new bonds so attractive that the holders of the old ones will take them in exchange even at a lower rate of interest. This will be accomplished, it is believed, by guaranteeing a fixed gold value, or exchangeability with the dollar, as an essential feature of the new issue.

It is an experiment the result of which will be watched for with interest in this country, not the less so because the French Minister of Finance is following, whether consciously or not, the policy of an American Secretary of the Treasury forty-four years ago. A large amount of our Government bonds, bearing interest at 5 and 6 per cent., were falling due in 1881. A bill passed both houses of Congress for a refunding issue at 3 per cent., but some of its features were so objectionable that President HAYES vetoed it on the very last day of his term of office. Thus the new Administration of President GARFIELD was left without any definite course prescribed for meeting the Government obligations soon to mature. What was done under these circumstances by the new Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. WINDOM, was described as follows in the "Financial Review" for 1882:

> The Secretary adopted an ingenious plan which resulted in one of the most brilliant transactions ever known. He offered to the holders of the bonds coming due the privilege of continuing them in registered bonds payable any time at the option of the Government and bearing 3½ per cent. interest. The holders availed themselves of this privilege, and the surplus funds then and afterward in the Treasury were applied to the purchase or payment of bonds, and the entire changes in the interest-bearing debt, and the saving of interest thereon, by the continuance and payment of bonds during the year ending Nov. 1, 1881, showed a total annual saving in interest of nearly $17,000,000.

POLITICS BUT NO PARKS.

The famous saying of JOHN ADAMS that New York politics were "the devil's own incomprehensibles" gains fresh point by what has been happening at Albany. Certainly it would have seemed incredible in advance that the simple matter of carrying out the will of the people in regard to public parks could have become so bogged in political intrigue. By an overwhelming vote the citizens of the State had approved an expenditure of $15,000,000 on new parks. Both political parties agreed as to the end desired, but began to differ last Winter about the means to attain it. The bill passed by the Legislature was so objectionable in seeking to enforce political control over the spending of the park money that Governor SMITH vetoed it for solid reasons given. Then, in the hope that a better measure might be got from the Legislature, he called it in extra session this week. In his address to it he was reasonable, conciliatory, at times humorous, and made it clear that he was willing to accept any compromise offered by the Republican leaders, provided only that the expert and non-partisan State Park Council should not be bound hand and foot by the political Land Board. But the Republican strategy was to oppose the Governor at every point and to endeavor to force him to sign the bill which he had once vetoed.

These tactics failed, and the unfortunate thing is that all the park plans failed with them for the present. The whole situation has been thoroughly bedevilled by partisan play for position. We have got politics by the square mile, but not an acre of new park lands. Even the options on desirable property, obtained by various local park commissions, will probably expire before the next Legislature can or will do anything. The fiasco of the extra session appears to have been due partly to misinformation given to the Governor. He was led to believe that Republican assurances to him meant something, and that enough Republican members of the Legislature would stand by the sound policy for parks to make sure of its adoption. Otherwise, he would not have been justified in calling the Legislature back to Albany merely to have the old angry and futile fight over again. Senator WADSWORTH emits the opinion that all extra sessions are "a mistake." That would seem to depend upon whether public spirit or partisan animus is to control the legislators. The real "mistake" appears to have been to suppose that the Republican managers would allow the manifest interest of the State to prevail over their desire to avenge themselves upon a too popular Democratic Governor.

What the political consequences will be it is vain to attempt to predict. It might seem that the Governor had been presented with a victorious issue. Yet the Republican members of the Legislature assert that their constituents are but languidly interested in the question of the parks. This sounds incomprehensible, but it may prove to be true. If motorists and campers and the fathers and mothers of city children could solidify their vote on the issue, there is no doubt to which side it would go. But other matters may push forward into public attention in a way to obscure the parks. Governor SMITH may succeed in stirring popular resentment at the course of the Republican majority in the Legislature, but for the present it must be admitted that politics are first and the parks nowhere.

CONSERVATIVE TIDE IN CANADA.

Landslide is an extremely mild word to describe what happened on Thursday in the Nova Scotia legislative elections. In that Maritime Province it is not in the least true that every little boy is born either a little Liberal or a little Conservative. Things go all one way or the other. Up to day before yesterday a Liberal Government had been continuously in power for forty-three years, and in the last Legislative Assembly there were just 3 Conservatives out of a total membership of 43. In the new Chamber the reversal is complete—40 Conservatives to 3 Liberals. So wholesale a condemnation of a party régime is rare in the history of parliamentary government. The principal reason is asserted to be the Government's dilatory policy with regard to the strike in the Cape Breton colliery district which has been under way for five months, has been marked by violence and has seriously affected economic conditions throughout the Province.

This specific cause of discontent, however, seems to have intensified a decided trend toward the Conservative Party manifested elsewhere in Canada. The Ontario election of 1919 brought in 84 United Farmers, Liberals and Laborites against 25 Conservatives. In the election of June, 1923, the Conservatives won 76 seats against 35 for the former majority groups. This explains the prediction from Ottawa that the Liberal Party now in control of the Dominion Government will postpone the intended general election. Even an alignment of 185 Liberals, Progressives and Laborites against 52 Conservatives is no insurance against an overturn like that in Ontario, not to speak of the way the bottom dropped out in Nova Scotia. Public sentiment in Canada seems to swing in harmony with developments in the mother country. In Nova Scotia the mine strike apparently played the same rôle as the Zinovieff letter in Mr. BALDWIN's immense victory.

THE GREEK KALEIDOSCOPE.

General PANGALOS, leader of the latest revolution at Athens, announces his intention to organize a new Cabinet and maintain the parliamentary system of government, "if possible." This suggests the probability of a dictatorship on the now fashionable Mediterranean model, as exemplified by MUSSOLINI and PRIMO DE RIVERA. For that matter, Greece can make out a good case for priority in setting the Fascist fashion. Military considerations and military force have determined the fate of the Athens Government during the eight years that have elapsed since the late King CONSTANTINE was compelled to abdicate under allied pressure. These eight years have been marked by three dethronements, two plebiscites, one abolition of the monarchy, at least one royalist counter-revolution, and Ministerial crises too numerous to mention. With the proclamation of the republic in March, 1924, an era of comparative stability appeared to set in. On the surface at least no justification exists for the latest coup d'état comparable with the Communist threat in Italy that brought in MUSSOLINI or the succession of Spanish disasters in Morocco that brought in PRIMO DE RIVERA. The accusations of incompetence and failure brought against the Michalacopoulos Cabinet are the commonplace of Latin-American revolutionary manifestoes. Unofficial information suggests that the coup was hastened by preparations made by the late Government to suppress unrest in the army.

While the new régime would seem to usher in a "strong" Government, it is not quite certain in which direction the strong hand will make itself felt. The revolutionary leaders are described as convinced republicans, but MUSSOLINI graduated into Fascism from radical socialism; and there was no threat in sight against the present republican régime to justify an armed movement by friends of the republic. The most reasonable explanation is the military temperament. General PANGALOS may feel himself better qualified to accelerate the process of economic reconstruction at which Greece has been making a fair showing in view of the tremendous problems she has had to deal with. The absorption of more than a million expatriated Greeks from Asia Minor has made notable progress, largely with financial aid from the outside. If the new military Government thinks it can hasten the process, no harm may be done. But if the revolution represents a protest against the conciliatory policy pursued by the late Cabinet with respect to Turkey and intends to embark upon a new policy of adventure, another chapter may be added to the manifold troubles of the Greek people.

BAY STATE POLITICS.

President COOLIDGE was able to pull Senator GILLETT through last year. Already he is planning to do something for Senator BUTLER, who has a multiplicity of Republican enemies. Many Massachusetts Republicans like to choose their own candidates for Senator. Mr. BUTLER's political manners have given deep offense. Such is the penalty of zeal. Not merely Mr. LODGE's friends, but those of certain Republican Congressmen who had designs on the nomination and felt themselves aggrieved by his transference of it to Mr. GILLETT after Governor COX had refused to be tempted, don't exactly exude the oil of joy at the thought of Mr. BUTLER. Mr. LOUIS COOLIDGE's death can hardly have persuaded his supporters of 1924 to fall into the arms of Mr. BUTLER. Still, the President's influence is especially powerful in his own State; and his labors for harmony and BUTLER will no doubt be skilful.

Symbolically, the site of his Summer home was unfortunately chosen. It looks toward Nahant, and reminds faithful Lodgelts of the scorns so tranquilly endured at Cleveland. But politicians often find it convenient to have short memories. There is to be a grand reconciliation powwow in July. The Lodge men are to give the kiss of peace to the Butler men. This love feast is to be on the shores of Lake Attitash. "Sat man and maid in Attitash." So WHITTIER, if we quote him straight. Thus comes additional proof that WHITTIER is Mr. COOLIDGE's favorite poet, at least on the North Shore. Attitash will see an affecting spectacle, "the meeting of independent Republicans and editors" with Mr. BUTLER and the hard-boiled politicians of Essex County. Independent Republican fascination for Mr. BUTLER seems a little singular; but in Massachusetts, as anciently on the Bowery, "they do such things and they say such things"! What can outlanders make out of the Republican candidate for Mayor of Lynn, at whose Attitashian villa the harmony ceremonies will be held?

He is described as a Progressive Republican who "has always been one "of the powers of the Lodge organiza-"tion." If this discord is not felt, Mr. COOLIDGE may well have hopes of bringing about a perfect concord. Mr. EUGENE N. FOSS, three times Governor, is the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Fifth District against Mrs. EDITH NOURSE ROGERS, widow of its so regretted and distinguished Representative. Mr. FOSS, whacking his old enemy, the tariff, and pleading for his old friend, Canadian reciprocity, has been pleased to describe himself as a "Coolidge Democrat," whose election would benefit the Republican Party. This is another humor of Massachusetts politics. It shows, however, the value of Mr. "COOLIDGE's name. His task is to convince a large number of Coolidge Republicans that they must be Butler Republicans. This may be difficult; and "DAVE" WALSH, sure to run again for the Senate, is remarkably suasive and engaging.

THE PROPOSED ART CENTRE.

The plan of the Sinking Fund Commission for an art and music centre may now be considered on its merits, since it no longer contemplates using land in the heart of the city set apart for park purposes. On one side of the site now assigned within the Jerome Park Reservoir tract land has been taken by the Board of Education for the De Witt Clinton High School and on the other for a public elementary school. It is proposed to use a portion of what is left for a high school devoted to music and the industrial arts under the direction of the Board of Education, and to leave the remaining space for an independent institution devoted to related purposes under the jurisdiction of a Board of Trustees to be appointed by the Mayor.

Whether a separate high school is required for these subjects is a question which should be decided only upon the advice of the educational authorities. That Dr. GUSTAVE STRAUSENBAUER is a member of the committee making the recommendation is in its favor. As for an independent institution for higher training in the arts and for the promotion of culture generally, there can be no serious question as to its desirability. But unless the city is prepared to undertake to build and equip such an institution it should be under the direction of a Board of Trustees, appointed and perpetuated as are the Boards of Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum, the Museum of Natural History, the Public Library, and the Brooklyn Academy of Arts and Sciences. These institutions furnish a model of permanent public service but little, if at all, disturbed by the passing incidents of partisan politics. It is hardly conceivable that so high a quality of service can otherwise be secured.

There has been for some time a movement among citizens (some interested in music, some in the drama, some in the industrial arts) looking toward a centre where there may be a concerted effort to bring all these arts better within the reach of the public. This does not mean a concentration of all these activities in one place, but it does imply at least one centre in which there may be cooperation in teaching and in exhibition and from which a united influence may go out to stir and strengthen the varied efforts in all parts of the city. Especially is it desirable that there should be a museum at the heart of such a centre, in which man's progress in the past, agriculturally, industrially, commercially and culturally, may be represented.

The question may be asked whether a "centre" with this purpose of popular culture as well as of special training in the arts should be located so far out toward the perimeter as is proposed by the Sinking Fund Commission. But if the city's proposal stirs private effort and wealth to support such an institution, the right place will be found for it. The time has arrived for private citizens disinterestedly concerned in the promotion of these arts to take the next step.

CHICAGO, FREE CITY.

One may agree with down-State Illinois that the secession of Chicago, which the City Council unanimously longs and strives for, is "impossible," indeed "preposterous," and yet balk at having it called "silly." Our own metropolis has its troubles with the backlands. We pay between two-thirds and three-quarters of all State taxes. That Illinois plot, so dear to weekly fiction and the movies, which represents the poor country lad as humbling the proud and opulent city chap in conflicts of love and finance, is even more continuously enacted at Albany. In "day dreams and the enlarged roaming of the midnight "spirit" one may glory in the vision of the Free City of New York or Chicago; but in the end comes the impact of reality. To take only a single instance, what would the sweetly named Sanitary District of Chicago do without an outlet into the down-State waters of the Des Plaines, the Illinois and the Mississippi? No, the brother of the hinterlands has his uses, though they do not figure in the movies. Life is a matter of give and take.

Our own FERNANDO WOOD, a former flamboyant Mayor, had this vision in the trying times of 1861. Prompted by the example of certain Southern communities, he urged secession not only from the State but from the nation. Though the country went to smash, this city must remain neutral and free. Many folk in Manhattan were in no humor for war, but the State Legislature responded to LINCOLN's call for 75,000 men, enlisted for three months, by authorizing the enlistment of 30,000 from this State alone, for two years. Chicago, it must be said, has had a better cause than FERNANDO's. According to the Census of 1920, Cook County should have five more State Senators than have been allotted to it and fifteen more Representatives. For once the brother in the backlands is less honest and above-board than he appears in popular fiction. But, the question of secession having been settled, the provisions of the National Constitution are explicit. Cook County can erect itself into a State only with the consent of the Illinois Legislature, coupled with the consent of Congress. So Chicago finds itself in a situation tinged with truly tragic irony. The very moment it is able to effect its rebellious purpose the motive vanishes. Instinctively its mood would be sweetened by thoughts of those very sanitary and necessary rivers, the Des Plaines and the Illinois.

CHINA AND THE WASHINGTON TREATIES.

Certain Americans resident in China have called upon the State Department to press for absolute observance of existing treaties respecting that country "until modified through the "orderly processes provided by the "Washington Conference." Taken with the demand of some Chinese for the abrogation of rights now enjoyed by foreigners in China, this calls attention again to the fact that the painstaking work at Washington nearly four years ago to agree upon the policy to be pursued toward China has never borne fruit. The reason is that the two principal treaties having to do with China have not been ratified by France, and are therefore not yet in force. The Four-Power Treaty (which was duly ratified and is now effective) covers only the "insular possessions "and insular dominions in the region "of the Pacific Ocean," and provides for a conference only in the event of "a controversy arising out of any Pacific question" and involving the rights of the four signatory Powers in that region. Questions relating to the mainland of Japan were specifically excluded. A separate treaty was concluded with the purpose of adopting a policy "designed to stabilize "conditions in the Far East, to safe-"guard the rights and interests of "China, and to promote intercourse "between China and the other Powers "upon the basis of equality of oppor-"tunity," and still another agreement had as its object to increase the revenues of the Chinese Government and to provide for the revision of the Chinese customs tariff "and cognate matters."

Neither of these has yet been ratified by France. Both are of great importance if the Powers are to take any action to help China out of her present troubles. To be sure, there have been unofficial statements that the commission to study the Chinese tariff revision might meet in the Autumn. If it does so under the present circumstances, its decisions will carry no binding force. Meanwhile, from Britain come hints that France may be pressed to facilitate the work of this and other commissions by ratifying the treaties in the immediate future.

France doubtless has her reason for delay. A nation does not hold up a treaty for three years without a pretext. But if conditions get worse in China, France would not wish to earn the odium of preventing the Powers from putting the provisions of the Washington Conference into effect. The American people are deeply concerned in the problems of the Far East. Whether we like it or not, we are one of the principal Powers in the Pacific. During the last quarter century or more we have taken it upon ourselves to befriend and protect the Chinese. Even should we no longer wish to do so, we cannot escape the moral responsibility that we have incurred, nor can we remain indifferent to the repercussion of Chinese troubles in other parts of the Far East. The two unratified treaties embody principles of action toward China which still should be carried out. It is for France to make these treaties effective, or shoulder responsibility for the consequences of non-ratification.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Question for Critics to Answer.

Showing more, perhaps, than the necessary amount of irritation, but seemingly well stocked with relevant facts, GEORGE L. TRAGER, a student who will be a senior in Rutgers during the coming year, answered in a letter printed on this page yesterday the "Old-Timer" who the day before had complained that he had been treated in New Brunswick less courteously than an alumnus should be.

In reply the undergraduate wrote, first, that the regrettable experience of the alumnus was at the hands of townspeople, not students, as the latter had all gone home at the date of the incident described; and, second, that the collegians of these times are at least as courteous and as well-behaved in general as were, judging from the disciplinary measures required to keep their predecessors in some sort of order, those in the Golden Age imagined by the "Old-Timer."

The defender of youth was particularly happy in his choice of an argument when he wrote: "If our fathers had all the good qualities we are supposed to lack, why have they not known how to impart them to us?"

That is a question of wide applicability. It must be answered by every critic of today's young folk. For what they are, if it is bad, the parents are largely responsible. The Wise Ones still are quarreling over the relative weight to be ascribed to heredity and environment in determining character and conduct, but between the two, and parental training is a very essential part of early environment, the whole determining is done. And for the environment as for the heredity, it is the parents rather than the children who must be held accountable.

If the children have run wild, it is because they have been allowed to run wild. It is not their fault if they are "undisciplined," if their manners are deplorable and their morals questionable. If young people today are worse than the young people of the past, it is not because they are constitutionally different, but because parental negligence and incompetence have permitted the libertines and license which the young always would have exercised if allowed to do so.

Nothing Is Changed but Customs.

In all probability both parents and offspring are now pretty much what they always were. Customs have changed, as they always have been changing, but there is nothing at all new in new standards of propriety and nothing new in the belief of old people that the world is much deteriorated from what it was when they were young. No new vices have been invented within the period covered by recorded history, and what the oldsters remember as characteristic of the days when they were young is not so much the facts as what the maintenance of a superior attitude compels them to say were the facts.

Nothing could be easier than to be mistaken in that domain. The boys and girls of today show the immemorial variations between goodness and badness, just as the parents do; but if exact information could be secured, it probably would prove, not a general deterioration, but a general improvement.

The laudators of the past are a tiresome lot. They mean well, but they do not know, and what makes them tiresome is that they are so sure that they do know. They erect ideals for their children, and claim to have reached those ideals themselves. Sometimes they have done so, but more often they have not.

Journalism in the Suburbs.

There still are a few weekly papers, some of them close to New York City, and one of them, The Queens County News, which is published in Jamaica, Long Island, yesterday celebrated the tenth anniversary of its founding by printing an edition of a size which the country editor of old would not have hesitated to call "stupendous." EUGENE M. EARLY, who runs The Queens County News, probably does not see himself as a country editor; but whether or not he does, his article of self-congratulation on finishing a decade of reasonable prosperity employs more moderate words than "stupendous" and is as modest as need be for a considerable achievement.

How many pages there are in this anniversary number it would be too laborious to count; but it is in eight "sections," none of which is small, and together they weigh, at a guess, something over a pound, and perhaps nearer two. In them, by means of text and pictures, much of history relating to that part of Long Island is presented. There are no "knocks" for the region, naturally, and many "boosts."

That is all right, and no doubt the Jamaicans and their neighbors will lay aside this valuable compendium of local knowledge for perusal in days to come. That, too, is all right, though we all know in our hearts, and Mr. EARLY as well as anybody, what happens to newspapers that are laid aside for perusal in days to come. Anyhow, The Queens County News has an advertising patronage that makes it look highly prosperous.

Evidently It Was a Judgment.

Probably Mr. BRYAN and his Tennessee friends will note with grief, but with grief well mitigated by an appreciation of justice done, that the very fiercest of Thursday's lightning bolts was aimed straight at the American Museum of Natural History, and hit the mark squarely.

That institution not only is managed by a coterie of the most shameless believers in evolution, but they are not content with believing in it—they teach it by systematized exhibits arranged with such malignant skill as to appeal strongly to the youthful mind looking for information, and to make no end of trouble for the estimable folk who know so well that evolution is a great delusion and still more of a snare.

Of course, they would not call down on the museum the fires of offended heaven; but when the fires do descend there, not to see in the event a wise discrimination would be impossible. Mr. BRYAN will not find it necessary to explain why the thunderbolt was content with shattering a big granite ball on top of a tower and didn't go further and destroy the awful series that pretends to illustrate the descent of man. Enough was done to enforce a lesson and give a warning.

Nordics and Tolerance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While establishing a parallel of the cruel treatment that Indians received in North and in South America during the period of European conquest, it was not my intention to point out the Nordic sinner, but simply to prove a historical injustice.

I do not presume to be as well versed in United States history as Mr. Arthur Guiterman, and it is undoubtedly true that they never burned witches in this country, as the English did, but from what I have read it appears that when the Puritans were in power many persons accused of witchery, or of practicing their own religion, were dragged through the streets of Boston and other New England towns at the tail of a cart, whipped, and finally hanged. The malicious historical forgeries, as Mr. Guiterman styles them, go so far as to mention Governors Endicott and Winthrop as signing death warrants for persons convicted of the crime of witchcraft; or at least not staying the executions of the condemned. I do not doubt that there were other colonies in which it could be easier to recognize tolerance, but I understood that the only one which had signalised itself in this manner was that founded by Lord Baltimore, who happened to be of the same religion as that of the hated conquistadores.

No one fails to recognize the redeeming characteristics of the Nordic American races, who certainly practice more than any others political tolerance; but they are intolerant in many other things, while the Latin races are just the opposite, exceedingly intolerant in politics, but most of them seem animated by a conciliatory spirit in all other of life's activities.

R. MUÑOZ-TEBAR.
Long Branch, N. J., June 24, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I believe your readers will be interested in a campaign that the League for American Citizenship is now engaged in for the purpose of raising $30,000 with which to establish branches in foreign sections of this city.

The league has been in existence since 1913 and has been aiding the foreign born to become assimilated and Americanized, in addition to aiding them in becoming citizens of the United States. If the public will only give it their support, much more good can be accomplished. The league has been working among foreign born through its citizenship classes, its clubs, its service and information bureaus and citizenship receptions.

It maintains one branch at 123 Second Avenue, on the lower east side, and another branch at 407 East Seventy-third Street, where its principal source for aid comes from the Czechoslovak and Bohemian people. In the month of May of this year both these branches helped 1,177 people of twenty-four nationalities. This is a very fair estimate of its work every month of the year. In order to carry on this work still further it wishes to establish branches in sections in Brooklyn and the Bronx where a work of this kind is sadly needed. To do this the $30,000 it seeks is essential.

Any contributions that are sent to its national headquarters at 342 Madison Avenue will be a distinct act of patriotism.

Corrects Senator Copeland.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial article you quote Senator Copeland as using the expression "a looker-on in Venice." When I was a youngster I heard that so often that I began to use it myself, and did so until a benevolent critic referred me to Shakespeare, where I found it written "a looker-on in Vienna."

With this information I went to the Librarian of Congress, the late A. R. Spofford, and asked him if there were any authority for the common remark about Venice. He answered ferociously: "No, and nobody but an ignoramus would make that mistake," or words to that effect.

I have often wondered whether I did not give Spofford the "tip," as it were, and whether he might not have made the same mistake had I not put him on his guard by my citation from Shakespeare. However, that is a mere surmise. This is for Senator Copeland's benefit. Perhaps he was thinking of the other phrase with which story-tellers used to preface their yarns: "Years ago, when my grandfather kept a livery stable in Venice." But that is surmise, too.

STRATFORD.
New York, June 23, 1925.

HOMESICK.

How shall I ever find myself
In this unwonted place?
Even the mirrors are alien,
And show me an altered face.

I miss the familiar hollows
That comforted me in bed;
And all the books on the library shelves
Are books I have never read.

The sun is the same and the moon is the same—
But everything else is new;
And all the furniture seems to say:
"We don't belong to you!"

I wonder if my old lodging
Is just as faithful to me,
And says to the folk who took it:
"I wonder who you may be!"

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

THE CURE OF CANCER.

Surgery Alone, Not Medicine, Is Effective, Doctor Asserts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The two letters which you published with the letter from Dr. Soper in THE TIMES of Sunday, June 21, should be answered. The public should know that the great authorities throughout the world recognise no medical treatment for cancer. Dr. Soper, the director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, gives a résumé of the consensus of the world's authorities, clinical experience and experimental results. There is no higher authority.

I have been in the controversy in regard to the best treatment of cancer since my association with Professor Halsted, chief surgeon of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, in 1893. I began as a pawn in the game, but fortunately was made the keeper of the records.

In 1894 Halsted published his complete operation for the treatment of cancer of the breast, with results that had never been accomplished by any other operative procedure or any other known treatment up to that time. At first it was not accepted even by many of the great surgeons of the world. Gradually, however, as surgeons were trained in its finer technic, it became the operation, and is still the operation, for cancer of the breast throughout the civilized world.

The Ministry of Health of England has just published results of a study of 20,000 operations for cancer of the breast during the past forty years, with these two definite conclusions:

The cure of cancer of the breast depends upon two factors—the complete operation of Halsted and the short duration of the lump in the breast.

The majority of surgeons today are educated in the technic of the Halsted operation. Unfortunately, the majority of women have as yet not received the life-saving information that "if you feel a lump in the breast today, go for examination and treatment tomorrow."

Many are claiming that carrots and cabbages will cure cancer; that meat diet, the absence of vitaminea, is the cause of cancer; that intestinal stasis and chronic constipation are very important factors in explaining the increase of cancer. These messages are confusing the public.

Many years ago a patient whom Halsted had operated on for cancer of the breast and who was suffering pain in the scar took up Christian Science and wrote me that the operation had no effect on her cure. My answer was:

"Kneel down at once and thank God that you had the operation quickly after you felt the lump, and that you took Christian Science up later."

There is no question that life is more comfortable if chronic constipation is eliminated and intestinal stasis rectified by diet and proper treatment. Christian Science, if it allays fear and anxiety, makes life pleasanter for everybody. No woman will harm herself by trying these preventive treatments—when she has no lump in the breast. When a woman feels a lump in the breast, she may be assured that the vast majority of the authorities on cancer will agree in this advice:

Have an examination at once, the next day, and if it is a definite lump have the operation the next day; and if it is cancer have the complete operation.

The remarks of the physicians advocating medical treatment as against surgery are misleading. One of them is willing to quote Dr. Francis Carter Wood in regard to radium, but does not quote his expressed opinion in favor of surgery.

We have just had a report from Dr. Greenough of Boston, Chairman of the committee representing the American College of Surgeons, in regard to the treatment of cancer of the uterus, with the conclusion concurred in by the great majority of authorities, that radium has a distinct place, with surgery, in its treatment.

More than twenty-five thousand women die in the United States every year from cancer of the breast or of the uterus. There is absolutely no question that, if there is any truth in records and any confidence to be placed in science and expert authorities, the treatment for cancer of the breast is operation and for cancer of the uterus operation or radium.

All the authorities of the world, clinical and experimental, admit that they do not know the cause of cancer; admit that there is no preventive treatment, except in those forms of cancer which are due to chronic irritation and when the cause can be recognized and removed.

Today the cure of cancer is a problem in education. We must get the correct information in regard to cancer to the public. In this educational effort we will meet opposition. There is only one way: Let the press publish both sides; let the people read and choose.

The majority of men and women who are making the study of cancer their life-work are philanthropists as well as scientists. They are employing every effort and using all means to bring before the people of this country correct information in regard to cancer. So that all people, even if they are taking medical treatment or other preventions of cancer, will, when they observe their definite warning, drop this fancy treatment and turn to the treatment based upon facts, science and continuous records—surgery, immediate examination, proper and complete operation combined with radium and X-rays, when indicated. There is no medical treatment for cancer. Medicine cures those forms of cancer that are not cancer, and those forms of cancer that are not cancer would probably get well of themselves.

Aid Against Tuberculosis.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If some one in your family has tuberculosis, don't be afraid of him. He is not dangerous to you or any one else if he sleeps alone, and is careful and clean.

See that he has a doctor, a good one, whom he sees regularly, at least once a week. If he cannot afford that, there is a good doctor at the nearest Tuberculosis Clinic (we'll give you a list of these clinics if you'll write or telephone to us).

Don't allow him to take any advertised "cures" or patent medicines, or let any friends tell him to do so. Only five medicines are any good for him. They are fresh air, cleanliness, rest, good food and cheerfulness.

Help him obey the doctor's orders. Keep him hopeful and cheerful, by being so yourself.

We shall be glad to give helpful information, without charge, regarding any phase of the fight against tuberculosis to all who may inquire of us.

DISCUSS REFUNDING OF YUGOSLAV DEBT

AMERICA TO BE LENIENT

Insists, However, on Definite Arrangements—Will Resume Negotiations With Italy Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Following closely the opening of formal negotiations for settlement of the Italian debt, it was said at the State Department today that Secretary Kellogg has discussed with the Minister of Yugoslavia the question of refunding that nation's debt to the United States. With interest it amounts to about $65,000,000.

The discussions so far held have been of a somewhat general nature, but are expected to be resumed on a more definite basis next week. The Yugoslav debt is for relief and construction advances made after the armistice. The question of refunding these obligations was brought to the attention of the Yugoslav Government about three months ago, and the Minister in Washington is understood to have discussed the question in some detail with Secretaries Mellon and Kellogg.

A comparative survey of the Yugoslav financial situation was at that time presented on behalf of the Yugoslav Government, when an effort was made to demonstrate that while Yugoslavia was rapidly recovering from the economic and financial aftermath of the World War, she would not be in a convenient position to enter into definite refunding arrangements with the United States for at least a year.

A credit advance made by New York bankers, it was explained, had been utilized in currency stabilization, and in the development of rail and port projects, which were expected to accelerate the economic recovery of the country.

The revival of the question of the debt at this time is understood to have been in pursuance of the policy of the Coolidge Administration to insist upon definite arrangements, notwithstanding the fact that the country has no wish to be a hard creditor and is disposed to be lenient regarding time limits and other terms of payment.

As a result of the decisions arrived at following the opening conference on debt negotiations with Italy, Secretary Kellogg will forego for the present his contemplated vacation to his home in St. Paul. The Secretary plans to remain pretty constantly in Washington for the present, though he left today for New York. Secretary Kellogg stated today that debt discussions with Italy will be resumed next Tuesday after his return from New York.

It is stated that there have been no new developments in the French debt situation.

INSPECT FRENCH HOSPITALS

PARIS, June 26 (AP).—A midnight supper was the farewell of French physicians to the group of American practitioners who have been visiting Paris for the past week, having come here from London, where they attended the Interstate Post-Graduate Assembly. A gala performance at the Odéon Theatre of Moliere's classic, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," preceded the supper.

In the afternoon most of the visitors inspected the American hospital at Neuilly, just outside Paris. Some of them spent the day at Berck-sur-Mer, visiting a hospital devoted to tuberculosis and bone diseases. All of them had the opportunity of attending the French racing classic Prix des Drags at the Auteuil race course.

The delegates are warm in their praise of the hospitality accorded them by their French hosts, who were unatinted in their efforts to make the stay of the Americans enjoyable and profitable.

CHILE BARS SOVIET SHIP.

Authorities Refuse to Allow Communication With Shore.

PUNTA ARENAS, Chile, June 26 (AP).—The steamship Vorovsky, flying the colors of Soviet Russia, arrived here several days ago from Montevideo but has not been allowed by the port authorities to communicate with any one ashore. The ship has only been allowed to take on provisions.

However, it continues to remain anchored here and its future movements are unknown. If it is not received in any Chilean port it is assumed that it will have to proceed to Peru, where there is no certainty of getting a better welcome. The prolonged stay of the ship here is supposed to indicate that the skipper has requested instructions from his Government.

Matthew G. FRANCE WILL HONOR NICEPHORE NIEPCE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Nicephore Niepce, who invented photography 100 years ago, will be publicly honored throughout France at the International Photographic Congress here from June 29 to July 4.

In every school the boys and girls will be told the story of the young inventor who discovered the process of giving a practical solution to the antique optical phenomenon "camera-obscura."

Niepce, like the more widely known Daguerre, with whom he was associated in partnership, died poor and obscure despite his invention, which, within 100 years, reached such an extraordinary development. Together with his brother Maurice he was also the inventor and constructor of the first internal combustion engine, which was successfully tested in 1805.

The Senate, in voting this official recognition, also discussed a motion to strengthen the property rights of inventors and their heirs generally.

Alfred Hanf Dies Suddenly.

Alfred Hanf, for many years a well-known operator at race tracks, known to his friends as "Little Typhoon," died suddenly early yesterday morning of heart disease at his home, 28 Fort Washington Avenue. Long ago doctors had warned him that a cardiac weakness made it dangerous for him to continue the exciting life of a race follower, but he preferred to run the risk. Thursday evening, on the way home from the track, he told a friend he'd had "one of the worst days of my life." He had played five straight losers, and only partly made up his losses on Sun Pal. After several hours at his club he went home, and five minutes later expired. He was 52 years old. He left his parents as a child and made his own way in the world. He developed great skill at calculating betting odds and other mathematical problems connected with race track operations.

HYLAN POURS PRAISE ON BOROUGH HEADS

COMPLIMENTS DELANEY TOO

Mayor Hylan attempted to hold a sort of political love feast at a special meeting of the Board of Estimate yesterday. He showered praise on those of his colleagues who were present and indicated his willingness to run on the same ticket with them for re-election.

There seemed to have been a misunderstanding concerning the meeting, for Controller Craig, Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, and Joseph A. Guider, Borough President of Brooklyn, stayed away, apparently under the impression that there had been an agreement to have no meeting, but to take up the transit matters not disposed of at the last meeting at a special meeting on July 1.

Mayor Hylan made his first play to Henry Bruckner, Borough President of the Bronx. He told Mr. Bruckner that eight years ago he was asked if the selection of Mr. Bruckner to run on the same ticket with him was satisfactory.

"I told them that it was," the Mayor said. "I would gladly run again on the same ticket with him."

The Mayor then made his remarks more general to apply to all his colleagues present, and said:

Bruckner to Talk Later.

Mr. Bruckner, although not usually subject to embarrassment, hesitated a moment before replying, apparently thinking that with the Bronx Democratic organization uncommitted it was hardly time for him to declare himself.

"I want to thank you for the nice things that you have said about me," he told the Mayor. "I do not want to make a speech now, but wait until the campaign starts and then I'll say all the nice things about you that any mortal man can say of another."

Mayor Hylan seemed to regard this as an unqualified indorsement for he smiled broadly, and some of those in the hearing room applauded.

Borough President John A. Lynch of Richmond, however, declared unqualifiedly for the Mayor and pledged himself and the Richmond Democratic organization to the Mayor.

"The people of New York are intelligent people," Mr. Lynch said, "and I believe that the people will recognize the work you have done and will give you a tribute by their votes at the Fall election that will surpass anything ever heard of in this city before."

William T. Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen and a Tammany man, came in for some of the Mayor's compliments. His only reply was "thank you" and a smile.

Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, was not present but was represented by Michael J. Shugrue, Commissioner of Public Works. Mr. Shugrue had little to say in answer to the Mayor's praise of his chief but confined his remarks to Queens subway routes.

Lauds Borough Presidents.

"You have accomplished more than any Borough Presidents ever have," the Mayor said to his colleagues. "You have put millions of dollars in improvements into your boroughs. Much credit is due the Borough Presidents for what they have done."

The Mayor also praised the work of John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, which he said had accomplished more since last July than the Transit Commission accomplished in three years. He also addressed the newspaper reporters at the meeting, predicting that the "subway trouble makers" would be vanquished and that Borough President Guider would come to an agreement with Mr. Delaney on the Brooklyn subway routes.

"Please give me one day's pleasure by telling what we have done toward providing subways, an independent system with a five-cent fare," the Mayor said in mock appeal to the reporters, whom he accused for the most part of representing a traction controlled press.

"Perhaps I am not always charitable to them," he added with a sigh.

After a great deal of more talk the board got down to the business of the meeting and validated the so-called Steinway loop route in Queens, completing the validation of all the lines in that borough called for by the Board of Transportation's plan.

HYLAN THANKS PELL FOR LAUDING MAYOR

Mayor Hylan wrote to Herbert C. Pell Jr., Democratic State Chairman, yesterday, thanking Mr. Pell for having said that New York City was "extraordinarily well governed" on his return from Europe a few days ago. Mr. Pell, whose continuation as State Chairman is considered doubtful, also declared that no man was bigger than his party, whether he was "Mayor, Governor or any one else." In his letter to Mr. Pell, Mayor Hylan said:

"It was very gratifying to read your statement in the newspaper. I think the great mass of the people feel that the government of the city has been so administered that 'New York can hold up her head with any city in the world,' as you say, and this notwithstanding the gross misrepresentation of the aims and purposes, the progress and achievement of the past seven and a half years which has been the daily diet fed to the people by newspapers, the traction and financial backers of which have had their plans of exploitation interfered with by a humane and honest City Administration.

"Personally, I am confident that the character of the City Administration has amply justified the wide confidence reposed in the municipal officials by the bulk of the electorate. There can be no denial that moral cleanliness does prevail, that self-seeking individuals and corporations have been held in check and that in the conduct of the municipal service fair and impartial justice has been accorded to all.

"Your frank statement that 'the city is extraordinarily well handled by those responsible for her municipal government,' is very encouraging to such public officials who in effectively and honestly discharging their obligations to the people have added prestige to the Democratic Party."

BRONX WOMEN FOR STRAUS.

Ask Flynn to Back State Senator for Aldermanic President.

A group of Bronx women, headed by Mrs. Halsey Wilson, called upon Sheriff Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx, yesterday, to urge State Senator Nathan Straus Jr. for the Democratic nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen. A similar delegation called on George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, on behalf of Mr. Straus's candidacy, last Tuesday, and it was learned that petitions for Senator Straus's nomination are being prepared for submission to Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, and David S. Rendt, Richmond Democratic leader.

Among those in the delegation of Bronx women were Mrs. A. H. Hausrath, Mrs. Cyrus Miller, Mrs. V. V. McNitt, Mrs. Sigmund Berger, Mrs. Rosalie M. Cohen, Mrs. Harry Brown, Miss Mae Kennedy, Mrs. Philip Schnopf, Mrs. George W. Perkins, Miss Emily Parkins, Miss Christine Merriman, Mrs. James E. Briggs and Mrs. Carroll Brown.

Distributing 'A B C of Hylanism' a Naisance, Says Craig, Telling Enright to Stop It

Controller Charles L. Craig notified Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright yesterday that distribution of copies of the pamplet entitled "The A B C of Hylanism" was a nuisance prohibited by ordinance, and asked the Police Commissioner to enforce it and see that those responsible were punished by fine or imprisonment.

"According to statements appearing in the public press, the Peck Distributing Corporation, 6 East Thirty-ninth Street, has the contract for and is engaged in throwing, casting and distributing 1,000,000 copies of a certain political advertisement known as 'The A B C of Hylanism' in the streets, public places, front yards, courtyards, stoops, halls and letter boxes of buildings in the five boroughs of the City of New York," the Controller wrote in a letter to the Commissioner.

"The Code of Ordinances provides that upon conviction a fine of $10 may be imposed, or imprisonment for ten days, or both, for each violation. The proper enforcement of the law by you will result in turning into the city treasury a very substantial sum from these offenders. All of the persons who are engaged in this particular bit of lawlessness are subject to fine and imprisonment.

"The violation is not limited merely to the distributing agency above named, but all who procure or 'cause to be thrown, cast or distributed' such 'A B C of Hylanism' are doing so in violation of this ordinance."

REIDLER IS SENTENCED TO 2 YEARS IN PRISON

Court Calls Offense Heinous—Bolitho and Canty Go to Trial in September.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., June 26.—A sentence of from two to three years at hard labor in the State Prison was imposed today on Max Reidler, 34 years old, of Rahway, who was the mainstay of the staff of investigators of former Prosecutor James H. Bolitho of Morris County.

Reidler was convicted Wednesday on indictments charging conspiracy to obstruct the liquor enforcement laws, to prevent the prosecution of Joseph Canty for alleged bootlegging, and to have aided Canty to manufacture and sell liquor with impunity. Bolitho and Canty are codefendants under the same indictments.

Trials of the other sixty-odd indictments, of which thirty-six are against Bolitho individually and eleven jointly with Reidler and others, will be deferred until September, it was announced by Supreme Court Justice Parker, who ordered the Special Grand Jury investigation and is presiding at the trials.

John A. Matthews, Reidler's counsel, had expected to have a writ of error in court before sentence was imposed, but could not do so in time, and it is not known when the appeal will be disposed of.

Justice Parker, in sentencing Reidler, called his offense "heinous," and said that while conspiracy is usually only a misdemeanor it was more serious in this instance. He referred to the four motherless children of the defendant, but said that he could not mitigate the penalty on their account, although the Court of Pardons might act on their behalf.

The Court praised Wilfred H. Jayne Jr. of Ocean County, who as a Special Deputy Attorney General conducted the investigation which led to the indictments, submitted his findings to the Special Grand Jury and is acting as prosecutor in the trials. He said that Mr. Jayne's work has "cleared the atmosphere in Morris County," and that the "scandal," which had existed had been abated by the resignation of Bolitho after his indictments.

DENIES VIADUCT PROTEST.

Jewish Order Says Published Article Was Unauthorized.

Henry J. Hyman, Grand Secretary of the Independent Order Free Sons of Israel, denied yesterday that a letter advocating the removal of the New York Central viaduct on Park Avenue from Ninety-sixth Street to the Harlem River sent to the Board of Estimate by Louis Hutter of the Executive Board of the order, had been authorized by the organization. It was reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES on June 14 that Mr. Hutter had sent the letter in behalf of the Executive Board. Mr. Hyman's letter follows:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dear Sir: In your edition of June 14 there appeared an article headed as follows: "Says Park Avenue Viaduct Is Peril to Neighbors—Adds to Fire and Crime Problem, Jewish Order Writes Mayor, Asking Its Removal."

The article goes on to state that "the removal of the New York Central Railroad viaduct from Park Avenue between Ninety-sixth Street and the Harlem River is advocated as a desirable municipal improvement in a letter written to Mayor Hylan and the Board of Estimate by Louis Hutter in behalf of the Executive Board of the Independent Order Free Sons of Israel. The letter is now on the calendar of the Board of Estimate."

This article was brought to the attention of the Executive Board of this institution at a meeting held June 24, 1925, and the Grand Secretary has been directed to acquaint you with the fact that the letter referred to in the printed edition of THE TIMES was unauthorized and did not emanate from the office of the order, and at no time was officially sanctioned by its Executive Board, nor was the subject of the viaduct referred to, at any time under discussion, or any action taken thereon at any of its meetings.

Very truly yours,
HENRY J. HYMAN,
Grand Secretary.

PLAN HIGHWAY TO CAPITAL.

New Route Discussed From 178th Street Bridge to Potomac.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Dr. S. M. Johnson, managing director of the Lee Highway Association, is in charge of plans which the association is perfecting in consultation with Government officials for a wide boulevard connecting the Arlington Memorial bridge, to be erected over the Potomac River at Washington, and the bridge to be erected over the Hudson connecting Manhattan Island and New Jersey at West 178th Street.

The purpose behind the movement is to relieve motor traffic between Washington and New York. It is intended to choose a route through undeveloped sections of Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. In the opinion of those connected with the project, it will be cheaper to construct a new route which would avoid large cities than to utilize parts of existing routes for the proposed highway.

The Arlington Memorial bridge is to connect the Arlington National Cemetery, opposite Washington in Virginia, the former estate of General Robert E. Lee, with the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park on the Washington side of the Potomac.

Boy Missing Since Last Sunday.

The Missing Persons Bureau last night sent out a general alarm for Francis Rappolt, 13-year-old schoolboy of 558 West 181st Street, who disappeared on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Nellie Rappolt is his mother, said that the boy had not been seen since he left to go swimming in the Hudson River at Fort Washington Point. He wore a bathing suit under his outer garments and had only 10 cents, which he spent for candy on the way to the river. Mrs. Rappolt said the boy was five feet two inches tall, but weighed only 90 pounds.

Four armed men, two of them wearing handkerchiefs as masks, held up seven men, employes of the Star Publishing Company, a Hearst organization, at 12 Reid Avenue, Brooklyn, early yesterday and robbed them of $290. The holdup men escaped in an automobile. The men were sorting and arranging newspapers for delivery.

ADVISES MUCH CAUTION IN PACIFIC RELATIONS

G. H. Blakeslee, in Honolulu, Expresses Fears of Clash of Asiatics and Anglo-Americans.

HONOLULU, June 26 (AP).—The danger of great racial alignments and possible racial clash in the Pacific, and the need for consideration of race feeling and dignity to avert friction, were pointed out today in a luncheon address at the Y. M. C. A. by Professor G. H. Blakeslee, Professor of History and International Relations of Clark University, Worcester, Mass. He is a member of the Institute of Pacific Relations, which convenes here next week.

Professor Blakeslee said Japan and the United States have now no fundamental clash of interests or policy sufficient to cause war. The Washington Conference and the events following gave a striking change to international relations in the Pacific. The problems of the Pacific, he said, were more difficult of solution than those of the Atlantic, because more serious questions and possible race antagonisms might arise in the Pacific.

The Anglo-American group in the Pacific might find itself opposed by a grouping of Asian races with a prospect of race conflict. The way to avert that conflict is to avoid wounding international sensibilities, and the "intangibles of international relations—success, dignity, pride, sympathy and sensibilities—should be taken into account."

There was a danger, he said, of the United States and the British dominions in the Pacific gradually making one great group and Japan and China and those lower down the Asian coast forming a union against the white group.

"In this the question is not a clash of interest but a question of sensibility, wounded dignity and national feeling, something that takes the utmost consideration, tact and judgment," he said.

Convicts Testify to Paying or "Loaning" $10,500 at Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 26.—Savannah bootlegger prisoners serving sentences were witnesses at today's session of the trial of L. J. Fletcher and Father T. P. Hayden, former officials of the Federal Prison.

Headed by Willie Haar and Graham Baugh, they told details of alleged payments of $16,500, for which they said they received special privileges in prison. Willie Haar said the $10,500 was a legitimate loan he had made to former Warden Albert E. Sartain and former Deputy Warden Fletcher, while Baugh said the amount represented $1,500 each for seven Savannah prisoners, who were to get "easy assignments" for this money.

The day's sessions were marked by testimony given by Baugh of poker games at the prison, at which large sums were won, the Savannah man testifying to winning nearly $4,000 at one sitting. It also was announced that Albert E. Sartain, former warden, and Lawrence Riehl, his friend, both of Columbus, Ohio, had arrived as witnesses for the defense.

Ernest Haar, Savannah lawyer, brother of Willie Haar, but not involved in any of the liquor charges, testified that he paid to Fletcher $3,500 on behalf of his brother. He said he understood the payment was part of a "legitimate loan" Willie Haar was making to Sartain and Fletcher, and part of the money was to be used by Fletcher in opening an ice business in Miami, Fla.

TURKS PRAY BAREHEADED.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 26.—The Turks can now pray bareheaded in their mosques. The senior Judge of the Supreme Court so rules, based on the holy writings, although the Judge is careful to explain that the headgear must be removed as a mark of respect, not because of heat.

Another sign of the changing times is seen in the announcement that three women have been accepted by the Aviation Association of Angora to be trained as aviators.

NEW FLORIDA ROAD IS PLANNED, HE SAYS

Gov. Martin Discloses That 2,000,000 Acres Have Been Acquired for Project.

WORK TO BEGIN IN 2 WEEKS

Southern Terminus at Tampa or St. Petersburg, He Declares—Trunk Line Junction Withheld.

A group of capitalists in the middle West have purchased 2,000,000 acres of land in Florida and within the next two weeks will begin the construction of a west coast railroad, Governor John W. Martin of that State, who is here at the Vanderbilt Hotel, announced last night.

The backers of the new road are not yet ready to disclose all of their plans, Governor Martin said, but a detailed statement will be made before the construction work is begun. It is planned to complete the road by the autumn of 1926.

Present plans, he said, call for the construction of about 300 miles of single track line starting from some point in Gadsden County and running through Quincy, Tallahassee, Perry, Cross City, Bronson and Crystal River to a southern terminus at either St. Petersburg or Tampa.

While admitting that the backers of the road planned to connect with one of the large trunk lines running through the Mississippi Valley, Governor Martin said that he was not in a position to announce with what road this connection would be made.

In discussing real estate activities in Florida Governor Martin said that it could not rightly be called a boom but a normal development. "Florida," he said, "is about the size of Italy. They have a population of over 40,000,000, while our own population is about 1,000,000. We have millions of acres of the richest virgin soil capable of growing not only one crop a year, but three or four.

"While in Chicago I was informed that a firm there had purchased a tract south of Lake Okeechobee in the Everglades for $8,000,000 which they are going to devote to the raising of sugar cane. We can raise just as good sugar cane as Cuba and more of it.

"The growth of Florida is phenomenal, but it is natural. There are 12,000,000 people in the East who can come to Florida in the Winter and eventually we hope to get most of them there. Miami has grown in the past five years from a city of 29,000 to one of 79,000. Orlando's population has jumped from 9,000 to 23,000 and Tampa's from 60,000 to 94,000. I believe within a few years Miami will be the greatest city in the South.

"Within five years we will have one of the best paved States in the Union. The State is spending $1,000,000 on roads irrespective of what the counties are spending. The State will spend $6,000,000 on reclamation projects in the Everglades in the next two years, irrespective of what the counties are spending."

The Governor will leave here on Sunday for Poland Springs, Me., to attend the convention of Governors there.

JUDGE ROSALSKY ACCUSES LEGISLATORS

Says Lawyers in Assembly Killed Bill Providing Heavier Penalties for Robbers.

In sentencing two hold-up men yesterday to long prison terms, Judge Rosalsky said that efforts by other Judges of General Sessions and himself to obtain heavier penalties for such offenders were blocked in the Legislature by Assemblymen who have lucrative practices in the criminal courts.

Charles Stapleton, 24, of 2,533 Seventh Avenue, and James D. Jones, 20, of 127 Edgecombe Avenue, were before Judge Rosalsky for sentence on their pleas of guilty to the theft of $50 from the cash register of a restaurant at 2,699 Eighth Avenue on the night of June 4 last, after they had held up the employes and patrons with pistols. The Court referred to resolutions adopted the day before by the Board of Trade and Transportation demanding heavier sentences for armed robbers.

"In 1921," Judge Rosalsky said, "there was a crime wave prevalent in this city. The public and the press advocated increased penalties for offenders. Judge Nott of General Sessions and myself appeared before the Assembly Codes Committee and asked that life imprisonment be made the penalty for robbery in the first degree and burglary in the first degree, the crimes which were most commonly practiced.

"I found that the Codes Committee of the Assembly was made up principally of lawyers who practiced in the criminal courts and, of course, the proposed amendments were killed. It seems to me that so long as we have lawyers in the Legislature who practice in the criminal courts it will be useless to apply for increased penalties for these crimes. Apparently their first thought is for their clients—I don't mean the people of the State of New York."

Stapleton was sentenced to eighteen years and Jones to fifteen years in Sing Sing.

SUBWAY ROUTE PROTESTED.

Taxpayers' Body Wants City to Alter Plans to Include Inwood.

Resolutions protesting against the Board of Transportation's plan for a subway in Fort Washington Avenue on the ground that it cannot be extended to Riverdale were adopted last night by the Executive Committee of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association at a meeting at 3,785 Broadway. The plan calls for a subway 160 feet underground in Fort Washington Avenue, and members of the association expressed belief that the cost of extending it to Inwood and Riverdale would be prohibitive.

Reginald Pelham Bolton, Secretary of the association, submitted a plan which provides that the route leave Fort Washington Avenue at 178d Street and run to Inwood by way of Broadway, which was rejected by John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation. The association last night moved to ask the board to reconsider its plans before awarding contracts for construction.

AMERICANS SEEK LIBERIA'S RUBBER

PLAN LARGE DEVELOPMENT

Would Build Railways and Roads and Supervise the Country's Finances.

LOAN WILL BE ASKED HERE

Liberian Mission Plans to Negotiate for $5,000,000 to Aid Internal Improvements.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—American interests headed by Harvey S. Firestone of Akron, Ohio, have practically concluded negotiations for a concession in Liberia to be utilized in the growing of plantation rubber on a large scale.

Coincident with the conclusion of the tentative agreement regarding the rubber concession arrangements have been made for the flotation in the United States of a loan to the Government of Liberia, understood to be for about $5,000,000 to be used in refunding outstanding obligations and for internal improvements in Liberia, particularly on ports, highways and roads. The Liberian Government is understood to have been invited to send a financial commission to the United States to handle the details of the loan agreement.

A tentative agreement regarding the Firestone concession is understood to have been signed at Monrovia, the Liberian capital. Under present plans the concession would be ratified by the Liberian Congress, it is understood, as soon as the financial mission has reported that arrangements have been completed for the loan.

The concession's terms are understood to include the right to construct railways, highways or roads or other means of communication necessary in the development of the rubber project. The terms of the loan are expected to include the right of supervision of customs receipts and, in fact, supervision of the entire financial régime of Liberia, probably by a financial commission of Americans with American experts acting in most of the important capacities.

The rubber plantation was originally a British project, but after the failure of a British firm, ownership was returned to the Liberian Government. Agents of the Firestone interests have for some months been conducting experiments on this plantation and are understood to be convinced that climatic and soil conditions are ideal for the growth of rubber. Trees now growing on this small plantation are expected to be used for seed purposes on vast new areas.

It is expected that water transportation will be used wherever possible and that as the work progresses good surface roads for automotive trucking will be built. Railway projects are also under consideration. The working out of the Firestone project, which is expected to be a large and competitive undertaking, is expected to mark the beginning of a new era in the Liberian Republic, and perhaps lead to other enterprises for the development of natural resources in Liberia.

Under the Liberan law no white foreigner can own land. The Firestone concession, therefore, is understood to involve the granting of a long-term lease. The successful conclusion of the project for the Firestone concession is a step in the plan of American rubber manufacturers to break the grip of the British rubber combination, since the formation of which several years ago the price of crude rubber has risen from 17 to 85 cents a pound.

TARTOUE WINS DIVORCE.

Jury Finds Artist's Wife Guilty of Acts of Misconduct.

A verdict in favor of Pierre Tartoue, an artist, who sued for a divorce from Claudia Windsor Tartoue, was returned by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Hatting yesterday. The jury found affirmatively on six questions submitted to it involving alleged acts of misconduct on the part of Mme. Tartoue, and found negatively on two charges set up by her against her husband in a counter-claim for divorce.

The marital difficulties of the Tartoues have been in the courts since 1921, two years after their marriage. M. Tartoue began a suit for the annulment of his marriage to Mme. Tartoue on the ground that she had not obtained a divorce from a previous husband. The divorce action was substituted for the annullment suit shortly after Mme. Tartoue lost a suit against the Hotel Ansonia. She alleged that the management of the hotel forcibly ejected her from her rooms while she was ill, but it was brought out in the trial that Mme. Tartoue had been entertaining men in her apartment in the hotel contrary to its regulations.

Pierre Tartoue said last night that he would leave soon for France to work on a war memorial for the City of Paris. He also expects to resume work on a painting of President Coolidge and his father at his home in Vermont, he said.

FINDS LANDLORD GUILTY.

High Court Affirms Conviction for Failure to Provide Heat.

The conviction in Special Sessions of Isaac Flatau of 750 West 181st Street for failure to provide heat and hot water for his tenants at 629 West 138th Street, was affirmed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday. Counsel for Flatau argued on the appeal that it had been conceded that the landlord had furnished enough coal to heat the apartments, and that the trial court had really found him guilty of not removing a janitor who "was not giving proper attention to the tenants."

Deputy Assistant District Attorney McGuire, in asking that the fine of $100, with the alternative of thirty days imprisonment, be affirmed, said that four tenants had appeared at the trial against the landlord and four for him, and said: "Where there is some evidence of guilt the verdict of a jury or a court upon the facts will ordinarily be deemed conclusive and an appellate court will not interfere with it because the jury or trial court, saw fit to believe one set of witnesses."

Judge Asks Wife-Beater To Fight a Man He Picks

Branding a man who would beat his wife as a coward, Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky, in the Tombs Court, yesterday told William Glynn of 275 Spring Street, who was arraigned for beating his wife, that the Court eagerly would offer to arrange a fist fight between Glynn and one of the court officers, who was standing near the prisoner. Glynn uttered no word in acceptance or refusal, and the Magistrate scornfully added: "I don't believe such cowards as you ever fight with a man."

Detective John Devine, the warrant officer of the Fifth District Court, a few hours before had roused Glynn out of bed in his home on the complaint of Glynn's wife. Mrs. Glynn explained to the Magistrate that she had been seeking a separation from her husband in the Domestic Relations Court because of his conduct and that he had assaulted her.

"Glynn, I want you to keep away from Mrs. Glynn," the Magistrate said in paroling the husband for one year.

BOHEMIAN PRINCE BACK HERE TO WED

Edward J. Lebkowicz Comes in Party With Mr. and Mrs. Lehme and Daughter.

ONCE A CLERK IN THIS CITY

Harvey D. Gibson, Banker, Found the French None Too Optimistic Over Security Plans.

Prince Edward John Lebkowics of Bohemia, who came here a year ago and worked four months in a New York department store and left because he was so embarrassed when people pointed him out, returned yesterday on the Cunarder Aquitania to get married. He declined to give the name of the bride-to-be.

"I may have something to tell in a week or two weeks, but not just now," he said. The Prince was in the party of Mr. and Mrs. Bai Lihme of 280 Park Avenue, and their daughter, Anita. There was a rumor current on board the Aquitania that the two young people were engaged. When Mrs. Lihme was asked if it were true, she smiled and replied, "You had better ask the Prince." Mr. and Mrs. Lihme and their daughter were the guests of Prince Lebkowicz part of the time they were in Europe.

Another passenger was Mrs. Daniel O'Day, Associate Chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York, who has been spending two months in Algeria and Morocco with her daughter, Miss Elia O'Day. Mrs. O'Day said that she expected to carry out a program with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to increase the Democratic majority in the Assembly in the November elections. Both she and Mrs. Roosevelt expected, she said, to go out on a campaign of speech-making and to organize the State among the Democratic women voters. This work would be duplicated by a junior group, of which Mrs. Henry Morgenthau was Chairman, she said.

Harvey D. Gibson, President of the New York Trust Company, returned from a short visit to France and Italy. He said that France was now confronted with important problems and the French bankers were alive to the situation, and were not too optimistic about carrying out any plan yet suggested.

"One of the chief difficulties," the banker said, "is that whatever is done will affect generations to come and in the past it has been the tendency in France to rather let each generation meet and solve the problems as they come along."

The Right Rev. John J. Dunn, Auxiliary Bishop of New York, who went to Rome to attend the beatification of Santa Theresa of the Little Flower on May 17, arrived with his secretary, Father Thomas J. McDonnell. The Bishop said the sight in St. Peters was the most wonderful he had ever seen.

Another passenger on the Aquitania was James B. Regan, former hotel operator, who returned with his wife from a two months' visit to Paris. Others arriving were George Widener, former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland, Baroness Muehlen and Marc Anthony of Dallas, Texas.

As J. W. Lawlor, the purser of the Aquitania, was walking along the boat deck coming up the bay, a paper drinking cup zigzagged to the deck from the clouds. He looked up and saw a big airship making toward Atlantic Highlands. One of the pilots apparently had taken a drink and then had thrown the cup away.

FREE THINKERS CARRY ON.

Will Oppose Religion in White Plains Schools, President Warns.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 26.—The Free Thinkers Society of New York will combat the continuance of the religious plan in the schools of this city, it was said today by Joseph Lewis, President of the society, in a telegram sent here.

"Will most assuredly apply Justice Seeger's ruling to the public schools of White Plains. No reason why the Board of Education of White Plains should violate the law," was the terse wording of the message.

This telegram followed the statement yesterday of Superintendent of Schools John W. Lombard that the religious plan would be followed in the schools of White Plains next Fall, unless a court order or a ruling of the State Board of Education enjoined the practice.

Justice Seeger has ruled that instruction in religion was not included in the State curriculum and therefore its teaching during school hours was a violation of the State Education law.

Affirms Dismissal of Tousey Suit.

The Appellate Division affirmed yesterday the decision of the lower court dismissing the suit by Dr. Ralph Tousey to annul his marriage to Mrs. Clara B. Tousey. Mrs. Tousey has been in a sanitarium since 1915. The suit was based on allegations that at the time the parties were married in 1906 Mrs. Tousey concealed from her husband the fact that she was not of normal mentality. A jury decided against Dr. Tousey and on its findings the complaint was dismissed.

Utica Editor Owes $25,535; Has $60

UTICA, N. Y., June 26.—B. Franklin Waite, editor and publisher of The Johnson City Life and Herald, a weekly publication, today filed a petition in bankruptcy here with liabilities of $25,535.19. The petition claims Waite's assets total about $60.

EX-MAYOR REYNOLDS GETS A NEW TRIAL

His Conviction With That of Long Beach Ex-Treasurer Set Aside.

FIND THAT CROPSEY ERRED

Appellate Court, 3 to 1, Overturns Adverse Verdict in Grand Larceny Cases.

The conviction of William H. Reynolds, former Mayor of Long Beach, L. I., and John Gracy, former Treasurer there, was reversed yesterday by the Appellate Division in Brooklyn and new trials on the charge of grand larceny were ordered.

Reynolds and Gracy were tried in the Supreme Court at Mineola in June, 1924, after indictments had been returned by the Extraordinary Grand Jury convened by Governor Smith to inquire into conditions in Nassau County. The two men were convicted of the larceny of $2,440 in connection with a Long Beach bond issue of $484,000 for municipal improvements.

They appealed their conviction on May 5 in the Appellate Division, Abel E. Blackmar, former Presiding Justice of that court; Henry A. Uterhart and Peter P. Smith appearing for them. The appeal was opposed by Special Deputy Attorney General Kenneth M. Spence and Robert S. Johnstone.

The majority opinion of the Court reversing the conviction was written by Justice Mapper and concurred in by Justices Jaycox and Manning. Presiding Justice Kelly filed a dissenting opinion, upholding the conviction. The reversal was on the ground that Supreme Court Justice Cropsey, trial judge, erred in his charge to the jury.

The Charge and the Defense.

During the trial it was alleged that the misuse of funds developed in connection with a contract awarded to Dollard & Rosoff for city improvements. The $484,000 bond issue, according to the allegations, was disposed of to a New York firm at 96, but the municipal books of Long Beach recorded the sale at par, or 100. To cover the shortage, it was alleged, Reynolds arranged for payment to the city of $19,360 by Dollard & Rosoff; and that Gracy subsequently reimbursed the contractors by city checks for the same sum. The defense contended that the whole matter was merely one of irregular bookkeeping and that the city lost nothing.

In his opinion Justice Kapper said, in part:

"Justice Cropsey in his charge said: 'I charge you as a matter of law that in this case the payment of this check, which is the basis of the indictment, was improper, unlawfully paid by the defendants, that they had no right in law to pay it. It was the money belonging to the city and it was not paid out according to lawful means, nor for any lawful purpose.

"'So, gentlemen, you have the payment of the money that is the basis of the charge. You have the law that it was city money and you have the law it was unlawfully paid. That means it should not have been paid, but it was paid, and now you have, of course, at least the question of whether these defendants knew it should not be paid.'

Defense Is Sustained.

"The appellants claim that this charge constitutes legal error, and I am of opinion that the contention must be sustained. Whether or not the transaction was a sale of the bonds to Dollard & Rosoff at par for which they owed the city $484,300 was a question of fact, dependent upon whether there was an actual sale at par to them or whether it was a fictitious transaction to make it appear for the sake of the city's credit that the bonds were sold at par.

"The issue here was not alone whether there had been a valid and binding sale of the bonds to Dollard & Rosoff, but further, and of equal if not greater importance, whether in the minds of the parties they understood and believed that the city bonds had actually been sold to Dollard & Rosoff."

Reynolds and Gracy were sentenced immediately after conviction to six months in the Nassau County jail. They were there only a few hours before Uterhart obtained a certificate of reasonable doubt which permitted them to go free pending decision on the appeal.

INSURES HER $50,000 NOSE.

Woman, Whose Job Is Smelling Perfumes, Takes Out a Policy.

A nose valued at $50,000 is paying a visit to New York this week, while Lloyds of London, who have insured it for that sum, are apprehensive lest something befall it. It does not belong to any stage or screen star, and its value does not depend upon its unimpaired beauty, but upon the sense of smell which it shelters.

Blanche Cavitt, an Oklahoma City specialist in perfumes, is the possessor of the precious appendage, which derives its value from its ability to recognise the base of any perfume by the odor. Mrs. Cavitt is sailing next week for a three months' tour of France, Italy and Egypt, but before she left home she took the precaution to have her sense of smell insured for $50,000. No American firm would accept the risk, but Lloyds finally took it at a premium of $400 for the period of the trip.

Mrs. Cavitt is looking forward to several opportunities of exercising her valuable organ which will repay her for the trip. She has been promised, she says, an opportunity to smell a vial of perfume supposed to be over three thousand years old, taken from an Egyptian tomb and now in Paris. Modern perfumers have never succeeded in learning the base of the Egyptian perfumes, but Mrs. Cavitt is anxious to try her educated nose on the problem.

She will also attend the Exposition Internationale des Arts Decoratifs et Industriels Modernes in Paris, which will be attended by perfumers from all over the world. She has been asked to act as a judge at the exposition and also help create a new perfume for the 1928 exhibit. She, the first American perfumer to be so honored, she says.

Mrs. Cavitt and her husband, R. C. Cavitt of Oklahoma City, are now staying at the Hotel McAlpin. They expect to sail on the Leviathan on July 4.

Former Employes Plead Not Guilty to Company's Charges.

August Bischoff and T. Aubrey MacIntosh, former employes of the City of Hartford Accident and Indemnity Company, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions on four grand larceny indictments, charging that they had defrauded the company out of between $10,000 and $40,000 in premiums on workmen's compensation policies on new buildings.

Assistant District Attorney Frank E. Carstarphen told the Court that Blachoff for a considerable period was New York agent for the company and MacIntosh until July 24, 1924, was in its payroll auditor in the company's office at 110 William Street. He alleged that premiums collected from the builders of the Yorkville Bank at Third Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street and apartment houses in the Bronx had not been delivered to the company. Both men pleaded not guilty. Bischoff was held in $10,000 bail and MacIntosh $5,000.

Park Av. Methodists to Have Church Linked With 15-Story Apartment House

Supreme Court Justice Tierney yesterday approved an application by the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church to lease its property at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street to the Hegbar Realty Corporation for the erection there of a fifteen-story apartment house on the Park Avenue side, and a church structure, with two additional stories above it for church purposes on the Eighty-sixth Street front. The court permits the mortgaging of the property by the tenant for a sum not to exceed $900,000.

The petition of the church trustees stated that their present building is old and out of repair and that it would cost at least $100,000 to put it into proper condition, and even then the congregation would have an old building. For that reason, they have been studying for more than a year plans for the improvement of the property, which would include a new church, and entered into the present lease, which is guaranteed by the Hegeman-Harris Company.

Under the terms of the lease the building is to be designed by Henry C. Pelton, the architect, who has been consulting with the church as to the improvement of its property. The lease runs for twenty-one years and four months, and the tenant has two renewal periods of twenty-one years each. The pastor of the church is to have a seven-room apartment in the new apartment house, and the realty company agrees to pay the church 40 per cent. of the net profits from the operation of the building, which are guaranteed to be not less than $10,000 a year. The church believes that this sum will almost pay the running expenses of the congregation. The church now has cash assets of $19,000 and debts of $50,000, which include a mortgage of $22,500 on the property. The lease was approved by the Quarterly Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Park Avenue Methodist Church vacated its building more than a year ago, when it was planned to carry out a somewhat similar idea, which did not materialize. The congregation since then has used the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church in Eighty-fifth Street, of which the Rev. Tertius Van Dyke is pastor.

COLE'S WIDOW LEFT $130,000 TO DOCTOR

Dr. F. F. Ward Gets Bulk of Circus Man's Estate Under Her Will.

REDUCED BY LITIGATION

Dr. Freeman Ford Ward of 121 East Sixtieth Street received more than $130,000 under the will of Mrs. Margaret C. Cole, widow of Washington W. Cole, for many years head of Cole Bros., Circus, and later managing director of Barnum & Bailey's, after the shows had combined, and also received $59,998 from Mrs. Cole two years before her death. This was disclosed yesterday in the appraisal of Mrs. Cole's estate, which showed that she left property of a gross value of $270,231 and a net value of $145,123.

The estate was reduced by costly litigation, due not only to attempts by her relatives to break the will but also because it was necessary for her executors to sue for the construction of her husband's will. The report said that the expenses of the litigation were $62,500, and that a suit brought to break the will in favor of Dr. Ward was settled for $750,000. An affidavit by Dr. Ward said that another contest was threatened by Mabel Witz, a niece, of Indianapolis, and that $10,000 was paid to compromise her claim. The contestants were represented by Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago and Frank P. Walsh of New York.

Mrs. Cole, who died May 14, 1920, left $30,000 to the American Female Guardian Society and $1,000 each to her brothers, Samuel H. and William F. Koble, and her sister, Kate Rader. Another sister, Mrs. Nancy Strife, received the life income from $20,000. The remainder of the estate, amounting to $118,093 and the $20,000 after the death of the sister, went to Dr. Ward.

An affidavit was made in the proceedings by the physician to prove that the gift to him of stocks and bonds amounting to $59,098 in 1918 was not made in anticipation of death, and for that reason should not be taxed. Dr. Ward said he had been Mrs. Cole's physician since 1908 and that she appreciated his attentions and wished to make him financially independent.

"Before maxing this gift to me," he said, "she told me she was planning to build a home to be usad as a sanitarium, and would leave it to me so that I could take patients at low rates and also observing persons. The war interfered with her plans, and she gave me the securities absolutely in gratitude for my attention and services. Mrs. Cole required special care because of an injury to her lower limbs sustained in an elevator accident in 1909, which left them paralyzed. I constructed special apparatus to aid her in bathing and in being moved from her bed to her chair and into her automobile. She was in the best of health mentally and physically until a few days before her death, when an accident occurred while she was being moved by her nurse and attendant in her home. She fell and the resulting shock caused her to be confined to her bed, after which pneumonia set in and caused her death."

The appraisal shows that Mrs. Cole owned securities valued at $105,850, and that $125,350 was due her under the will of her husband. The relatives who contested the will accused Dr. Ward of using undue influence.

LONDON, June 26.—The Gresham Hotel, Dublin's most famous hostelry, where fourteen British officers were killed by Irish Republicans during the trouble which preceded the granting of self-government to the Irish Free State, and which afterward was burned down by the de Valera party, is to be rebuilt on a big scale by an American syndicate.

The syndicate has bought the site of the Gresham, according to The Morning Post, and will build a hostelry on modern lines which will be a distinct innovation in Ireland.

KEEPS BEATEN CHILD FROM HER PARENTS

Court Reserves Decision but Declares Victim Shall Not Be Returned to Her Home.

SPANKING WINS APPROVAL

Queens Community Council Sanctions Punishment That Makes Sitting Painful.

After hearing both sides in the case of the Queensborough Children's Society against the father and stepmother of Hazel Larsen, 9 years old, of 10,119 126th Street, Richmond Hill, in the Children's Court of Jamaica yesterday Justice Boyle decided that the child should not be allowed to return to her home pending further investigation of the charges that the child's mother had beaten her cruelly.

Last Tuesday Magistrate Gresser in Jamaica police court dismissed a charge of assault against Mrs. Bessie Larsen, the child's stepmother, and upheld her rights to beat the child, although an agent of the society testified that Hazel's body was discolored with bruises from head to waist. Dr. H. F. Coffin of Jamaica, who examined Hazel, also found bruises on one cheek, a scalp wound, a bruise that encircled and discolored her right eye and bruises on her back and arms.

In reserving decision on final disposition of the child, Justice Boyle said:

"I reserve decision on the whole matter and in the meantime will get the probation officer's report. I don't mind telling you that the child will not be allowed to go home. All else in the case will be adjourned until a week from today."

When the case was called Justice Boyle reminded the litigants that his duty was to protect parents as well as children. Attorney Joseph Clark appeared for the parents and when he tried to show extenuating circumstances in behalf of Mrs. Larsen Justice Boyle said that he could see none. "When a parent loses control of his or her temper, the resulting violence is not corrective," he said.

When Mr. Clark protested to the Court that the case was being tried in the presence of reporters, Justice Boyle reminded him that on Tuesday, when Magistrate Gresser decided against the society and approved the beating, it had been granted full publicity and that he was disposed to continue the same freedom of publicity. As a rule Children's Court proceedings are not public.

Through their attorney the parents offered to find a home for the little girl with the paternal grandparents in Cypress Hills, but this was refused, the child was taken to the Brooklyn shelter of the society.

The case has aroused much local interest. The Hunters Point Community Council at a meeting Thursday evening went on record "as opposed to all permittent castigation of children until they were unable to sit down." Magistrate Gresser in dismissing the original complaint had declared in court that he beat his own children they could not sit down.

The subject was introduced at the Community Council meeting by President William Leamy, who said that often when he was a child he had to sit on a pillow after a session with his father.

"I don't believe in beating a child black and blue," he said, "but I do believe in old-time spanking. Many a good old-time spanking I received in my boyhood days and I have thanked my father for it since."

Mrs. Margaret Martin, who said she found time to do much civic work, attend the movies and rear seven children, remarked:

"Look at my children. Not one of them has ever had their name in the paper for being arrested. Why? Because I gave them plenty of this." She emphasized her remarks by shaking aloft her good right hand. She was applauded vigorously.

Woman Who Killed Annoyer Freed.

Mrs. Anna E. Mayer, 42 years old, of 445 East Nineteenth Street was freed yesterday on a homicide charge in General Sessions after Judge Rosalsky was informed that the Grand Jury had refused to indict her for the stabbing and killing of Charles Engelka several weeks ago in front of her home. Engelka was infatuated with the woman. A witness who was escorting her home at the time of the killing testified that she acted in self-defense.

BRITISH HEAR REICH WILL TAKE COMPACT

GERMANS TO CONFER TODAY

May Ask Elucidation of Briand Note—Surprised at Our Objection to Role of Guarantor.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The British Foreign Office is understood to have received from Berlin assurances that the Reich is willing to accept the French security note as the basis for negotiations. The German capital, it is said, is also not alarmed by Foreign Minister Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons, which was closely listened to by the German Ambassador here.

London regards these manifestations as meaning that Berlin will place no great obstacles in the way of beginning early negotiations and expects Germany to apply for admission to the League of Nations in September.

While optimistic as to Berlin's general intentions, London expects that there will be difficult, almost painful, negotiations respecting France's claims in connection with the Rhine treaty. In any event Berlin would generally be expected to try to bargain, no matter what offer might be made, and in particular with regard to France's attitude of wishing to guarantee arbitration treaties between Germany and other countries, in the circumstances, of course, meaning treaties between the Reich on the one hand and Poland and Czechoslovakia on the other hand.

This feature of the situation disturbs public opinion here, as was shown in the Common on the night before last, and in its effect of extending France's guardianship over her European allies, of course, does not please British Foreign Office. But Mr. Chamberlain apparently believes that Britain cannot have the whole thing her way, and, indeed, it would be very difficult to get the French to enter any arrangement which amounted to throwing their allies overboard.

Much Jockeying Expected.

Probably the Germans recognize that, and see in the beginning negotiations with the French note as a basis, reserving the right to suggest their own amendments, a better chance of having their way than by arguing the issue directly with France through a further exchange of preliminary notes. It is recognized here that German statesmen must do a certain amount of jockeying, if only for home consumption. This need is believed to account for the emphasis the German press places upon the danger of France marching across Germany to aid Poland in case France's ally gets mixed up in a war.

Of course, no one knows better than German military experts no French army could fight in Poland with its lines of communications across a hostile Germany. But the argument goes well in Germany.

What the Germans really wish to guard against is not a French march across Germany to fight some one else, but a French march across the Rhine to fight Germany, in case Germany is involved in a war with France's allies in a manner which the French might judge aggression. Therefore a point important for Germans is defining aggression. And Germany senses full well that this issue will in all likelihood go to the League of Nations.

Despite all the words wasted on the subject it should be quite clear that the working out of the security compact as planned by France will give the right to cross the Rhine only under specified conditions, in which she is not the sole judge, offers Germany more guarantees than she has now when France reserves the right to cross the Rhine when she alone judges best, for example the occupation of the Ruhr.

Of course it is true that the proposed compact would give France more protection from Germany than it would give Germany from France, but then what is the issue of security if not the protection of France? That is the basis of the whole proposition, as the Germans know full well.

What Germany stands to gain is readmittance into the councils of Europe, and as London judges, she intends to embrace the opportunity. There will be a good deal of diplomatic chess playing, but the British believe Germany has made up her mind to play with the Allies rather than with Soviet Russia, and as it is seen here that would be only the smallest result of the Rhine compact.

The Wilhelmstrasse belief is that the conference regarding the security compact can hardly be held before the next League of Nations meeting in September, since the preliminary interchange of notes alone would take up too much time to allow this. It is understood to be the firm belief of the highest German Government officials that Germany will probably become a member of the League before the security compact question is cleaned up. Incidentally the German spokesmen today re-emphasized the idea that the German proposals were merely intended as a basis for discussion and not aimed at seeking to bind the Entente to accepting a special form of security compact. In contradiction with this attitude of Germany, Germans here today stress the belief that France is answering the German proposals a few days ago sought to bind Germany to a special form of compact based entirely on French desires.

The principal thing needed first of all just now, according to one authoritative German commentator on the French note, is to find out exactly what the note means.

"It is a crossword puzzle in its present form," he said. "The first of the arbitration courts which it suggests should be summoned in order to explain the meaning of the note itself."

Inquiries in Wilhelmstrasse official circles today on whether the Germans thought there might possibly be American cooperation in a conference on the security compact elicited the statement that it seemed hardly probable, owing to the changed European conditions since the days of the Cuno proposal and the creation of the Dawes plan.

Criticism Here Surprises Berlin.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—High Wilhelmstrasse political circles do not see any reason why American public opinion should be alarmed or displeased at the clause in the recent German peace security compact proposals advocating having America act as a sort of guarantor of such compact, it became known here today.

The viewpoint expressed by spokesmen, whose statements may be considered authoritative, is that the allusion to America in the German proposals last February is merely due to the fact that America was interested in the previous attempt by the Cuno Government of Germany to conclude a security compact with the Entente. This American interest was later greatly increased by the American part in the creation of Dawes plan London conference, where America played a leading though unofficial role.

German commentators well acquainted with the official German Government view expressly deny that there was any idea of entangling America in European quarrels when America was mentioned in the German compact proposals as a possible guarantor. It is felt here that a section of American public opinion in seeing and criticizing such an intention in the German proposals is barking up the wrong tree, since no such thing was contemplated or intended.

The impression prevailing in authoritative political circles here is that a conference must be held regarding the security compact before Germany can enter the League of Nations. This is diametrically opposed to the view held among others by the noted Socialist leader Herr Breitscheid—that Germany should first enter the League, whereupon the security compact problems could be solved far more easily than with Germany remaining outside the League.

Germans to Confer Today.

BERLIN, June 26 (AP).—Preliminary consideration of the reply of Aristide Briand, the French Foreign Minister, to Germany's security compact proposal has progressed sufficiently to warrant Dr. Luther, the Chancellor, to call a conference of the Premiers of the Federated States for tomorrow. After this conference the Government will continue its program for further action.

It is believed in competent quarters that this further action will embrace chiefly a formal query to the Paris Government requesting elucidation of the arbitration treaties and of the character and prerogatives which it is proposed shall be imposed on the so-called guarantor, as both problems, in the opinion of official quarters here, are too vaguely defined in the French reply.

It is admitted that the Cabinet discussions have been rather negative. The Ministers have seemed to agree that M. Briand's reply leaves the entire question of the formulation of security compact in a state of "insecurity," inasmuch as it projects a multitude of complicated juridical problems into the discussions.

USE LOCAL ANESTHETIC FOR BRAIN OPERATION

Man Blind Two Years Cries 'I Can See,' as Surgeon Removes Tumor.

Two years of total blindness for Benjamin Delobowsky, 28 years old, a clothing worker, of 386 East Tenth Street, was ended by one of the strangest operations ever performed, it was announced yesterday by L. J. Frank, Superintendent of Beth Israel Hospital.

Neurologists and brain surgeons, it was stated, found in an examination which continued over two months, that Delobowsky was suffering from a tumor of the brain, and that his blindness was only one of several ailments from which he had long been a sufferer. They recommended an operation on the brain, always a delicate proceeding, and also, which was more unusual, that it be performed while the patient was under only a local anesthetic, because his condition made it inadvisable to apply a general anesthetic.

Delobowsky was conscious while he was on the operating table and the surgeons made the incision and isolated the tumor which was removed immediately. Even while the surgeons were beside the patient, Delobowsky cried: "I can see! I can see!" and before leaving the table, it was said, he recognized objects placed before him.

DR. LARKIN TO QUIT THE PAROLE BOARD

Will Resign to Become Dannemora Prison Physican at Lower Salary.

DENIES CRITICISM IS CAUSE

Says That New Work Will Fit In Better With His Medical Practice.

GOVERNOR GAINS CONTROL

Choice of a Democrat Would Place the Party in the Majority on Parole Body.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., June 26.—Dr. Elmer Larkin, a Republican appointee on the State Board of Parole, will resign his position, it was learned today, to accept the more arduous and less remunerative post of physician at Dannemora Prison. Dr. Larkin admitted he intended to resign.

Dr. Larkin's resignation will be sent to Governor Smith to become effective July 1, twenty months before the expiration of his term, and politicians are wondering, as the Parole Board is still being criticized for its alleged favoritism to Robert P. Brindell and William H. Anderson, why he plans to quit now. The speculations about the significance of the action are further complicated by the fact that it would give Governor Smith the first opportunity he has had to gain control of the board by appointing a Democrat and also by the fact that Dr. Larkin was appointed to his new post by Superintendent of Prisons James L. Long, the only Democrat of the board's three members.

Dr. Larkin's work as a member of the Parole Board has required only thirty-three days' service a year and pays $3,600 annually. His position at Dannemora will demand several hours of his time every day in the year and will pay only $3,500 annually.

He and George W. Benham of Auburn have been the two Republican members of the board. They were criticized when Brindell, convicted of extortion in stopping a strike in the building trades and found guilty of violating prison regulations, after which a guard was discharged, was paroled at the first opportunity permissible. They were criticized again when Anderson, convicted of forgery, was paroled after he had served only nine months, although the board had gone on record the previous month as opposed to paroling any prisoner until he had served one year.

In the latter instance former Governor Whitman, who first appointed both Dr. Larkin and Mr. Benham eight years ago, was counsel for Anderson, but Dr. Larkin and Mr. Benham, who afore voted to abolish their ruling and release Anderson, denied then that they favored Anderson because either Mr. Whitman or the prisoner was a Republican.

The attitude of the Parole Board toward Brindell has been repeatedly criticized by Samuel Untermyer, who has said the labor leader violated his parole by taking part in union affairs. The board refused to permit him to subpoena witnesses at a hearing of the charges Mr. Untermyer made against Brindell, but the lawyer was appointed a Special Deputy Attorney General at the beginning of the hearings this month and will continue the examination of witnesses when he returns from Europe in September. Meanwhile, Brindell has been "exiled" from New York City.

Dr. Larkin denied he was resigning because the board had been criticized for its treatment of Brindell.

"I found that the work of prison physician would fit in with my medical practice, whereas the parole work interfered with my medical work in Plattsburgh," he said, "there was no politics in the change. I am a Republican and Superintendent Long is a Democrat."

Governor Smith is expected to name a successor to Dr. Larkin immediately after he receives the latter's resignation. Heretofore when complaints have been made to Mr. Smith about parole matters he has pointed out he had no control over the body, and once declared one of the board's members had never even called on him.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26.—Speaking of the resignation of Dr. Larkin, Governor Smith said tonight he had not received any notification of it, nor had he any intimation of it.

"I cannot say who will be appointed to the position," he said, "and, in fact, I cannot say anything about it until I receive the resignation of Dr. Larkin. Naturally I should want a high-type man for a position of this kind."

CANTON IS CALMER; MISSIONARIES OUT

But Some Foreign Religious Teachers in Rural Area Are Not Heard From.

SHANGHAI SHOPS OPEN

But the Shipping and Factory Strikers There Continue in Force.

HONGKONG, June 26 (AP).—A wireless message from Canton said everything was quiet there this morning.

Some of the crews of the Indo-China Navigation Company's ships who went on strike are returning to their ships.

A British gunboat has gone to Wuchow.

A food-control system has been established at Macao, the Portuguese colony at the mouth of the Canton River.

All the foreign missionaries have escaped from Canton, but there are grave fears concerning the fate of some of those in the country districts from whom nothing has been heard since the outbreak of the anti-foreign movement. This is the report of O. W. McMillen and W. W. Creighton, American Presbyterian missionaries, who arrived today from Canton.

The anti-foreign propaganda in that city, they said, included anti-American placards. A communistic group was persistently circulating wild rumors designed to mislead the Chinese public.

HONGKONG, June 26.—The American community in Hongkong is indignant regarding a statement of the Canton Christian College, telegraphed to America, that the Shameen defense forces wantonly fired on the Canton students. Dr. Alexander Baxter, Vice President of the college, today made a signed statement in the presence of Hongkong officials that the college statement was issued upon incorrect information and he now agrees that responsibility rests with the Chinese.

The developments in Shanghai are causing tension here but the strike is spreading slowly, affecting the ferries and sanitary service, but inconveniencing the Chinese more than foreigners.

Reports from Canton indicate a dearth of food and high prices there. The strikers from Hongkong who went to Canton are feeling the pinch as a result and some are returning here.

The Hongkong community once more is carrying on cheerfully with a strong but unofficial opinion in favor of a fight to the finish to teach the strikers a salutary lesson.

British Protest Canton Killing.

PEKING, June 26 (AP).—The British Minister is sending a note to the Chinese Foreign Office today formally protesting against the action of the Chinese at Canton last Tuesday in firing upon the British concession and wounding British subjects.

NANKOW, June 26 (AP).—Some minor anti-foreign demonstrations took place here yesterday and the student element, agitating for a general strike and boycott of foreigners, is becoming more excited.

Chinese authorities and foreign business men are exerting every effort to prevent the movement from becoming effective. Measures are being taken to protect foreigners.

A Japanese gunboat has arrived and American and British marines are expected.

PEKING, June 26.—Although the British Chargé d'Affaires has repeatedly pressed the Chinese Government to prevent the placarding of the city with anti-British propaganda, only a few of the numerous objectionable posters have been torn down.

Some are visible this evening at the Chien-men gate, where the traffic is heaviest, including a huge square of Manchester cotton on which is printed demands for the removal of the British Chargé d'Affaires, the dismissal of the British Consuls at Shanghai and Hankow, punishment of the "culprits" in Shanghai and the surrender of the British and Japanese concessions throughout China.

They could not have been put up without the cognizance of the police and the approval of higher authority.

SHANGHAI SHOPS OPEN.

Partial Peace Falls to Stop Shipping and Mill Strikes.

SHANGHAI, June 26 (AP).—The general strike has terminated. All the larger stores are reopening, but shipping remains paralyzed, and the Japanese and British cotton mills are still closed. The radicals continue to support the general strike and boycott of foreigners, and to frighten the workers away from many establishments.

Yuen Yuan, Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, led a procession of automobiles through the streets of the settlement this morning with the City Magistrate and other officials, bearing banners inscribed "All shops should reopen. The Government takes full responsibility for the negotiations."

Several crowds of Chinese strikers and rowdies entered the International Settlement today, stoned and held up street cars. Later they were dispersed by the police.

A meeting of the Shanghai Students' Union yesterday decided to issue an appeal to all Chinese students throughout the country to "learn the art of war and be ready to fight for their country." It was resolved to petition the military chiefs to select lecturers to "arouse the patriotism of the people and soldiers."

Many volunteers have been withdrawn and the streets are resuming a normal appearance.

SHANGHAI, June 26.—Despite the reopening of all Chinese shops and offices today the emergency is not over. Several cases of stone-throwing at street cars kept police patrols busy.

Hardly any labor in the community has returned to work and the real reason is that the strike leaders are receiving huge sums from the fund, of which it is safe to say not more than half goes to the strikers. The leaders have ample sums from the balance to hire roughs to terrorize would-be workers and still keep a large amount for themselves.

The diplomatic commission which is to discuss with the Chinese in Peking the settlement of the dispute consists only of the American Chargé d'Affaires and the Italian and French Ministers. The North China Daily News, a British newspaper here, protests strongly against this, claiming that the fact that Chinese are represented while the British are not will inevitably make Great Britain appear as a culprit at the bar or a tribunal and directly play into the hands of those who channel the stream of popular ill will against Great Britain, although she is no more responsible for the events of May 30 than any other of the powers interested in the International Settlement of Shanghai.

CHINA'S ENVOY SEES KELLOGG.

Said to Have Asked Washington to Form Commission to Study Problems

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, the Chinese Minister, today personally handed to Secretary Kellogg a note from his Government asking for a revision of old treaties giving foreigners special privileges in China. The note was identical with the one that was sent by the Chinese Foreign Office on Wednesday to the envoys at Peking, the text of which was forwarded by the Chargé d'Affaires.

The Minister took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded for a long and intimate talk with Secretary Kellogg regarding the Chinese problem. It was officially admitted at the State Department today that Dr. Sze made certain definite suggestions, which will be given future consideration by the Secretary of State. The nature of these suggestions the State Department declined to disclose today. It is thought that the Minister asked the Government to take the lead in forming a commission on Chinese affairs under the resolutions of the Washington Conference.

After his return from New York City early next week Secretary Kellogg will again discuss the matter with the Chinese Minister.

TOKIO WATCHES THE SOVIET.

Many Rumors of Aid to Chinese Rioters Reach Japan.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, June 26.—The extent to which the Russian Government is responsible for and supporting the Chinese anti-foreign movement is intriguing the Japanese officials and public. While many rumors come from China concerning Soviet money for strikers, and the Russian press is known to be actively supporting the rioters, the proof on which the accusations are based is unobtainable.

Although Soviet officials elsewhere openly laud the Chinese Nationalists, the Embassy here maintains the silence that has been preserved since Ambassador Kopp's arrival. Government officials do not conceal their distrust of the Soviet, saying that extreme watchfulness is necessary. The Government is not afraid of Russian propaganda, as Japan recently enacted a peace preservation bill providing ten years of imprisonment for anyone found guilty of propagating Communism.

It is an effective weapon for combatting Soviet doctrines, but Russian activities in China, especially in Manchuria, where Japan's chief interests are situated, cause anxiety. Opinions are expressed that Russia is playing a double game in China, intending to arouse the Chinese against other foreigners, thus increasing her own influence, and simultaneously to divert China's attention from Russia's activities in Northwestern China, especially Mongolia, where Russia is attempting to establish a number of independent States as buffers to resist the expansion of China and Japan toward Siberia.

The majority of the tribes in Mongolia are influenced by the Red officers who are stationed with them and have broken practically all ties with Peking, turning instead to Moscow. Thus the only word Peking receives from vast parts of her own possessions comes through Moscow.

The Japanese Foreign Office's reply today to the Chinese note, addressed to the legations in Peking, states that it is wholly impossible to accede to its proposal for the abolition of extra-territoriality.

Two more destroyers have been dispatched, one to Canton and the other to Amoy. Others are held in readiness here to cope with any further emergencies.

RED MISSION GOING TO CHINA.

Trade Union Group Will Encourage Strikers at Shanghai.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, June 26.—The Soviet Government intends to send a "trade union delegation" to Shanghai to encourage the strikers.

The Executive Federation of Chinese Trade Unions has cabled to the Chairman of the Council of the Trade Unions of Soviet Russia their "warmest gratitude for the moral and material assistance already rendered in our difficult struggle with a powerful foe," and they will officially welcome the trade union visit as most opportune.

Rumor in Portugal of Big Loan Here.

LISBON, Portugal, June 26 (AP).—Rumors are circulating here that the Portuguese Government has received a proposal from an American bank for floating a loan of $40,000,000. The bank is not named and the basis for the report is not stated.

It was reported here June 15 that the Government at Lisbon had undertaken negotiations for a loan of $3,000,000 from American bankers.

CHURCHMEN TO AID ORPHAN FESTIVAL

OTHER NEWS OF RELIGION

New Rector for St. Ann's, Historic Church in the Bronx—Flower Booth at St. Paul's.

The annual festival of the Bethlehem Orphan Asylum, Fort Wadsworth, S. I., which is maintained by the Lutheran churches affiliated with the Synodical Conference, will take place tomorrow in the gardens of the association. During the day meals and refreshments will be served in large tents, and also in the dining room, by Ladies' Aid Societies. At 3:30 o'clock a service in English will be held in the grove. The Rev. B. von Schenk, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Hoboken, will deliver an address. At the same hour a service in German will take place in the chapel of the asylum. The Rev. Frederick E. Tilly, pastor of St. Jacobus's Lutheran Church, Winfield, will make an address. At both services the Boys' Orphan Band and a chorus of the children of the home will render selections. Other clergymen to take part will be the Rev. William F. Koepchen, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, 308 West Forty-sixth Street, Manhattan, and the Rev. M. T. Hollis, Superintendent of the institution. The officers of the asylum are: President, T. H. Lamprecht; First Vice President, Andrew Dihlmann; Second Vice President, Elmer Hossfeld; Financial Secretary, Louis Berghorn; Secretary, J. H. Surbeck, and Treasurer, Henry Wahlers.

The Rev. Paul F. Landis, pastor for the last few years of the John Hall Memorial Presbyterian Chapel, 542 East Sixty-third Street, has accepted a position as Secretary of Boys' Work of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, with headquarters in the Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia. Mr. Landis will begin his new duties Aug. 1 next.

By unanimous vote of the vestry this week the Rev. Edward Charles Russell, vicar of Christ Episcopal Church, Fitchburg, Mass., was elected rector of St. Ann's Episcopal Church, 140th Street and St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx. Mr. Russell was formerly assistant rector of the Epiphany Church, Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street. St. Ann's, which was erected eighty-five years ago by Gouverneur Morris, is one of the largest and most influential Episcopal churches in the city. The land on which the church stands had been owned by Richard Morris and his son, Lewis Morris, first Lord Mayor of Morrisania, first native-born Chief Justice of New York and first Governor of the Province of New Jersey. In a vault beneath the church lie the bodies of both these men. Lewis Morris was a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The Rev. Franklin C. Fry will be installed tomorrow morning as pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Yonkers. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, President of the New York Lutheran Synod of New York and New England. The installation sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. F. F. Fry, pastor of the Luthern Church of the Reformation, Rochester, N. Y., and father of the candidate. Young Mr. Fry was ordained by Dr. Trexler in Ithaca, N. Y., a fortnight ago at the annual meeting of the synod.

The Rev. Dr. William Lloyd Imes, pastor of the Lombard Street Colored Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, received a call last Wednesday evening to the pastorate of St. James Colored Presbyterian Church, 59 West 137th Street. The names of ten clergymen were submitted and 204 persons voted. When Dr. Imes received a majority it was voted to make the call unanimous. Dr. Imes will succeed the Rev. Dr. Frank J. Hyder, who some months ago accepted a call to a colored Presbyterian Church at Fairmount, Va.

The Rev. Dr. Howard E. Clarke, pastor of the Baptist Church, Plainfield, N. J., who on June 17 last was called to the pastorate of the Mount Morris Baptist Church, Fifth Avenue between 126th and 127th Streets, this city, will take up new work on Sept. 1 next. A notice issued by the church says: "New enthusiasm and renewed devotion and cordial support will be the welcome to the new minister. Dr. Clarke is a live wire. He is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary. He believes that real religion is good for all men and women. He comes not to keep men out of hell but to keep hell out of men; not to save men for some special personal gain but to inculcate a spirit of service which will continue to make the Church an important factor in the community."

A station booth of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will be maintained upon the Broadway portice of St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Broadway between Fulton and Vesey Streets, for the collection and distribution in lower New York. Other booths for a like purpose are at the Pennsylvania and Grand Central stations. Flowers are received between 8:30 and noon. Messengers carry the flowers directly to hospitals, sick persons at home and to children. The President of the guild is Mrs. George Stewart Brown, wife of Judge Brown. The Honorary President is Mrs. James Roosevelt. The office of the New York City branch is in Room 1012, 10 Fifth Avenue.

The Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton sailed this week from Montreal for Europe. As Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American branch of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches he will attend a meeting of that body Aug. 6 in Stockholm.

Dr. Boynton is also a delegate to the Universal Christian Conference, which will be held August 19-30, also in Stockholm. The Clergy Club of New York gave Dr. Boynton a farewell luncheon last Monday at the Fraternity Clubs' Building, Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street.

It became known this week that the chimes recently installed in the tower of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, at 114th Street, were a personal gift of the Rev. Dr. Walter Duncan Buchanan, the pastor. A few weeks ago the church celebrated its one hundredth anniversary, and this was a centennial present from Dr. Buchanan, who last Winter completed a quarter of a century as the pastor. Dr. Buchanan is the leader of the Fundamentalists in the Presbytery of New York.

Bedford Park Presbyterian Church, Bainbridge Avenue and 200th Street, this week celebrated its silver jubilee. The anniversary sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Harlan G. Mendenhall, retired clerk of the Presbytery of New York. The pastor is the Rev. George Maier.

PRAISES JERSEY SCHOOLS.

"There is less politics in the school system of New Jersey than in any State of the Union," declared former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, speaking at the graduation exercises of the State Normal School at Newark yesterday. Diplomas were given to 287 graduates, the largest number in the history of the institution.

"At the same time there are too many frills in education today," Mr. Frelinghuysen added, "and more attention should be devoted to the three R's. Keep the three R's and top them off with the classics, arts and sciences. Build your foundation on the solid rock of American history. The foundation of your method shall be built on a thorough knowledge of the Declaration of Independence and the reasons for that noble pronouncement, with a complete understanding of the Constitution and respect for and obedience to it. If the Constitution is not obeyed and respected our Government falls and opportunity is gone."

The graduate were also addressed by Emily Cooney, President of the class, and by Dr. W. Spader Wittlie, Principal of the school. The diplomas were awarded by Gustav Hunziger of the New Jersey State Board of Education.

MAY BAR WOELFKIN FROM BAPTIST BODY

HIT OPTIONAL IMMERSION

Western Body Also Questions Orthodoxy of Fosdick, New Head of Local Church.

The Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, the pastor, and the Rev. Eugene M. Carder, the associate pastor, of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, will be unseated at the Northern Baptist Convention, which opens next Tuesday in Seattle, if the Baptist Ministers' Association of Denver has its way.

Both clergymen are delegates from their church and as such are entitled to a seat in the convention. This is also true of laymen from the local church.

The Denver body has sent to Seattle resolutions which call for the expulsion of the Park Avenue Church delegates from the convention because the local congregation has made immersion optional for membership in the church and because it has called as pastor the Rev. Dr. Henry Emerson Fosdick, to whose orthodoxy exception is taken. The Denver ministers also call for a reaffirmation of faith in the New Testament and ask that because of the Fosdick fight the Northern Baptists adopt a creed.

The Park Avenue Church recently accepted the resignation of Dr. Woelfkin, called Dr. Fosdick, and voted to rebuild near Columbia University.

Dr. and Mrs. Woelfkin, it was stated at their home last night, are already in Seattle, and Mr. and Mrs. Carder are on their way to that city. Whether or not they knew about the Denver resolutions before they left New York and were influenced to bring the issue to a head by their actual presence is not known. John D. Rockefeller Jr., the leading layman in the church, usually does not attend the national gatherings.

The cause of New York Fundamentalism will be presented in Seattle by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Goodchild, a rigid Fundamentalist, who for many years was pastor of the Central Baptist Church, Broadway and Ninety-third Street.

An absentee this year will be the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. The Rev. Dr. John J. Kelley, assistant pastor, said last evening that Dr. Straton was in Georgetown, Ky., conducting camp meetings, and he did not feel well enough to make the trip to the Pacific.

Eight members of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn, have gone to Seattle. They are Mr. and Mrs. E. Reed Burns, Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Estey, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Shrimplin, Miss Ina E. Burton and Dr. F. H. Divine.

Three years ago in Indianapolis a strong attempt was made to get the convention to adopt a creed, which it had never done before; but it was beaten and the New Testament again was declared to be the Baptist "only rule of faith and practice." It was Dr. Woelfkin then who led the fight against adopting a creed.

PASTOR WANTS A PISTOL.

PORT MURRAY, N. J., June 26.—The Rev. J. C. Bolton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church here applied today for a permit to carry a revolver, saying that he had received several letters threatening his life.

He charged that the threats were made by persons hostile to the Ku Klux Klan with which he has been associated as a lecturer for two years. Within the last three weeks, he complained, his automobile has been followed, and once, while returning from Washington, N. J., he was stopped by armed men, who questioned him as to his activities and then ordered him to proceed. One of the letters he said read: "We are going to get you and when we do you're a goner."

GETS GERMAN ARTISTS FOR FALL EXHIBITS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—Homer Saint-Gaudens, son of the famous American sculptor, has arrived here to arrange for the inclusion of a German art exhibit in the forthcoming international art exhibition next Autumn at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and St. Louis. This will be the first German art exhibit in America since the war.

Mr. Saint-Gaudens has already arranged to exhibit the works of the leading modern artists of Germany, including Liebermann, Slevogt, Corinth, Ulrich, Huehner, Heckel, Hofer, Pechstein, Kirchner and Kokoschka.

FEDERAL STORES HEAD GETS 5 TO 10 YEARS

Other Officials, Including Reiter's Two Brothers, Indicted in Kings County.

Josef Reiter, a former Vice President and general manager of the bankrupt Federal Food Stores Corporation, was sentenced to Sing Sing Prison yesterday for five to ten years for grand larceny by Supreme Court Justice William F. Hagarty in Brooklyn. He was convicted about ten days ago on the charge of obtaining loans from banks on duplicated warehouse receipts.

Neither Reiter nor his attorney, P. P. Smith, offered any plea to the Court for leniency. The defense counsel gave notice that he would apply to Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey for a certificate of reasonable doubt on June 29 as a basis for appeal and a stay of sentence. Reiter will be held at the Raymond Street Jail until this is disposed of.

The Kings County Grand Jury returned additional indictments yesterday against other officials of the Federal Food Stores Corporation. Samuel and Louis Reiter, brothers of the convicted man, and Lester B. Evans were charged with grand larceny. They are accused of getting $10,000 on fraudulent warehouse receipts from the Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn.

Another indictment charged that Samuel Reiter and Evans got $12,500 from the Nassau National Bank. A third indictment charged Louis Reiter and Evans with larceny of $25,000 from the Brooklyn Finance Corporation

Washington Negroes and Others Fail to Influence Authorities.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—A protest against permitting a monster parade of the Ku Klux Klan along Pennsylvania Avenue on Aug. 8 has been filed with the Commissioners of the District of Columbia by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Other protests have been made. Washington has a larger negro population numerically than any other American city, with the exception of New York.

In their answer the Commissioners will take the position that they were obliged to grant the permission to parade, as they have no authority to do otherwise when an application is made, provided the laws and local regulations are complied with. The Commissioners stipulated that the parading Ku Kluxers should not be masked.

Three Kentucky Bandits Executed.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., June 26 (AP).—George Farrell, Richard Newhouse and Elmer Hall, the "Bourbon bandits" who killed Frank Buchanan in an attempted bank robbery at Clintonville one year ago this month, were electrocuted today one after the other. "Good-bye, everybody. God bless you all," said Farrell. Newhouse was silent. Hall protested his innocence.

MAY SHOWED SLUMP IN BASIC INDUSTRIES

LEVELS ARE STILL HEALTHY

Building Keeps Up Satisfactorily—Employment Falls Off, but Is Higher Than in April.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The review of general business and financial conditions for May and early June issued today by the Federal Reserve Board showed an additional seasonal slackening in the production of basic industries and distribution of commodities. The levels, however, generally were higher than at this time last year, indicating a healthy basis. Building construction kept up satisfactorily and while the contracts awarded during May were smaller in value and in square feet than those for April, they were larger than for any other month on record.

The board's index of production in basic industries declined 6 per cent. in May to a level 12 per cent. below the high point in January. There were further considerable decreases in the output of iron and steel and woolens and declines also occurred in the mill consumption of cotton and in copper, sole leather and newsprint production. The number of automobiles manufactured during May fell slightly below the record figure of April.

In the industrial establishments employment was only slightly less in May than in the month before, with decreases partly seasonal in the clothing, boot and shoe and iron and steel industries and increases in the industries producing automobiles, tobacco products and certain of the building materials. The sales of department stores in May were smaller than in April but somewhat larger than a year ago, and mail order sales were 5 per cent. larger than in May, 1924.

Department store stocks declined in May and were at the same level as a year ago.

Wholesale trade was in about the same volume as the month before and about 3 per cent. larger than a year ago, increases over last year in sales of meats and dry goods offsetting decreases in sales of groceries, shoes, hardware and drugs. Wholesale stocks of groceries in dollar values were larger than a year ago, while stocks of dry goods and shoes were substantially smaller.

Wholesale prices continued to decline in May, but the decrease was considerably smaller than for the preceding month.

All groups of prices represented in the Bureau of Labor statistics index declined except the house furnishings and miscellaneous groups. In the first three weeks of June prices of wheat, corn, flour, cotton goods and pig iron declined, while quotations on sheep, hogs gasoline, hides and rubber advanced.

Borrowing for commercial purposes at member banks in leading cities declined further between the middle of May and the middle of June to a level lower than at any time this year, while loans on securities increased and reached a new high level in June. Investment holdings of these banks also increased and total loans and investments at the middle of June were near the high point for the year.

At the reserve banks there was an increase in member bank borrowing between May 20 and June 24 and on that date discounts for member banks were in larger volume than at any time since the opening of the year. Further decreases in gold holdings of acceptances and of United States securities brought the volume of open market holdings in June to the lowest level since last Summer.

Conditions in the money market remained relatively steady during the latter part of May and the first three weeks of June notwithstanding the heavy Treasury operations in the middle of June.

ANDERSON'S ALLIANCE TO LINK PROTESTANTS

Would Join Churches and Fraternal Orders, He Says—Thinks Klan May Be Eligible.

William H. Anderson made his third and last announcement yesterday on the aims of his new idea, the American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance. He said it would be a link between Protestant churches and Protestant fraternal orders.

"If the Ku Klux Klan is a Protestant fraternal order, it will be eligible," he explained later, adding, however, that the objects of any unit seeking to join his alliance would have to be within the law.

While the third and last instalment of the convicted 'Anti-Saloon Leaguer's exposition of the A. P. P. P. P. A. was being made public, James L. Long, State Superintendent of Prisons and one of the men who paroled Anderson from Sing Sing, said:

"There is nothing in the parole regulations that forbids a man on parole to join a secret organization. Anderson would not be violating the terms of his parole by organizing one unless he did something wrong."

In earlier explanations Anderson disclosed that the records of receipts, membership list and activities would be hidden in Anderson's head—where no hostile investigators could get at them. Yesterday he added:

"The Protestant denominations, aside from the purely religious and evangelical considerations, have been the past twenty-five years primarily interested in prohibition, but with a vague general interest in patriotic subjects. The Protestant fraternal orders, on the other hand, have been primarily interested in what is included in the term 'patriotic' with a general interest in the prohibition problem. The function of this new alliance is to interpret each to the other so that these two, largely independent, parallel streams of moral and civic power, may both be utilized in turning all wheels that grind a grist of Americanism common to both.

Marine Corps Officer Divorces Wife.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Captain Arthur Kingston of the Marine Corps, stationed at Portsmouth, Va., is entitled to an interlocutory decree for absolute divorce against Mrs. Blanche Kingston on the ground of misconduct with Lieutenant David H. Owen, also of the Marine Corps, according to a decision today by Justice Smith in Equity Court. Justice Smith declared that Mrs. Kingston's counter-charges of neglect and cruelty were not proved.

Widow Gets Entire Utard Estate.

The will of Emile Utard of the French Chamber of Commerce, who died on June 5 at his home, 340 West Eighty-eighth Street, leaves his residence at that address and his estate, "Beaulieu," at Waterford, Conn., to his wife, Mrs. Marie Odile Utard. She also gets the entire residuary estate in trust for life, to pass to his children upon her death. The will, which was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday, did not indicate the value of the estate.

FLEET CORPORATION TO MAKE SHIP DEALS

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Following a suggestion from President Coolidge on June 5, the Shipping Board has directed the Emergency Fleet Corporation to negotiate the sale of single ships or established lines of the Government merchant marine.

Heretofore the board, acting as a body or through individual members, has conducted all negotiations for the sale of established lines, which, in the opinion of the President, led to confusion and misunderstanding. Hereafter the corporation will have exclusive jurisdiction in all such negotiations, the board reserving the right to approve contracts.

Under the new arrangement, it is the belief of the President, the results will be better and a livelier competition for the purchase of such tonnage is expected.

In Chairman O'Connor's letter to President Palmer of the Fleet Corporation this statement appears:

"You are already familiar with the policy and desire of the board to transfer its vessels to private American hands as quickly as possible consistent with the Government's interests. Please be guided accordingly in these matters."

Chairman O'Connor's letter, in part, is as follows:

"In order to avoid any possibility of confusion, all future negotiations for the sale of ship routes, as well as for single ships, should be conducted within the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the board not to act in such matters or enter the negotiations until after recommendations have been received from you.

"It is understood, of course, that when the officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation have completed such negotiations a report thereon shall be submitted to the Shipping Board with recommendation including the details of all offers which have been submitted for the vessels or lines on sale, and all facts relative thereto, to the end that the board may by your report, together with any other necessary information obtained by it from all proper sources, have in its possession all information deemed by it necessary in determining whether the sales shall or shall not be made."

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

While Metals Were Higher, Most Foodstuffs Showed Advances.

The advances shown in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week again outnumbered the declines, this being the third time in succession that it has happened. Thirty-seven of the week's sixty-six revisions were upward, compared with thirty-two advances in fifty-nine changes last week. One of the features was the number of upturns seen in foodstuff prices, which outnumbered the declines by more than two to one. The advances in provisions—other than flour—were especially noticeable. Only in the metals was there any real excess of declines over advances.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago.

*Nominal.

Fourteen of the twenty changes in the foodstuffs were upward this week. The principal declines were seen in flour, with Spring patent variety showing a drop of 10c. a barrel and the Winter soft straights one of 25 cents. All of the changes in the provisions, both in this market and at Chicago, were upward. The live meats all went up, as did prime lard, mess pork, short ribs, hams and hogs.

Not so many changes took place in the dairy products this week as last, although advances of 4 cents and 1 cent a dozen, respectively, were seen in near-by fancy and fresh-gathered eggs (firsts). Butter was unchanged, and the only revision in the prices of the listed cheese was a drop of half a cent a pound in the held special variety.

Fresh and dried fruits passed the week with no change, while in the vegetables the advances were seen in choice red cabbage and rutabagas, turnips, Potatoes and cabbage dropped $1 and 75 cents a barrel, respectively. The only change in the beverages was a slight drop in No. 7 Rio coffee. The spices were lacking in revisions for the first time in a number of weeks, but both fine granulated and 96-test raw sugar were lower.

All of the changes in the grains were downward, including wheat, corn, oats, rye, malting barley and straw. Leathers were again quotably unchanged, but every item listed in the hides was higher. The building material and lumber lists were without change either way, but eleven revisions—eight of them declines—were seen in the metals. Gray forge pig iron, zinc and tin were higher, while declines were seen in wire rods, No. 28 black sheets, No. 28 galvanized sheets, wire nails, galvanized barb wire, copper and lead. Seven changes took place in the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, and of these four were declines. Special features were lacking. In the naval stores resin and turpentine went up.

Chinese raw silk closed the week higher than it opened, but no change was seen in the Japanese varieties. Both the best Brazilian and the best plantation crude rubbers were higher. The paints showed a decline in American zinc.

The week in the textiles was notable for its continued activity in cotton and silk dress fabrics. In the unfinished cottons there was considerable added strength in printcloths and sheetings, but opposed to it were declines in bleached wide sheetings, muslins, sheets, pillow cases, &c. The burlaps registered advances under the stimulus of added buying interest here and a firmer tone at Calcutta.

BUSINESS NOTES.

For delivery in July, August and September the following 36-inch products of the Hill Manufacturing Company will be available at a cent a yard less than the last previous prices on them: Hill bleached jeans, middy finish; "A. D." khaki, "Min-r-el" khaki and "all-wear" khaki. Announcement was made to this effect yesterday by Catlin & Co., Inc., the announcement also setting forth the selling terms as 2, 10, 60 extra, free on board the finishing works.

The White House Dry Goods Company of Beaumont, Texas, recently opened their own local office at 1 230 Broadway, the Wilson Building, Room 911. Miss Freda S. Stern, formerly with S. Solomon, resident buyer, is taking charge of the office.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Thursday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Presages Good Call for Lingerie.

Two things point to popularity for lacy underthings this Fall. One is the usual trend toward fancies with the approach of the holiday season, while the other, which trade authorities say is an important element, is the introduction of the molded and flared skirt in outer apparel. The extreme straight-line effect in vogue for so long made it necessary to eliminate most of the trimming from underwear, thus putting it on a tailored basis. The new mode, however, promises to bring back the frilly types of lingerie that are much preferred by the average woman.

Stress Flat Bags for Fall.

The flat type of handbag is coming back well and will be a feature of the Fall lines according to wholesalers here. The offerings of most manufacturers are now ready for buyers who are expected to be in the market actively within the next two to three weeks. Leather merchandise, both of the staple and novelty variety, is counted on to dominate, although the silk bags will not be neglected. In them the pouch style is still wanted and there will very likely be a fair amount of business done in this style during the Fall. Bags wholesaling at $24 and $36 per dozen are figured on as volume selling merchandise.

Navy Coming to the Fore.

The navy shade is remarked upon as being in considerable demand in dress goods at the present time, showing a revival of its old-time popularity, according to selling agents here. It is wanted in the lustrous twills, the ribbed fabrics, reps and in popular priced brilliantines and serges. In the latter fabric the bordered styling is credited with being particularly successful. These goods will be used for the tailored frocks, to which navy is especially adaptable and for which a satisfactory reaction from garment buyers is expected.

More Confidence in Velvets.

The outlook for staple velvets is not as dark as it has been painted, according to factors here. They add that there is more than a possibility that these fabrics will meet with a steadily improving demand during the Fall. Stocks here are not large, while imports have been small. The buying has also been small, and thus, it is pointed out, with any sizable demand there would be a scarcity of supplies. There is also the possibility that the millinery trade may have a change of heart with regard to velvets, which would create a very good outlet for panne and other varieties. Efforts are being made to strengthen the style sponsorship for dress and coating velvets, which if successful would greatly increase the demand for these types.

Printcloth Sales Are Large.

Printcloths again got most of the attention of buyers in the local gray goods market yesterday. Big sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported for August shipment at 9¼ cents and for July-delivery at 9¼. September-October lots of the goods were said to be available at 9 cents. Some business for immediate shipment was reported in 39-inch 68-72s at 10¼ cents early in the day, but now spots of this construction command 10⅝ cents. For August-September deliveries 10⅛ cents is the best that can be done. Spot 39-inch 72-76s brought 11¼ cents, and 7⅝ cents was paid for spot 38½-inch 60-48s. In the sheetings a good demand was reported for 36-inch 5-yard goods at 7⅛ cents and for 36-inch 5.50s at 7¼ cents. Shirt makers were reported in the market again for both combed and carded broadcloths for delivery during the next sixty days.

Tailored Blouses Less Active.

Activity in blouses has turned from tailored wear to items more suitable for Summer use, and the demand centres at the moment on the 44-inch tunic of flowered chiffon or georgette, according to reports of members of the United Waist League of America. These show all the style points stressed in dresses of similar type, such as flares, godets, flounces and jabots, and are wanted in all the Summer colorings. The same length is featured in printed crêpe de chine tunics, which are also moving briskly. Another item which is enjoying popularity, as effecting a compromise between the tailored style and the vogue for sheer fabrics, is the two-piece blouse ensemble of georgette that is selling in volume in pansy, pencil blue and all the pastel shades.

Many Buyers to Go Abroad.

Many retail buyers will go abroad to look over the models of the Parisian couturiers during the latter part of this month and early in July. The number, it was said yesterday, will probably be larger than was the case last year, owing to the greater competition in the securing of exclusive models and the necessity of trying to get styles that will show more of a departure from last year's silhouette. The latter still is a strong influence in most of the lines offered here, which is not regarded as entirely satisfactory by retailers.

Postpone Tropical Showings.

Changes of plans have been made by several of the factors in tropicals in postponing their openings from next week until after July 4. The reasons given are that buyers who were here during the early part of this week have gone back and, with the important holiday to come, they will not return next week. With the adding of these firms to the number which originally planned their openings during the week of July 6, it is evident that that week will see the entire market well launched on the new season. It is also reported that the American Woolen Company will depart from its practice last year of opening all the men's wear goods at once. The report is that it will probably show its lines of tropicals first, during the week of July 6.

Hard Coal Business Poor.

Anthracite shippers, as well as retail distributers, are complaining of poor business, Seward's Journal will say today. So far as production is concerned, these complaints are not fully borne out by the official figures, which show that no less than 1,870,000 tons were placed on cars in the mining region during the week ended June 13. When it is considered that 2,000,000 tons a week represent practically full-time operations, it will be seen that the slowing down had not been very drastic up to the middle of the month. The bituminous market continues to drift without getting anywhere in particular. Some say it is headed for better things, but the outlook is too uncertain to warrant confident predictions.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Francs Decline on News of French Financial Program—Stock Strong and Active.

The long-awaited declaration of plans for the strengthening of his country's financial system, made yesterday by Finance Minister Caillaux, of France, was immediately followed by a decline in the franc to a new low point of 4.49½ cents, in a market which gave evidences of extreme nervousness. The unsatisfactory part of the proposal, as American bankers view it, is the decision to increase the circulation of bank-notes by 6,000,000,000 francs. Of course, it is much too early to pass judgment at this distance on what must be a well-considered plan and one which no doubt will have governmental as well as banking support. Nevertheless, the havoc which a "wild printing press" can create in a splendid financial system is so fresh in mind, from the illustration furnished by Germany, that it is small wonder that the foreign exchange market registered distinct disapproval.

In other directions yesterday the markets were calm and what may pass as buoyant in these days of humdrum trading. On the Stock Exchange there was visible evidence of support for what might be called the "pivotal stocks"; that is, those issues to which the market as a whole looks for its cue. The gains ranged from fractions to as much as three or four points in the more prominent issues and the market was broader and contained more life and zest than on any other day this week. To those of skeptical mind such an exhibition might be construed as an attempt to "keep the market on its feet." On the other hand, the news of the day generally was of constructive tone and certainly such conditions as prevail at present preclude the possibility of any very heavy liquidation either of actual stock or for short account. Possibly the "bear traders" have wearied of attempting to turn the market about. At any rate, repurchases of stock were a considerable factor in the situation yesterday. Sales were above the "million-share" mark.

It is beginning to dawn upon Wall Street that the rather active inquiry for money at the present time is more or less of a temporary condition and for this reason the 5 per cent. rate for call money on the Stock Exchange yesterday attracted no attention whatever. Sight is not to be lost of the fact that July 1 disbursements this year will probably be heavier than any mid-year settlements since the war, and therein is to be found a refreshing commentary on conditions as they prevail just now. The gain in July 1 disbursements in the main may be attributed to the fact that many companies are paying dividends to their stockholders this year that did not pay any dividends last year. At any rate, it may be stated that the recent advance in market rates for money is entirely temporary and that so far as the total supply of available funds is concerned the reservoir of credit at this centre will soon be again overflowing, as it has been for the last two or three months.

The reviews of the country's business, as compiled by the commercial reporting agencies at the week-end, sound a rather more optimistic note than has been heard in these reports for weeks past. One of them comments that the "uneven conditions that have prevailed for many weeks still appear, but there are more strong points and fewer unfavorable aspects than existed a year ago." Another says that "while things are somewhat quieter than in earlier months, the business community is a good step in advance of the depressed conditions of a year ago at this time." This, from careful and thorough investigators, must be construed as optimistic testimony and most likely forecasting quickened trade and industry when the Summer doldrums have passed.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $81,173,000

Foreign Issues Aggregate $39,188,000, and State and Municipal Offerings $14,141,000.

$19,044,000 FOR RAILROADS

New Public Utility Securities $7,000,000—Jugo-Slavia Loan Is Expected Next Week.

New bond offerings in the week ending today totaled $81,173,000, an increase of $22,197,500 over last week. The increase was due chiefly to a jump in foreign financing and to the flotation of a considerable volume of railroad securities. New State and municipal offerings were less than half the total of this class of securities last week. The offerings by groups of this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
State and Municipal	14,141,000	32,775,500
Public Utility	7,000,000	13,200,000
Farm Loan	800,000	.....
Total	$81,173,000	$58,975,500

New bond financing is expected to be active next week. Several new foreign issues are practically ready for the New York market. These include a $15,000,000 Anglo-American loan to Yugoslavia, details of which have been received by the Foreign Securities Investor. This loan is expected to be issued to the amount of $7,000,000 in New York and the balance in London. The New York bankers handling the issue are Blair & Co., Inc., Armstrong Whitworth & Co. will handle the London portion. A $15,000,000 City of Berlin issue also is expected to be announced next week by Speyer & Co.

The most interesting foreign issue of the present week was a $20,000,000 Chilean Mortgage Bank bond offering by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Guaranty Company of New York. It was the first issue of this kind placed in New York, former financing having been handled in Europe. The Chilean Mortgage Bank has no capital stock and is not operated for profit. Its securities are guaranteed by the Chilean Government.

The syndicate headed by the National City Company, First National Bank of New York, Guaranty Company of New York, Bankers Trust Company and Brown Brothers & Co. announced yesterday that the recent issue of $60,000,000 New York City 4½ per cent. bonds had all been sold. The placing of so large an issue indicated the broad demand for municipal bonds, even at the prevailing high prices. This issue was placed by the city at the highest premium it has received on its bonds in sixteen years.

Speyer & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co. announce that the issue of $5,400,000 Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. 4½ per cent. equipment trust certificates, series F, offered by them, has all been sold.

GARY STREET RAILWAY CALLS DEBENTURES

The Gary Street Railway Company which operates the local transportation system in Gary, Ind., issued a call yesterday for the redemption of all of its 20-year 5 per cent. gold debentures. Notice is given that upon presentation at the office of the New York Trust Company these debentures will be redeemed and paid for in cash on Aug. 1. The Gary Street Railway Company is one of the subsidiaries of the Midland Utilities Company of which Samuel Insull is President.

These debentures totaling $800,000 were issued on Oct. 1, 1917 during a period when the railway was experiencing financial difficulties. They are not due until Oct. 1, 1927, but are callable at par at any time upon 30 days' notice.

The debentures are to be redeemed as a preliminary move to a readjustment of the company's financial structure. The city of Gary, which is the steel manufacturing centre of the Middle West, is growing rapidly. Since the street railway system has been under the management of Mr. Insull and his associates it has been rehabilitated and its lines extended until today it is regarded as one of the best street railway properties of its size in the country.

Gross earnings of the company in 1924 were $998,413 compared with $385,579 in 1918. Charles W. Chase of Gary is President of the company and in active charge of the operation of the property.

Record Cuban Sugar Crop Seen.

Willet & Gray, sugar statisticians, yesterday estimated the 1924-25 Cuban sugar crop at 4,997,795 tons, a new high record for all time. It was also reported that eighteen centrals are still grinding, and that the total crop may pass the estimate of 5,000,000 tons made several months ago. This increased production of Cuba, which compares with a production of 4,066,042 for the last season, is chiefly responsible for the low sugar prices now prevailing.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

New Low for Franc—Lira Also Weak—Scandinavian Rates Higher.

New low records for the year were recorded for the French franc and the Italian lira yesterday, resulting from a continuance of the sharp selling which has recently swept into the market for these remittances. Little support was in evidence in the late trading and the low quotations, 4.49½ for the franc and 3.50½ for the lira, continued to prevail at the close. A sympathetic decline in the Belgian franc also occurred. Sterling was firm. The rates on Denmark and Norway again rose to new highs for a period of over two years under the impetus of renewed and urgent purchasing.

RAIL SUIT DECISION TODAY.

Court Will Rule on Charge Against Southern Road.

Decision in the suit against the Southern Railway for the payment of back dividends on the preferred stock, totaling $29,000,000, which it is alleged were earned but not paid during years prior to 1923, will be handed down today by Judge Beverly T. Crump in the Law and Equity Court at Richmond, Va.

Rumors of an increase in the dividends of the common stock of the road, which earned more than twice the $5 common dividend in 1924, were checked recently by a statement by Fairfax Harrison, President of the company, who said: "Any increase in dividends on the common stock of the Southern will not be considered until the suit confronting us is entirely out of the way. There has been no discussion of an increase to date and I don't know when we shall discuss it."

BIG INDUSTRIAL GAIN SHOWN BY 2 STATES

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—American manufacturing industries in 1923 attained a stride comparable with the abnormal activity of 1919, it was shown today in Census Bureau reports for New York and Pennsylvania, the two greatest manufacturing States.

Their combined output in 1923, nearly $16,400,000,000, exceeded the 1919 figures and was worth more than the output of the entire country in 1904 and any year prior to that. Should like increases be shown for other States it is believed the 1919 record total of $62,418,000,000 will be exceeded.

New York's manufactures were valued at $8,980,693,000, an increase of 28.5 per cent. over 1921, the preceding census year. An average of 1,150,901 workers was employed, an increase of 15 per cent. and they received $1,582,006,000, or 21.4 per cent. more than in 1921.

Clothing manufacture was listed as the State's chief industry.

The output in Pennsylvania was worth $7,438,609,000, a 47 per cent. increase over 1921.

Employes totalled 1,095,066 and wages amounted to $1,450,826,000 increases of 26.8 per cent. and 44.1 per cent., respectively, over 1921.

TO HELP HOLDERS OF ST. PAUL STOCK

COMMITTEES FAVOR PLAN

Approval of Liquidation of the Road's Government Debt Is Indicated.

The reorganization managers and the stockholders protective committees of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul established a precedent in railroad receivership yesterday by offering to aid the small shareholder in arranging to carry the payments required by the readjustment plan. So far as known this is the first time that bankers directing a reorganization have professed so liberal an attitude toward the small investor, and it is believed to follow naturally the prevailing policy on the part of railroads and public utilities to encourage "custom ownership." The offer is limited to those who have held their stock for several years.

Both the preferred and the common stockholders committees also went on record with the bondholders as favoring the plan, which indicates approval of the liquidation of the Government debt. They point out that efforts to refund a part of this indebtedness into long term bonds were unsuccesful.

The circulars set forth that the preferred stockholders making the payment of $28 per share required under the plan, will receive $24 of new bonds and one share of new preferred stock, and that common stockholders making the payment of $32 required will receive $28 of new bonds and one share of new common stock. In the opinion of both committees, these new bonds are worth at least 80, as a conservative estimate, and it is stated that the net burden of the payments is therefore only about $3.80 per share in the case of the preferred stock and about $0.50 in the case of the common stock. Both circulars also assert that the payments required of the St. Paul stockholders are much smaller than those required in previous railroad reorganizations, and attention is called to the terms of payment which provide that the amount of deposit be divided into two equal instalments, the first to be paid after the plan is declared operative and second not until Feb. 15, 1927.

The preferred stock committee says:

"The estimates of earnings made by Cloverdale & Colpitts indicate that there is a reasonable prospect of substantial surplus earnings available for dividends on the new preferred stock commencing within six years. Depositing preferred stockholders retain their interest in the equity of the property substantially unchanged and will, therefore, continue to participate in any improvement in the business and earnings of the system."

The letter to the common stockholders concludes with the statement that "the ultimate value of the common stock of the new company as well as the property of the system must depend in the last analysis upon the events of the future, such as the scale of rates and the development of the territory served by the system. The undersigned committee is convinced that the best chance of saving to the common stockholders of the railway company the equity represented by their stock lies in the prompt consummation of the plan of reorganization."

The letter to the preferred stockholders is signed by Mortimer N. Buckner as Chairman of the committee, who is Chairman of the Board of the New York Trust Company; Oliver C. Fuller, Chairman of the Board of First Wisconsin National Bank, Milwaukee; Arthur W. Loasby, President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York; John McHugh, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, and Harold L. Pratt of Charles Pratt & Co.

TEXAS COMPANY RAISES PRICE OF CRUDE OIL

Producers to Be Paid According to Gravity Instead of Flat Rate Per Barrel.

The Texas Company yesterday announced an advance of 25 cents a barrel in high-grade East and Central Texas crude oil. Under the company's new schedule of prices it will pay producers $2.25 a barrel for all crude of 42 gravity and above and $2 a barrel for all crude of less than 42 gravity. Heretofore the company has been paying a flat price of $2 a barrel for all crude produced in this district. The advance in prices affects oil produced in the Mexia, Powell, Wortham, Currie and Richland fields.

Advices were also received from the South yesterday to the effect that the Atlantic Oil Producing Company, a subsidiary of the Atlantic Refining Company, has met the advance of 10 cents a barrel to 90 cents for Smackover heavy grade crude, announced by other companies earlier in the week. The new price affects all oil of less than 24 gravity.

In the Pennsylvania district it was reported that premiums as high as 25 cents a barrel were being paid for oil above the posted prices, compared with premiums of 5 to 15 cents prevailing heretofore.

A further sharp decline in production of Smackover heavy grade crude oil was reported on Thursday. According to private figures, a total of 190,700 barrels was produced on that day, a drop of 14,000 barrels compared with Wednesday and a drop of 202,000 from the peak production of 392,000 barrels reported on May 25. A total of 127 of the 422 wells completed in the field are now reported dead.

A Million More for Telephone Work.

Directors of the New York Telephone Company have authorized the additional expenditure of $1,000,000 for new construction in various parts of the territory served by the company. This brings the total of appropriations made during the first six months of this year to $30,233,263, of which $25,871,220 was set aside for the enlargement of plant facilities in the metropolitan area.

Exchange Seat May Yield $121,000.

Following the establishment of a new high price for New York Stock Exchange memberships, when a seat was posted for sale at $118,000 on Thursday, reports yesterday were that arrangements have been made for the sale of a seat for $121,000, and that several other seats were sold at prices ranging between $119,000 and $120,000.

National Lead Reduces Prices.

The National Lead Company has announced a reduction of ½ cent a pound in the price of white lead in barrels, and red lead, dry or in oil, in kegs. Sulphate in barrels has been reduced ¼ cent a pound, and red lead litharge and orange mineral in barrels has been reduced ¼ cent a pound.

CHRYSLER MOTORS TO PAY $4 DIVIDEND

Directors of the Chrysler Motor Corporation, at a meeting yesterday, declared a dividend of $4 per share on the preferred stock, series A, payable July 25 to stockholders of record July 10. This dividend, it is stated, is for the first two quarters of the current year. W. P. Chrysler, President, stated that unfilled orders on hand call for the delivery of 40,000 cars and that the plants are operating at capacity.

Directors of the United States Smelting and Refining Company yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, payable July 15 to stockholders of record July 6. This is at the same rate as declared three months ago, when dividend payments were resumed. The directors also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on the preferred stock, payable on the same date as the common dividend.

The regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share was declared on the capital stock of the Eureka Pipe Line Company, a former Standard Oil subsidiary, payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 15. Directors of the Household Products Corporation, Inc., declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 14.

An initial dividend of 2¼ per cent. was declared on the preferred stock of Canadian Canners, Ltd., payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 25. Stockholders approved amendments to the by-laws creating an issue of $6,000,000 6 per cent. twenty-five-year sinking fund general mortgage bonds, and increased the number of directors from eight to ten.

The Sherrill Terminal Company of Florida, which is owned jointly by the Pure Oil Company and the Sherrill Oil Company, has declared a 25 per cent. dividend, payable July 1. Much of the output of the Pure Oil Company is marketed in the Southern district through the Sherrill Terminal Company.

TWO BANKERS GO ABROAD.

Morrow and Leffingwell to Visit France—New Financing Rumored.

Dwight W. Morrow and Russell C. Leffingwell, partners in J. P. Morgan & Co., sailed for France yesterday on the Homeric. Both said they were going abroad for vacations and would not transact any business while away. Gossip in Wall Street, however, turned on the possibility of important new French financing being announced by the time Mr. Morrow and Mr. Leffingwell return to New York next September.

Mr. Morrow will go to Biarritz, where he has a house, while Mr. Leffingwell will spend his vacation motoring through France. While their trip is being made only for recreation, it is thought that officials of the French Government would seek their counsel on some pressing financial problems. The franc is being subjected to heavy pressure just now, and yesterday sold at the lowest point since early in March, 1924.

France has a $100,000,000 credit with J. P. Morgan & Co. and has always done its American financing through this firm. It is believed in Wall Street that Finance Minister Caillaux's program includes a large loan to be placed in New York later in the year, accompanied by the stabilization of the franc on a gold basis, though no announcement to this effect has been made. The need of foreign financing by France has been apparent for some time, bankers say, but conditions for an offering have not been suitable. It is generally believed that a French loan here will be preceded by definite arrangements for the funding of the French debt to the United States.

It was recalled in Wall Street yesterday that the $50,000,000 Morgan credit to Italy was arranged immediately after the return of Thomas W. Lamont, a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., from a vacation in that country.

BURNS BROS. STOCK DROPS.

Declines in A and B Shares Credited to Coal Competition.

The capital stock of the Burns Brothers Coal Company declined further on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. Both the Class A and B stocks lost a point or more net, and at their low levels had declined 2½ to nearly 3 points. There was increased selling in these issues due to recent developments.

The belief prevails in the financial district that keen competition for the coal business in the metropolitan district will be witnessed as a result of the organization of the new Frank L. Burns Coal Company by Mr. Burns immediately following his retirement as President of Burns Brothers. In some quarters it has been stated that "a coal war" is now under way.

S. M. Schatzkin, now in control of the old Burns Brothers Company, said that sales of coal increased 25 per cent. this week as compared with last week. He expressed the belief that Burns Brothers would distribute between 750,000 and 1,000,000 tons more coal this year than last.

COPPER AGAIN 13⅝ CENTS.

Copper for domestic consumption continued to be quoted around 13¾ cents a pound yesterday, with some producers asking 13¾ cents. One favorable feature in the present lull in copper buying, according to producers, is the absence of selling pressure on the part of small producers and dealers.

Due to the easier tone in the London market, export prices were shaded a bit. Dealers yesterday quoted the export metal at 13.50 to 13.55 cents a pound, f. a. s. New York Harbor, or 13.75 to 13.80 cents, c. i. f., European ports. Export demand was reported on a small scale, although it was said that there was some increase in demand from domestic consumers. Future prices for domestic consumption are quoted a shade above the spot prices.

DOVER, Del., June 26 (AP).—An amendment to its charter increasing the capital of the Louisville Gas and Electric Company was filed at the State Department today. The increase is from 2,300 shares to 1,300,000 shares without par value, consisting of 800,000 shares of class A common and 500,000 of class B common.

The Chase National Bank has been appointed registrar for an authorized issue of $75,000 shares of preferred and 800,000 shares of common stock of the Chrysler Corporation.

Dean, Onativia & Co. will open a branch office in Charlevoix, Mich., on June 29, under the management of Fred A. Elvins and Fred M. Kauffmann.

MAY INCOME CAUSES RAILWAY OPTIMISM

GAIN MAY TOTAL $10,000,000

St. Paul Reports a Net Operating Deficit for the Second Month of Receivership.

May earning statements of the railroads which have filed their reports to date indicate a substantial increase in the total over May of last year. Combined with the prospect of an increase of rates in Western territory, this has created a feeling of railroad optimism in the financial district. It has been estimated that the aggregate May income this year may exceed that of May, 1924, by about $10,000,000, although estimates at this time are regarded as somewhat premature. The total net for Class I railroads last May was $60,653,877.

The report of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul for the second month of operation under the receivership shows a net operating deficit of $315,108, compared with net operating income of $365,033 last year. In April the report showed an income against a deficit in April, 1924, but much was spent to improve the roadbed and equipment of the road during May.

The Southern Railway reported May gross of $11,469,204, against $11,695,947, and net operating income of $2,121,481, against $2,266,355, and five months gross of $59,286,267, and net operating income of $12,072,154, compared, respectively, with $58,609,274 and $10,698,386.

The report of the New York Central Railroad Company for May and the five months ending May 31, including the Ohio Central Lines, indicates a net railway operating income for the month of $5,841,564, an increase of $246,179 compared with May, 1924, and for the five months of $23,408,123, a decrease of $1,440,809. The ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues for May of this year was 73.1 per cent., compared with 73.9 per cent. for May, 1924, and for the five months was 75.3 per cent., compared with 76.6 for the corresponding period of 1924.

The Boston & Maine reported a surplus of $132,690, against a deficit of $54,367 last year. Gross for the road was $893,145 for the year but the surplus was made possible by operating economies which brought the company's operating ratio from 83.44 last year down to 80.62 last month.

Gross revenues of the New Haven Railroad in May increased $101,042. Net income was $344,564, compared with $93,027 last year, an increase of $251,537. For the first five months of 1925 net income shows an increase of $1,702,666 over 1924. Operating expenses show a reduction of $1,381,990 for the five months compared with the first five months of last year. Freight revenues increased $474,849 during the period, while passenger revenues decreased $221,812.

PIG IRON SALES PICK UP.

Approximately 20,000 tons of pig iron have been sold in the metropolitan district during the past week according to statements made in the trade yesterday, and prices for this prdouct, it was added, now show a firmer tone. The quotation for foundry iron is between $20 and $20.50 a ton, Buffalo basis, the price continues to be quoted at $19.

Conditions have improved materially during the past few weeks according to trade leaders, and there has been also some improvement in steel trade conditions in general. In view of these developments sentiment is more cheerful and it is hoped that further improvement may be experienced during the last half of the year. Among the orders placed for pig iron recently one concerns was for the Pennsylvania railroad for 3,000 tons to be delivered during the third quarter. It is also reported that the Crane Company of Pittsburgh, has placed a large contract.

FREIGHT CAR SURPLUS OFF.

Dropped 5,311 in Week of June 14, Railroads Report.

Class I railroads on June 14 had 313,494 surplus freight cars in good repair and available for service, according to reports filed today by the carriers with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. This was a decrease of 5,311 under the number reported on June 7, due principally to increased demand for coal cars.

Surplus coal cars in good repair on June 14 totaled 117,496, a decrease of 8,289 within approximately a week, while surplus box cars in good repair totaled 147,794, an increase of 2,994, during the same period.

Reports also showed 22,968 surplus stock cars, a decrease of 911 under the number reported on June 14, while there was a decrease of 904 during the same period in the number of surplus refrigerator cars, which brought the total for that class of equipment to 16,683.

UTILITIES COMBINE RUMORED UP-STATE

DISCUSSIONS IN SECRET

According to reports in public utility quarters yesterday, additional up-State mergers of public service companies are under way. The Power Corporation of New York system, the Mohawk Valley Company, the Mohawk-Hudson Power Corporation, recently formed as a holding company for several of the Anthony N. Brady estate properties, a United Gas Improvement property and the Adirondack Power and Light Corporation were mentioned as being included in the new merger discussions.

A combination of the Mohawk Valley Company, whose principal subsidiary is the Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation, and the Mohawk-Hudson Power Corporation would be considered a natural development in view of the plans shaping up in various utility groups for more advantageously organizing the State as a super-power district. Considerable secrecy surrounds the discussions, as they concern definite consolidations in addition to those recently effected, and the reports yesterday were neither confirmed nor denied at sources in closest touch with the up-State situation.

New York Central Control.

Controlled by the New York Central Railroad Company, the Mohawk Valley Company properties are located midway between those of the Adirondack Power Company and the recently merged properties of the Buffalo General Electric, Niagara, Lockport and Ontario and Niagara Falls Power Companies and others. Within an area of ten miles on either side of the New York Central line between Buffalo and the Hudson River lies 80 per cent. of the population of New York State, and about 10 per cent. of the population of the entire country. It has been pointed out that the Mohawk Valley properties centre in this area, and the properties on either side are under what is understood to be General Electric control, or under control of the so-called General Electric "interests."

Shares of the Power Corporation, whose principal operating company is the Northern New York Utilities Corporation, have been active for weeks, as have those of the Mohawk Valley Company, the former's advances reflecting the Power Corporation's interest in the recent merger of Brady utilities with the Adirondack Company, and the Mohawk Valley stock reflecting a proposed split-up of shares as well as consolidation reports.

Meet to Vote Stock Increase.

Stockholders of the Mohawk Valley Company will meet July 2 to vote on the plan to increase the present stock capitalization from 75,000 shares of $100 par value to 750,000 shares of no par stock. The new shares for each of the old will be distributed under the plan.

The fact that the New York Central Railroad Company controls the situation in the Mohawk Valley Company would if the latter is made party to such a merger be greatly to the advantage of the railroad, it is believed, in its plan eventually to electrify its lines from New York to Albany. While the railway electrification plans have been "inactive," it is expected they would be made active in the event of the consolidation of up-State utilities now rumored.

REPORTS LOWER EARNINGS.

Commonwealth Power Shows Drop —Tennessee and Ohio Up.

The Commonwealth Power Corporation and subsidiaries for the twelve months ended May 31 report gross earnings of $31,618,830, a decrease of $7,173, as compared with the preceding year, and a surplus after preferred dividends of $1,947,249, a decrease of $689,770. May earnings improved over the same month a year ago.

The Tennessee Electric Power Company, which is being merged with the Commonwealth Power Corporation, shows for itself and subsidiaries twelve months gross of $10,253,944, an increase of $941,729, while net after charges and depreciation is $1,930,736, a gain of $161,342. Surplus after first preferred dividend is $1,068,302, an increase of $30,035.

The Northern Ohio Power Corporation, including subsidiaries, reports a twelve months gross of $10,698,448, an increase of $637,651, and a balance after charges of $359,976, an increase of $118,430, before depreciation, but after preferred dividends of subsidiaries.

Southwestern Light Dividends.

The Southwestern Light and Power Company has declared an initial dividend of $2 a share for a four-month period on the preferred stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 25, and dividend of $1.50 on the class A common, payable July 6 to stock of record June 30.

UNITED CO. APPROVES GAS CONSOLIDATION

TO IMPROVE PROPERTIES

Transmission Line Will Be Erected Between Two Plants Located in Iowa.

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the United Gas Improvement Company in Philadelphia yesterday the agreement of merger and consolidation between the boards of directors of the U. G. I. and the American Gas Company was approved. The vote was 780,681 shares out of a total of 1,220,596 common shares outstanding in favor of the consolidation, with no stockholders opposed.

Yesterday's action completes, when approved by the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania, the United Gas Improvement's acquisition of the American Gas Company. Stockholders of American Gas already had ratified the agreement.

Morris Stroud, President of the American Gas Company, will, it was said yesterday, be elected a director of the United Gas Improvement after all the merger details are completed. President Samuel T. Bodine of the U. G. I. said the company would erect a transmission line from Sioux City, Iowa, to Humboldt, Iowa, connecting properties of American Gas Company, giving these properties larger facilities and more electric power.

The American Gas Company is a New Jersey incorporation owning properties scattered over the United States, of which two can easily be tied up with those owned by U. G. I., resulting, according to Mr. Bodine, in increased efficiency and saving outlays of capital.

One of these properties is the Philadelphia Suburban Gas & Electric Gas Company, which, it is said, can be tied up with the Counties Gas & Electric, owned by the U. G. I. The other is in Iowa where the U. G. I. also recently bought all the capital stock of the Iowa Light, Heat & Power Company.

Up to yesterday 94 per cent. of the stock of the American Gas Company of New Jersey had been deposited under the U. G. I. merger.

BUSINESS QUIETER; HOT SPELL HELPED

Seasonal Slack Not as Bad as Last Year, Trade Reviews' Report.

Trade and industry during the past week have been somewhat quieter than a few months ago, but better than at this time last year, the weekly trade reviews report. A month of warm weather is said to have helped Summer textiles and shoe sales. A noteworthy development of the week, the reports add, was the conference held here by representative manufacturers of domestic woolens and worsteds, at which the increasing competition of imported fabrics was discussed.

According to Bradstreet's:

"Seasonal quieting is more perceptible in trade and industry, but, as previously noted, the reaction to dullness is at a slower pace than a year ago, and this evidence of stabilization, plus good crop reports from the corn belt, the Spring-wheat Northwest and a good part of the Central cotton belt, is credited with the increased evidence of optimism as to the Autumn trade outlook. Trade, and to a greater extent industrial and crop reports, are, however, still spotted, with generalization difficult. Hand-to-mouth buying rules in big as in small business, but, notwithstanding this, the evidences are plain that, while things are somewhat quieter than in earlier months, the business community is a good step in advance of the depressed conditions of a year ago at this time.

R. G. Dun's review sees it thus:

"Allowing for the slowing down which normally comes in different lines at this season, general business is without essential change. The seven conditions that have prevailed for many weeks still appear, but there are more strong points and fewer unfavorable aspects than existed a year ago. The commercial situation is marked. It has been for some time, by the disinclination of most dealers to operate beyond well-defined needs, yet in many instances purchases are repeated frequently and the aggregate volume is very large. Signs of a turn for the better in footwear markets have become more distinct, there have been increased dealings in hides, and even new steel orders, which usually fall off at this period, hold up well."

RECORD RUBBER RISE PUTS UP TIRE PRICE

Inner Tubes Increased 33 1-3% in Largest Single Movement in History of the Industry.

Almost simultaneously with the advance in the price of crude rubber to a new high record for the current movement, and also the highest price recorded since 1917, the General Tire and Rubber Company yesterday announced an advance of 33 1-3 per cent. in the price of inner tubes. This advance, according to reports in the trade, is one of the largest single movements upward in the history of the industry. The company, it was stated, had made no change in the price of automobile tire shoes, but it is understood that it is accepting business for this product only with the understanding that they will be billed at prices prevailing at the time of shipment.

It has been reported in the trade for several days that a general advance of 10 to 15 per cent. in tire prices and 20 per cent. in tube prices would be announced shortly to take effect July 1. According to report, the Firestone Rubber and Tire Company, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, B. F. Goodrich & Co. and the United States Rubber Company are expected to announce advances.

The expected advance in rubber tire and tube prices were chiefly responsible for the increased bidding for crude rubber yesterday, and advances of 1 to 2 cents a pound were recorded among the leading products. Ribbed smoked sheets advanced 1 cent a pound to 86 cents, the highest price recorded since 1917, when the war demand brought about record-breaking prices. A firm tone also prevailed in the London rubber market.

Prices Close at Top Figures With July Liquidation Out of the Way.

CROP LOSSES ARE REPORTED

Two Private Estimates Are Lower Than for the Corresponding Time Last Month.

After several days of unusually erratic and irregular fluctuations, the cotton market moved upward about half a cent yesterday and closed at the top. With July notices out of the way and absence of general relief in drought sections of the Southwest, buying broadened under the most active trading of the week. The removal of July liquidation as an unsettling factor led to an increased demand for new crop months, blocks of October, December, January and March being taken from the market. New high levels for the month were reached, with October selling above 23¾ cents at the close.

Two private reports were issued during the day, one by a local crop-reporting agency and the other by a prominent Philadelphia spot concern, and both showed a loss from last month. The first estimated the condition at 73.7, or a deterioration of 1.5 per cent., indicating a yield of 13,650,000 bales, while the second showed a decline of half a point, to 75.1, pointing to a yield of 13,679,000. The condition in Texas was placed at 65 in the first and 63 in the second report.

For the first time this week, Liverpool showed decided steadiness and before New York opened prices abroad had advanced considerably above the local parity. That pressure of contracts on the market had lifted with the transfer of local stock the previous day became evident on the opening call when the purchase of a few hundred July advanced quotations $1 a bale. Instead of the heavy July selling of Thursday, during which tens of thousands of bales changed hands, transactions were limited to a few hundred bales. Activity shifted to new crop months and for several hours heavy buying occurred in each of the main trading positions. When the morning weather map revealed only light and widely scattered showers west of the River, demand for cotton increased at steadily advancing prices. Around 23¾ cents for October and 23.90 for December, representing a rise of about $3 a bale from low figures of the week, New Orleans became the seller in the local market and halted the rise.

Frequent 10 point fluctuations developed during the afternoon, but private reports pointing to a yield about the same as last year and showing a decline in the condition of the plant for the month carried prices to highest levels of the session in final trading. The Weather Bureau held out little hope of moisture in drought sections.

In-sight figures showed 40,000 bales, against 43,000 during the corresponding week last year, making 14,431,000 for the season, against 11,007,000 last year. Spinners took 160,000, against 129,000 last year, making 13,624,000 for the season, compared with 10,609,000 last year. The visible supply decreased 120,000, compared with 68,000 last year, leaving the world's supply of American cotton 1,759,000, against 1,268,000. A loss of 147,000 bales for the week was reported in the Bombay stock.

OIL PLANT CAPACITY GAINS.

Increased 141 Per Cent. Since 1918, Bureau of Mines Reports.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—The indicated capacity of American petroleum refining plants has reached 2,864,842 barrels daily, the Interior Department announced today on the basis of information compiled by the Bureau of Mines.

The figure represented an increase of more than 141 per cent. from 1918 to 1925, said the report, which placed the present number of complete refineries at 550, compared with 267 on Jan. 1, 1918, while four more are being constructed. The indicated daily capacity of plants in operation was 2,511,817 barrels.

California, the department found, led all States with a daily refining capacity of 743,729 barrels. Texas, with 566,580 barrels, was second; Oklahoma with 348,950, third; New Jersey with 243,000, fourth; Louisiana, with 165,845, fifth; Pennsylvania, with 143,940, sixth, with Wyoming, Illinois, Kansas, Massachusetts and Ohio following in that order.

The refineries are distributed among thirty-one States, including 113 in Texas, 63 in Oklahoma, 57 in California, 59 in Pennsylvania and 34 in Kansas.

NEW DROP IN WHEAT HALTED BY A RALLY

EXPORT TRADING SETTER

Eastern Shorts Lift Corn to a Rise —Foreign Sales Boost Oats and Rye.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Belated liquidation was on in wheat early with heavy selling by houses of Eastern connections carrying prices down 2@2½ cents, September showing 9 cents under the high of Wednesday. With the menace of black rust in the Northwest still the main influence many of the operators who had taken the short side for a turn started to cover shorts and, with aggressive commission house buying, made a rally of around 3 cents from the low point, the finish being ⅛ cent lower on July and ⅛@¼ cent higher on the deferred deliveries, with December leading.

Winnipeg October gained 1 cent for the day with increased outside buying a factor.

The efforts to bull the market on apprehensions of damage have cost the trade considerable money, as the outside speculators have failed to enthuse.

American hard Winter wheats are considerably above an export parity and no bids of consequence are being received from abroad. The foreign demand for old wheat, however, was slightly better with sales of 350,000 to 450,000 bushels in all positions, including Springs, durums and Manitobas. Liverpool again showed actively more strength than Chicago and closed only 1@1¼d. lower.

A car of No. 2 dark hard Winter wheat was received today from Salina, Kan. Last year the first car arrived July 10. Minneapolis had three cars of new Oklahoma hard Winter in today, mills having bought it some days ago.

Primary arrivals were 911,000 bushels; week ago, 707,000; last year, 615,000. Shipments were 663,000 bushels; week ago, 850,000; last year, 770,000.

Eastern shorts were very heavy buyers of near-by deliveries of corn, and the market showed independent strength with gains of 1¼ cents, while the December was up ¾ cent.

Offerings were heavy on the bulge, but they were readily absorbed and the finish was about the top.

Demand for cash corn here was less active, with the spot basis ½ to 1 cent lower. No. 2 yellow was around 2½ cents over July at the last.

Primary arrivals were 519,000 bushels; week ago, 456,000; last year, 434,000, and shipments, 362,000 bushels; week ago 444,000; last year 654,000.

Rye was ¼ cent higher. Local handlers sold 160,000 bushels to exporters, while the seaboard cleared 350,000 bushels had been sold to Finland and the Continent.

S. G. Dawes Sells Control of New York and Richmond Gas Co.

William J. Welsh, President of the New York & Richmond Gas Company, Staten Island, announced yesterday that control of the company had passed from Beman G. Dawes to a group led by Rufus C. Dawes, a brother. Mr. Welsh would not say who composed the group. The personnel would remain the same, the old directors having been re-elected, he said.

Beman G. Dawes got control of the company, which is the only gas company on Staten Island, in 1906, when, it is said, he bought 15,000 shares of stock at $65 a share. A total of $975,000. He sold 5,000 shares to the group led by his brother a month ago at $115 a share. The sale and the remaining 7,000 shares, valued at $115, will give him a profit of $750,000 in nineteen years ownership of the stock.

Refinery on Smackover Only.

The refinery of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, at Destrehan, near New Orleans, is now being operated exclusively on Smackover crude oil. The company's subsidiary, the Southern Pipe Line Company, is reported to be handling between 40,000 and 50,000 barrels of Smackover crude daily. It is understood that the company contemplates drawing oil from American fields to operate this refinery in order to conserve its resources in Mexico.

REALTORS URGE CUT IN INCOME TAXES

WANTS BEAUTIFUL CITIES

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 26.—With the 1926 convention to be decided between Atlantic City and Tulsa, Okla., and the election of Robert Jemison Jr. of Birmingham, Ala., as President, succeeding Charles G. Edwards of New York, the eighteenth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards ended today. Officers and delegates pronounced it the greatest congress in the history of the organization.

Several resolutions were passed designed to raise the standards of the real estate profession. Reports from the Chairmen of the eight divisional sessions of the convention and announcement of winners in the home town speech contest, of the attendance trophy and advertising prizes closed the proceedings.

Raleigh (N. C.) Real Estate Board won the attendance cup, donated by the Cleveland Board for the best proportional representation. The nation's champion realtor is J. D. Pengally of Flint, Mich., who was the unanimous choice of the judges in the home town five minutes' speech contest.

Favor Income Tax Cut.

Resolutions carried in the closing moments of the congress included representations against the exemption of income producing property from taxation; favored abolition of all inheritance, estate and gift taxes by the Government; a general reduction of the income tax; separation of city planning and city zoning; standardization of building parts and materials; statutory arbitration of commercial disputes, and an expression of appreciation to Detroit civic authorities and President Reaume and officials of the local board.

The prediction of great results from the Detroit convention was made by Paul Steinbrecher, Chicago, a former President, in an address on "The Principles of Success in the Real Estate Business."

"Many realtors will look back to this as one of the stepping stones to success, with its great constructive benefits," he said. "Real estate men must devote much of their leisure time to educational courses and the building up of technical libraries for the rapid growth of modern cities. The kaleidoscopic changes in modern social and business life, otherwise, will put him out of the running."

A plan for checking the evil of "jerry" construction by establishing in every city or town where possible, a bureau to supervise the construction of dwellings and other buildings and certify the quality of materials and workmanship, was proposed by Walter Stabler of New York, Controller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

As proposed, the plan would apply to all buildings to finance the construction of which loans were wanted from local lenders or from local persons, firms or institutions representing lenders from other places.

Deplores Unbeautiful Cities.

The wanton abuse of beauty by Americans in the building of their cities has created a condition which will take billions of dollars to improve and which cannot be entirely corrected short of razing many cities, H. R. Ennis, Kansas City, and immediate past President of the association, told the convention.

"The mind of America has been too much turned to money making and the material side of life," he said. "It has ignored the demands of the esthetic, and the esthetic side cannot be disregarded without grave effects upon character. The realtors have made a start, but we must push on the good work with increasing vigor and untiring enthusiasm."

A report from Herbert U. Nelson, Secretary of the National Association, showed twenty-one States, three Canadian Provinces, Cuba and Honolulu represented at the Detroit convention, which was 2,000 larger than any previous gathering. Cleveland had the largest delegation, Ohio the largest number of delegates and Florida the most boards represented.

SAYS SON TOOK HER AUTO.

Leaves Him at Police Station Hoping Boy Will Have 'Good Vacation.'

Mrs. Minnie Raymond of 54 Washington Avenue, Ridgewood, Queens, was the complainant against her son, Melvin, 13 years old, when he was taken to the Glendale Police Station last night charged with juvenile delinquency in connection with the alleged theft of Mrs. Raymond's automobile.

"I hope you have a good vacation," said Mrs. Raymond to Melvin as she left the station. Melvin later was taken to the Children's Society in Brooklyn to await arraignment in Jamaica Children's Court on Tuesday.

It was alleged that Melvin, with Fred Hartman, 16, of 1,611 Jefferson Avenue, Ridgewood, and Peter Orth, 12, of 88 Wyckoff Avenue, Brooklyn, took Mrs. Raymond's automobile and went driving in it. The joy ride ended when their automobile collided with another vehicle.

Orth was sent to the Children's Society with Raymond. Hartman was held on a charge of grand larceny for arraignment in Jamaic Court today.

Ex-Convict, Accused of Holding Up Mrs. Shewan, Denied Bail.

William Homan, 25 years old, an electrician, of 558 West 140th Street, who the police say has confessed to twenty-five burglaries, was identified yesterday in the Harlem Police Court by Mrs. Ellen Shewan, 18 East Seventy-sixth Street, as the robber who held her up with a pistol in her library on April 16 and robbed her of $4,000 worth of diamond rings and a diamond brooch. Mrs. Shewan is the mother of James Shewan Jr., whose home at Southampton was entered Thursday night by a burglar who stole two pearl necklaces worth $32,000.

One of Mrs. Shewan's diamond rings, the police said, was recovered from a Bronx jeweler, who said he paid $600 for it. Homan was held by Magistrate Marsh without bail for further hearing Wednesday. He was released recently from Sing Sing, where he served a five-year sentence for robbery.

THE HOTEL RAMSBY SOLD

Two big building operations in Manhattan calling for an expenditure of several million dollars, were announced yesterday.

On the east side, in the high-class residential section, another cooperative apartment house is to be erected.

As a site for the new structure the former residence of Mrs. Lillian Livingston Remsen, at 800 Madison Avenue, corner of Sixty-seventh Street, has been bought by James F. Meehan and James J. Summers at a reported price of more than $300,000 from the Pine-Water Realty Company. Byrne & Bowman were the brokers.

The property fronts 100 feet on the avenue and 80 feet on the street, and is to be improved by the new owners with a twelve-story cooperative structure which is estimated to cost about $750,000. The sellers bought the house from Mrs. Remsen in December, 1923.

Sixteen-Story Apartment for Central Park West.

On the west side in the Central Park West section, where there has been unusual speculative activity since the first of the year, a new operation is to be undertaken at the north corner of 101st Street.

Deutsch & Schneider, architects and engineers, have been retained by the 415 Central Park West Corporation, Isaac F. Roe, President, to prepare plans for a sixteen-story apartment house on the site, which fronts 100.8 feet on the avenue and 111 feet on the street.

It will contain suites of from three to seven rooms, and the financing, it is reported, will be furnished by the American Bond and Mortgage Company.

Apartment Hotel Resold.

The Ramsby twelve-story apartment hotel, at 324 West Eighty-fourth Street, has been sold by the Eugene C. Harding Realty Company to Louis Kramer.

The structure occupies a plot 33 by 102.2 between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive. It is understood to have figured in the deal closed last April by which Mr. Kramer sold to the Harding Realty Company the eleven-story Cluett Building, at 22-28 West Nineteenth Street.

The apartment house was reported leased in February last for a term of years to Peter A. McGoldrick. Mrs. McGoldrick has sublet the property to Josephine Sasson for fifteen years at a net annual rental of from $30,000 to $35,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The disturbance that was central over Northeastern Minnesota Thursday night has moved eastward to Western Quebec. Pressure remains relatively low over the Canadian maritime Provinces and the Eastern States and it is low and falling west of the Rocky Mountains except along the North Pacific Coast. Pressure remains quite high over the Western Atlantic Ocean, except near the coast of the United States and Canada, and it is relatively high from Saskatchewan and Manitoba southward to Colorado.

This pressure distribution has been attended by local showers within the last twenty-four hours in the lake region, Minnesota, Manitoba, Eastern North Dakota, Eastern Kansas and along the Atlantic and East Gulf Coasts. Elsewhere generally fair weather has prevailed. The temperature has risen in the North Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio and mid-Mississippi Valleys and in the northern Rocky Mountain region, and it has fallen in the northern lake region, Minnesota, the Dakotas and the western portions of Oregon and Washington.

The indications are for mostly fair weather Saturday and Sunday in the States east of the Mississippi River. There will be scattered thunder showers, however, in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, and there is some probability of light local showers on Saturday in the Atlantic States north of Virginia. Cooler weather will overspread the lower lake region Saturday and the Ohio Valley and the North Atlantic and mid-Atlantic States Saturday night.

SEIZED IN ATTACK ON BROTHER'S HOME

RESULT OF FAMILY FEUD

Began When One Brother Turned State's Evidence and Another Was Sentenced on Drug Charge.

A family feud which began a year ago when one brother turned State's evidence against another, causing him to be sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for fifteen years, led last night to the arrest of Jacques Grosso, 29 years old, a furrier, of 72 Skillman Avenue, Brooklyn.

Grosso was arrested in the home of his brother Joseph, at 158 Guernsey Street. It was alleged that he had broken down two doors and fired a shot through a third behind which his brother's wife had barricaded herself and her two children.

A year ago Joseph Grosso, 26, and his brother, John Grosso, 22, were arrested by detectives from the Narcotic Division. A quantity of cocaine and heroin was found in their possession, and they were turned over to the Federal authorities for prosecution.

According to Mrs. Joseph Grosso, Jacques, the eldest brother, sought to have Joseph take the blame, and offered to pay him $20 per week and his wife an additional $5 per week as a bonus during the time he was serving sentence in prison.

Joseph not only refused to shoulder the blame but he turned State's evidence as well, and it was his testimony which sent John away for fifteen years.

From that time there was enmity between Jacques and Joseph. Mutual friends made sport of it and carried tales from one to the other. Recently a taunt more bitter than the rest was carried to the ears of Jacques, and he is alleged to have sworn to square matters with Joseph.

Just after dusk last night there was a knock at the front door of Joseph's home, and Baby Joe, 7 years old, went to the door. Upon seeing his uncle's figure in the doorway, the child cried out "Daddy isn't home." Then he slammed the door and ran to tell his mother.

Jacques rang the bell again, but Mrs. Grosso feared to answer it. So finally Jacques hurled himself against the door, pounding it with his fists and shoulders until it collapsed. Children playing in the street said they saw Jacques hurl a chair against the door leading from the parlor to the bedroom.

As the door to the bedroom gave way, Mrs. Grosso retreated through the dining room into the kitchen. She locked this door and pushed a cabinet against it. Then she strengthened the barricade with a table and some chairs, and she and the two children ran to the windows and screamed for help.

Jacques called to her to open the door, but she ignored him. Then came the crack of a pistol and a bullet whistled past Mrs. Grosso.

Outside a host of excited neighbors had gathered but none dared enter the house.

At this stage Patrolman White and Detectives Clauer and Dempsey arrived from the Messerole Street station. Two children had run to the station crying that a woman was being murdered at the Guernsey Street address.

The police say that when they entered the dining room they saw Jacques slip a revolver into a doll carriage. Then he made a dash for the door. When White sought to intercept him Jacques fought, but the police subdued him. He was taken to the Clymer Street Station charged with burglary and violation of the Sullivan law and will be arraigned in Williamsburg Court tomorrow.

The police finally induced Mrs. Grosso to remove the barricade from the kitchen door. They found her in such a hysterical condition that an ambulance surgeon was called.

JUDGE FREES JULIA HOYT.

Miss Julia Hoyt, the actress, who gave the address 23 Macdougal Alley, was freed on a suspended sentence when she was arraigned before Magistrate Earl A. Smith by Motorcycle Policeman O'Connor on a charge of driving her car at twenty-eight miles an hour on First Avenue on June 20 last. A second charge of operating the automobile without a license was dismissed when she produced her license.

In suspending sentence Magistrate Smith remarked that he took into account the fact that Miss Hoyt had been driving automobiles for several years without having traffic or speed law violations recorded against her.

The rush of student tourists to Europe will start with a full swing today following close upon commencement in most of the large universities and colleges. Three groups of student tourists, including one party of twenty who will set forth on a "world friendship tour," are booked on three steamers sailing from New York.

The student tourists who go as ambassadors of friendship and good-will were entertained at a dinner at International House, Riverside Drive and 124th Street, last evening by foreign students representing the eight countries they are going to visit. The World Friendship Tour is conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. Its members sail on the Cunard Adania.

Fifty students, making the seventh annual Summer tour of Europe under the auspices of the American Students' Tours, are sailing on the Cunard liner Carmania for Liverpool. They include for the most part preparatory school students.

A third group is sailing on the Holland-America liner New Amsterdam for Rotterdam. The tour is under the auspices of the World Acquaintance Tours.

Miss Barbara Joy, Director of the Camping Department of the Camp Fire Girls, is sailing on the New Amsterdam to study Camp Fire organization in England, especially with reference to camp activities. On a canoe trip on the Avon she will demonstrate American methods of camping.

The preparatory school group, under the auspices of the American Students' Tours, will be led by Frederick J. Haley of the Educational Department of the Macmillan Company, assisted by Dean Charles L. Swift of the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa. Included in the party are Ernest McAneny, Riverdale School, son of George McAneny of the Transit Commission; Arthur Mills, St. Paul's School, son of Charles H. Mills; William S. Kies Jr., the Hill School, son of William S. Kies, and Robert C. Fulton Jr. and Victor B. Gilbert, Riverdale School.

The World Acquaintance Tours will be headed by Joseph P. MacMillan, Assistant Secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The party will tour England, The Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and France, returning on August 6.

Grand Jury Frees Crippled Peddler.

The Grand Jury refused to take action yesterday on the charge that Mrs. Nora Prendergast, 74 years old, a crippled pencil peddler of 215 West Sixty-third Street, had killed with her crutch Mrs. May McGerren, 40 years old, of 136 West Sixty-third Street in the older woman's home on June 4. This automatically dismisses the bail under which Mrs. Prendergast was held in the Homicide Court. There were no witnesses to the manner in which Mrs. McGerren came to her death.

DENY DIPLOMATIC STATUS.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Governments of Spain and Belgium have notified the State Department that they cannot accept the proposal of the United States that diplomatic status be accorded to Treasury agents assigned to those countries to investigate costs of production and other details of foreign manufacturing establishments which export to the United States.

While no definite reply has been received from Great Britain, Norway, Switzerland, Denmark and Portugal, there have been unofficial indications that these countries will not accept the American proposal, which has not met with favor in Germany.

Nevertheless, all have given evidence of a willingness to accord the usual facilities to the Treasury agents in exercising their functions. The State Department was required by resolution of Congress to approach the various countries as to according diplomatic status to such agents.
